U. S. SENATORS VOTE TODAY ON DRY REPEAL

Substitute for 18th Amendment Ready.

Repeal State Dry Acts

Illinois senate votes by a decisive majority to repeal both the existing state prohibition laws; repeal now goes to lower house, where passage seems assured. The measures involved are the search and seizure law and the state prohibition act.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Senate wets will face their major prohibition test of the short session tomorrow. At 3 o'clock, according to an agreement wrung from the die hard drys tonight, the senate will vote on the revamped Blaine resolution submitting the question of repeal of the eighteenth amendment direct to state conventions chosen for that purpose by direct vote of the people.

Upon the outcome of the vote will depend whether the question of repeal is to be submitted to the states at once or delayed until after the inauguration of President Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt. Within striking distance of success for the first time since national prohibition was written into the constitution thirteen years ago, senate wets tonight said that while the vote would be close, they believed the necessary two-thirds would be forthcoming.

Text of Repeal Act.

"Section 1. The eighteenth article of amendment to the constitution of the United States is hereby repealed.

"Sec. 2. Transportation or importation into any state, territory, or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.

"Sec. 3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the constitution by conventions in the several states, as provided in the constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the states by the congress."

Wets Pile Up Victories.

The announcement of the vote on the repeal resolution climaxed a series of smashing victories won by senate wets during two days and two evenings of major engagements with filibustering drys. When the senate took a recess tonight the Blaine resolution had been stripped of its provisions allowing congress concurrent control over the saloon and altered to permit ratification by state conventions rather than by state legislatures. It called for outright repeal except for a single provision authorizing the federal government to aid in protecting dry states.

Today's wet victories came on three votes. On the first, the senate by a vote of 58 to 23 decided to take up the Blaine resolution. On a second vote, which the wets won by 45 to 15, the senate arranged for ratification through state conventions. The major vote came tonight when the senate, by the close vote of 33 to 32, struck out section three of the Blaine resolution, which gave congress power to remain in the liquor business by regulating or banning saloons.

Borah Leads in Decision.

The "aye" of Senator William E. Borah [Rad., Idaho], one of the senate's dry leaders, was the deciding one in the vote to take congress entirely out of the business of controlling the liquor traffic. He explained that he voted as he did because retention of the provision for concurrent jurisdiction would have made liquor conditions throughout the nation even more chaotic than at present.

This article three, known as the saloon section, because it was designed to bar the saloon, has been the storm center of a wet attack since it first was agreed to by the judiciary.

THE WAY IS PLAIN, IF WE'LL JUST GET STARTED

GIVES ROBBERS TONGUE LASHING, BUT LOSES CASH

Two youthful bandits took a tongue lashing yesterday from Mrs. Elizabeth Wells, 3018 North Racine avenue, after they had forced their way into her home, but that did not deter them from tying her up and stealing her purse containing $2.

They rang the doorbell and asked for Mrs. Wells' son, John, 18 years old. When she said that he was not at home they pushed her aside and stepped through the doorway.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourselves," Mrs. Wells said she told them. "Two big, husky boys like you holding up an old woman like me."

They hung their heads, she reported, but pushed her into a bedroom and bound her with strips torn from pillow cases. While they were still in the house she loosened her bonds, dropped from the bedroom window, and ran to a neighboring store to call the police. The robbers had left when police arrived, however.

A GERMAN GOOSE GETS POLITICAL IDEAS; LOSES LIFE

WUPPERTAL, Rhenish Prussia, Feb. 15.—A Nationalist citizen of the neighboring factory town of Hochdahl discovered this morning that his favorite goose had turned Red overnight. It bore on its back and wings the Hammer and Sickle emblem of the communist party. Finding it impossible to remove the paint, the aggrieved patriot killed his goose. Such are the humors of this reichstag election campaign. In the last campaign communist and socialist flags were hoisted on the stacks of shutdown foundries, but this cannot be done this time. The owners have removed the climbing irons.

Rob Motion Picture House Third Time Since Saturday

For the third time since last Saturday, bandits robbed the Buckingham theater, 3319 North Clark street, last night. One man menaced Miss Rita Ross, 837 Belden avenue, the cashier, and robbed her of $8. Saturday night a robber got $20 from Miss Doris Newquist, 854 Roscoe street, the cashier, and on Sunday night another man held her up, getting $11. The two holdups so unnerved Miss Newquist that she was placed on day duty and relieved by Miss Ross.

Assassin, in Jail, Tells of His Motives

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Giuseppi Zangara, an Italian immigrant who tried to assassinate President Elect Roosevelt and wounded Mayor Cermak of Chicago and four other people in the attempt, sat in the Dade county jail tonight and readily answered questions put to him by the police.

He is about 33 years old, a native of Italy who has spent nine years in America. He came here from Calabria, a province in Italy, and about two months ago he came to Miami, because "they tell me eet will help these pains in my stomach."

Denies He Is Anarchist.

Speaking broken English, which was helped at times by Sheriff Dan Hardie, a linguist who turned to Italian when Zangara faltered, the prisoner insisted that he was not an anarchist.

He is for the workingman, he said. He is against presidents and kings and all "the rich and powerful."

Weighing 105½ pounds and only 5 feet 5½ inches tall, this insignificant appearing man who came so close to destroying the new ruler of the United States grew calm as his first defiance left him.

His face is dark and a heavy growth of beard made him the more shaggy and black of face. His severe emaciation was plainly to be seen as he sat in his cell stripped after the policeman had searched him for other weapons.

Scar Breeds Hate.

Across his stomach is a long scar, which he declared was the result of burns he received while working in a brick factory.

Zangara associated the burn on his stomach with his complaints against an oppressive society, and, though not vindictive, he expressed deep feeling against the rulers of states. Zangara seemed to have no realization of the gravity of his act.

"Why do you want to kill?" he is asked for the tenth time. "Did you want to kill the policemen who caught you?"

"I no care to kill police," he said. "They work for leeving. As a man I like Meester Roosevelt. As a president I want to keel him. I want to keel all presidents. In Italy ten years ago I want to keel the king. But I cannot get to heem."

"But you cannot kill all rulers," a policeman said. "Are you an anarchist?"

"I do not belong to any society. I am no anarchist. Sometimes I get a beeg pain in my stomach, too, and then I want to keel these presidents who oppress the workingman."

Quite apparently, from his conversation, the prisoner has been attending communistic meetings, getting in his muddled brain the thoughts of oppression against the masses and translating them into his violent action.

Under questioning by the police Zangara is reported to have said that, when he bought his gun, he intended to use it to kill President Hoover, but changed his mind when he read of President Elect Roosevelt's intention to visit Miami.

Zangara declared that he had been out of work for three years and that he had saved enough money from working as a bricklayer to live in the meantime. He said he had lost $200 in the last two weeks at the Miami dog track.

The police also arrested Andrea Valenti, a Miami cigarmaker, who was a friend of Zangara. According to Policeman N. A. Clark, Valenti met Zangara frequently and had dinner with him at 7 o'clock Wednesday night.

MAYOR HAS "50-50 CHANCE" AS MIAMI DOCTORS PLAN OPERATION FOR BULLET

DOCTORS ISSUE BULLETINS ON MAYOR CERMAK

BULLETIN.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 16 (Thursday).—(Special.)—Mayor Cermak of Chicago was given "more than a fifty-fifty chance for recovery" by consulting physicians this morning. At 2 o'clock they issued a bulletin indicating that his pulse, temperature, and respiration were normal, but declaring that his condition is dangerous.

At this time, they added, a surgical operation is not considered wise. It is likely, however, that surgical intervention will be ultimately necessary. The bulletin in full reads:

"The condition of Mayor Cermak at 2 a. m. follows: Pulse, 88; temperature, 98.6; respiration, 24. His condition is regarded as dangerous but not immediately critical. The bullet evidently traversed the diaphragm and margin of the liver, and lodged in the body of the eleventh dorsal vertebra. Surgical intervention is deemed unwise unless his condition becomes worse."

Dr. John W. Snyder, who is in charge, and Drs. Thomas H. Hutson and E. S. Nichol signed the statement. Dr. Snyder informally added to the bulletin the statement: "Mayor Cermak has more than a fifty-fifty chance to recover." Mrs. Joseph Gill of Miami, also seriously wounded, was given the same chance in his prediction.

Dr. Nichol was also optimistic regarding Mayor Cermak's likelihood of recovery.

"I believe he will overcome this wound," said Dr. Nichol.

The mayor is in the Jackson Memorial hospital, some twenty blocks from the scene of the shooting. Mrs. Gill is also there. Early this morning the Chicago mayor was reported to be resting comfortably. More than 100 telegrams and long distance telephone calls were received at the hospital from all parts of the country. One was from President Hoover. All expressed hope for Mr. Cermak's recovery.

PLANS FOR GALA INAUGURATION MAY BE CHANGED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Plans for the gala inauguration ceremonies scheduled for March 4 may be reconsidered as a result of the attempt to assassinate President Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt at Miami.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the inaugural committee, said tonight that he did not believe the arrangements would be changed.

Shocked administration officials and members of congress in the President elect's party asserted, however, that adequate protection must be given first consideration in the light of what might have been a national calamity.

Washington officials were stunned by the news that an attempt had been made on the life of the President elect.

ROOSEVELT SONS NOT TOLD BEFORE THEY GO TO SLEEP

Groton, Mass., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Two sons of President Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt went to bed in their quarters at Groton school tonight unaware that an attempt had been made to assassinate their father at Miami. The boys, Franklin D. Jr. and John, were asleep when the news reached the school and were not awakened.

Attack Takes Place as Yachting Party Returns from Cruise; Four Other Persons Are Hit.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Mayor Cermak of Chicago was severely wounded tonight by Giuseppi Zangara, an anarchistic gunman, who was attempting to assassinate President Elect Roosevelt. His condition was so grave that an operation was planned to save his life.

Mr. Roosevelt was unharmed, but four bystanders were wounded. One of them, a woman, is not expected to recover.

Thousands of people, who had come to welcome the President elect on his return from a fishing trip in the Bahamas, saw the shooting, which occurred in a dense crowd at Biscayne park on the Miami water front.

Zangara was captured after people in the crowd had beaten him severely. At police headquarters he was found to be of maniacal anarchistic tendencies. He ranted, "I like Roosevelt, all right, but I don't like presidents."

Roosevelt Looks After Cermak.

President Elect Roosevelt, who had just completed a short talk to the crowd and who had tarried to greet Mayor Cermak, took Cermak in his own car to the hospital and remained there until he had full information of Cermak's condition. As Mr. Roosevelt sat by the mayor's side Cermak said, "I'm glad it was me instead of you."

Mr. Roosevelt canceled his plan to return to New York City by train tonight and returned for the night to Vincent Astor's yacht Nourmahal, on which he had spent his fishing vacation. He plans to visit Cermak at the hospital again in the morning and may leave shortly thereafter for New York City.

Mayor Cermak, who did not lose consciousness during any of the time prior to being put on the operating table, was wounded by a single bullet which entered his back just above the right kidney.

Late tonight an X-ray located the bullet, but it was decided not to operate until tomorrow.

Ald. James Bowler of Chicago, who accompanied the mayor to the park and stood within five feet of him as he was shot, stayed at the mayor's side during the night. He said that when he undressed Cermak a bullet dropped from his shirt. He thought that probably it was a stray bullet, as it had not inflicted a wound.

Names of Others Wounded.

Others wounded were:

MISS MARGARET KRUIS of Newark, N. J., shot through the hand.

RUSSELL CALDWELL, 22, of Miami, struck in the head.

The Nourmahal, carrying President Elect Roosevelt, had docked at the Miami pier early in the evening. Mr. Roosevelt had discussed his trip with newspaper men and had conferred with Prof. Raymond Moley, his economic adviser, on war debts.

At 9 o'clock Mr. Roosevelt left the yacht and entered an automobile, an open touring car with the top down. Beside him in the car was Mayor R. B. Gautier of Miami. The two chatted animatedly as the car was driven off the dock to begin a parade through the downtown streets of Miami.

A dozen motorcycle policemen rode ahead of the parade. Secret service men rode, two of them in the car with the President elect and three others in another car following. The procession went with screaming sirens down Biscayne boulevard, with crowds cheering the President elect as they saw him pass. Mr. Roosevelt waved and smiled happily at their greeting.

Greeted by Cheering Crowd.

When the park was approached the President elect saw that a band shell had been converted into a platform on which a hundred or more distinguished guests had gathered. The Roosevelt car was driven up in front of the stand. Thousands packed in the park on all sides of the President elect greeted him vociferously as he lifted himself up to the top of his seat so that the crowd could see him better.

Most of the people had crowded into the space in front of the band shell, the police having roped off a space through which the President elect's car was driven.

Just at that point, while he was acknowledging the plaudits of the crowd, Mr. Roosevelt noticed Mayor Cermak sitting up in the band shell. He called to him to come down to the car, but Mr. Cermak shook his head and said:

"After the speech, Mr. President."

A microphone was brought up to the car in which Mr. Roosevelt was sitting, and he then delivered his few complimentary remarks, which were brought to the crowd through loud speakers set up in the park. He said:

"Mr. Mayor, my friends of Miami, I am not a stranger here because for a great many years I used to come down here. I haven't been here for seven years, but I am coming back—I have firmly resolved not to make this the last time. I have had a very wonderful rest and we have caught a great many fish.

"I am not going to attempt to tell you any fish stories and the only fly in the ointment on my trip has been that I have put on about 10 pounds. So that means among other duties which I shall have to perform when I get north is taking those 10 pounds off. I hope very much to come down here next winter and to see all of you and to have another wonderful 10 days or two weeks in Florida waters. Many thanks."

The audience roared its approval. Then Mr. Roosevelt beckoned again to Mayor Cermak, who came down the steps of the shell to the car. They shook hands warmly.

Shots Follow Their Greeting.

"Hello, there, Mr. Mayor. How are you?" Mr. Roosevelt called out, above the din. The two bent their heads together, to hold a few moments' conversation.

Suddenly two shots rang out. L. L. Lee, city manager of Miami, who had his arm linked in Mayor Cermak's at the moment, said the mayor sagged but he did not fall.

Mr. Cermak turned around slightly, looking for Ald. Bowler. Seeing him five feet behind, he called out, "I'm hit, Jim."

The President elect seemingly had not realized what had happened. A minute or two earlier the flashlights of news photographers had been booming. He may have thought the reports were more flashes. But when three more shots were fired he turned quickly toward the would be assassin.

Mr. Roosevelt's chauffeur started the car, slowly, intending to get out of range, but Ald. Bowler called out: "Mr. Roosevelt, Mayor Cermak is shot. Wait."

Take Cermak Into Auto.

The President elect ordered the driver to stop the car. He called to City Manager Lee and Ald. Bowler to help Mayor Cermak into the car. The mayor was half dragged across the few feet and both the President elect and Mayor Gantier moved closely together so that there would be room for Mayor Cermak to be seated beside them.

Then, with sirens screaming, but with a different purpose this time than to let people know their next President was approaching, the car sped about twenty blocks to the Jackson Memorial hospital.

Mr. Roosevelt insisted on going with the Chicago mayor to a room.

Talk in Hospital.

They conversed briefly.

Mayor Cermak said: "I wish you would be careful. The country needs you. You should not take any chances with the country in the frame of mind it is."

Mr. Roosevelt replied:

"We need you, and men like you, too."

After telling the mayor that he would return at eight o'clock tomorrow morning to see him, the President elect left the hospital.

The regular train to which Mr. Roosevelt's two special cars had been attached was held up, but finally the cars were disconnected and the President elect went back to the yacht for the night.

President Elect Roosevelt, after going to the Nourmahal, issued the following statement:

"I am deeply moved by the serious injuries inflicted upon my friends tonight and I am remaining in Miami to learn in the morning of their condition."

Tells of Seizing Gun.

During the excitement after the first shots, Mrs. W. F. Cross of Miami was the first to seize the assassin's gun. She was standing in the crowd. "Suddenly," she said later, "I saw a man right in front of me who pulled a pistol from his pocket and started aiming at the President elect. Mr. Roose- it had just finished his speech and was turning his head at the call of the photographers.

"I saw the man level the gun, it seemed to me, at Mr. Roosevelt's head and he fired one shot. I grabbed his arm and pushed it up in the air and he fired three more shots while I was holding his arm in the air.

"At this time a policeman took a running jump at the man and he struck me and all three of us fell on the ground."

The gunman's face was contorted as he struggled to get his weapon leveled again. He forced it downward and fired three more shots. Seemingly all of them took effect. It would have been miraculous if any of them had not for he was aiming directly at the group surrounding Mr. Roosevelt's car.

Gunman Taken; Talks.

Men grabbed at the gunman, and forcing him to the ground, began beating him about the head. A policeman with a blackjack belabored the assassin unmercifully until it seemed he would be killed. But though covered with bruises and bloody, he never lost consciousness.

He was hurried in a police car to police headquarters. There he revealed his name as Giuseppi Zangara. He told a disconnected tale of events leading to his attempt on President Elect Roosevelt's life.

At the jail where Zangara was held a crowd gathered about, but it was peaceful, and no concerted threatening moves were made. Earlier, while in the park, the cry came from many, "Kill him! Kill him!"

For a time there were reports that the gunman might have been a Chicago gangster sent down here to murder Mayor Cermak, but the subsequent developments showed that was not the case.

The reports gained some credence because Mayor Cermak arrived at Miami accompanied by a bodyguard of three Chicago detectives. This caused rumors that his life had been threatened by gambling and vice gang interests in Chicago.

Finger prints were to be sent to the Chicago police department for checking with the criminal identification records there.

Planned to See Farley.

Mayor Cermak came to Miami on Friday to confer with James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and to spend a vacation of several weeks. He was at his home during the day, and went with Ald. Bowler to the park about twenty minutes before Mr. Roosevelt's arrival.

Cermak had planned no more than to say hello to the President elect, and expected to take a train to Key West tonight, to catch a boat for Havana tomorrow morning. Yesterday he had telephoned members of his family in Chicago to come down to Florida. He had planned to return after a day's visit in Havana, to spend the rest of his vacation with his family here.

Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, was in Havana planning to be joined by Mayor Cermak Friday. He telephoned to Miami to inquire about the shooting.

CERMAK FRIENDS AND RELATIVES SPEED TO MIAMI

Mayor Cermak's relatives and many of his friends made plans to depart for Miami by rail or plane last night immediately on learning that he was shot.

Two of Mayor Cermak's sons-in-law were at Springfield when word of his shooting was flashed. They are Dr. Frank Jirka, director of the state department of health, and Senator Richey V. Graham, Democratic leader in the state senate. One of the mayor's daughters, Mrs. Floyd Kenlay was located at Chattanooga, Tenn., last night on a motor trip to Miami which started Tuesday.

Mrs. Kenlay was in the Read house in Chattanooga sending a telegram to her father when she heard bystanders talking of the assassination attempt and wounding of Mayor Cermak.

"My God, that's my father," she exclaimed. She tore up the unfinished message—which was to advise the mayor of her expected arrival—and placed a telephone call to Mrs. James B. Bowler, wife of the Chicago alderman who, with her husband, is in the mayor's party at Miami. Later Mrs. Kenlay prepared to leave on the 2:15 a. m. train for Atlanta, where she will board a plane for Miami.

Dr. Jirka telephoned to Maj. Reed Landis, chairman of the Illinois Aeronautical commission, at Glencoe, and asked him to send a chartered plane to Springfield to transport him, Senator Graham and Dr. Karl Meyer to the Florida resort. Dr. Meyer, head of the County hospital, was at Champaign at the time of the shooting.

Maj. Landis advised the group to go by train to Nashville, Tenn., where they could board a plane today. Immediately Dr. Jirka, Senator Graham, and William Haberkorn, sergeant of arms in the senate, left by motor for Evansville, Ind. They will board the Nashville bound train there. Dr. Meyer, who has attended the mayor on previous illnesses, boarded the train at Danville and will meet Dr. Jirka and the others today.

MRS. ROOSEVELT HOME WHEN TOLD OF MIAMI ATTACK

Had Just Returned from Address at Club.

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was speaking at the Warner club in West 44th street when the shooting took place. She left the club at 10:15 and reached the Roosevelt home in East 65th street about ten minutes later. She learned of the shooting then from Louis Howe, the President elect's secretary.

Mrs. Roosevelt took the news calmly. Her only comment was on learning that her husband had escaped injury:

"I am thankful."

The reports of the shooting that had reached Mr. Howe were rather vague.

It was learned at the Roosevelt home that the President elect has received no threatening letters. His mail, according to a member of the household, has been singularly free of the crank missives usually received by men in high office.

Mrs. Roosevelt did not change her plans after she had been assured that Mr. Roosevelt was safe. She prepared to leave Pennsylvania station on the Lehigh express for Utica, N. Y., where she is to speak at a home and farm week celebration tomorrow night.

HOOVER SENDS WIRE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—(AP)—President Hoover tonight expressed shock at the news from Miami concerning the shots fired at the reception for President Elect Roosevelt and immediately sent a message to the President elect saying: "I rejoice that you have not been injured."

Shortly before the President spoke the usual secret service guard of two men at the White House had been doubled in view of the Miami attempted assassination.

The President's statement, dictated to the Associated Press from the White House, follows:

"Together with every citizen I rejoice that you have not been injured. I shall be grateful to you for news of Mayor Cermak's condition."

The President had retired for the night when the word first was brought to him of what had happened. He arose at once to get details, which were relayed to him by his secretary, Theodore Joslin, who had been in touch with the Associated Press.

Mr. Roosevelt replied:

"The President, the White House, Washington, D. C.—I deeply appreciate your message. Mayor Cermak is resting, but his condition is still serious. I will wire you in the morning after I have been to the hospital. [Signed] "FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

JOHN N. GARNER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Speaker John N. Garner, Vice President elect, tonight said: I am gratified beyond words that the President elect is uninjured and that he will assume the administration of the government of the United States which is desired by the American people, as expressed in the overwhelming result of the November elections."

GOV. LEHMAN

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, a close personal friend of President Elect Roosevelt and his successor in the New York governorship, said tonight he was "deeply thankful that Mr. Roosevelt escaped all injury." "I am very grieved to hear that Mayor Cermak was injured," he said.

ALFRED E. SMITH

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Of the tragedy tonight at Miami, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith said:

"I am deeply shocked to learn such a thing could happen. My joy at learning that Gov. Roosevelt was not hit is tempered only by my distress at the misfortune of Mayor Cermak and the others."

Bandit Is Identified in Shooting of Policeman

Ray Blackmer, 32 years old, 4850 North Winchester avenue, arrested early yesterday after he had robbed the waitress and a customer in the Ravenswood restaurant, 4808 North Damen avenue, was identified last night as the assailant of Lincoln Park Policeman Edward Johnson, who was shot Sunday night when he interrupted the robbery of the Shop and Save grocery, 521 Diversey parkway.

Chicago Woman Witnesses Shooting; Tells Details

BY MRS. WALTER WRIGHT.

[Mrs. Wright, who lives at 6921 Owens avenue, is a former Chicago newspaper woman and the wife of the editor of the Police 1313 magazine. She witnessed the shooting.]

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The bullet which struck Mayor Cermak tonight was intended for President Elect Roosevelt and narrowly missed him. I was not more than 60 feet away from the central figures in this dramatic affair and saw it all.

MRS. WALTER WRIGHT.

There was a great crowd of perhaps 25,000 people in Bay Front park when the President elect arrived. He had been met at the dock where the yacht Nourmahal tied up by a crowd of dignitaries and was then driven to the brightly lighted park.

Roosevelt Stays in Car.

The President elect's car came in from the rear, or bay side, and was driven around the left of the band shell and drew up directly in front of the center of the shell. There was another car following Mr. Roosevelt's. This contained secret service men assigned to his protection.

Among the thirty or more noted visitors and local leaders on the platform was Mayor Cermak. He was seated in the front row on the platform. Mr. Roosevelt singled him out for greeting when he arrived. The President elect then spoke briefly, standing in the rear section of his car.

There were great cheers as he finished. Immediately Mayor Cermak rose from his seat and stepped down from the stand. Leaning over, he shook hands with Mr. Roosevelt. As the mayor turned around and moved away there was a startling interruption.

The Assassin Fires.

A man in about the fifth or sixth row of spectators stood up and began shooting. The mayor was only a few feet away from the car and about as near as Mr. Roosevelt to the man with the pistol. Neither was more than twenty feet from the man who fired.

There was a scene of indescribable confusion as the mayor fell and bullets continued to come from the weapon. Some one pushed Mr. Roosevelt down in the seat of his car. I think it was a camera man. Miss Margaret Kruis, who was struck by one bullet, had been talking to Marvin H. McIntyre, the President elect's press secretary. Several others were hurt also.

People standing near the short man with the pistol, who had on a khaki shirt, ran back. People in the rear, trying to see what had happened, crowded forward. There was a great crush for a few minutes. While it was in progress some one knocked down the would-be assassin and the secret service men seized him.

Roosevelt Is Calm.

Shouts of "Kill that man!" and "Don't let him get away!" rose everywhere in the crowd. I could see people pushing around the Roosevelt car and those nearest were waving their arms and urging him to drive away from the danger.

He shook his head and appeared to be calmer than any one else in the throng. Later I learned that he refused flatly to leave until Mayor Cermak was taken into his own car and hurried in it to the hospital. I went to the hospital later and the President elect was there, seeing to it that the mayor was given prompt treatment. The man who did the shooting was taken in the second car with the secret service men.

"It was almost a miracle that Mr. Roosevelt was not struck by at least one of the bullets.

STORY OF ALD. BOWLER

Ald. Bowler told the following story of the shooting:

"Mayor Cermak and I had gone to the park twenty minutes before the President elect was due to arrive, and we sat in the band shell together. When Mr. Roosevelt's car came along the President elect saw the mayor and called to him to come down.

"Mr. Cermak called back that he would wait until after Mr. Roosevelt had made his speech. Then the governor spoke, and he waited until the mayor came down from the platform to go to the side of the automobile.

"Almost the minute the mayor got there I heard two shots and, looking up, I saw the man in the crowd with the gun. A lady grabbed the man's hand and began to struggle with him, but he kept on shooting. Then I saw a policeman close in on him.

"I had been walking down toward the President elect's car to be with the mayor, and I saw him turn toward me.

Calls Out He Is Hit.

"'I'm hit,' he called to me and he started to sink. The car was moving away and I called to Roosevelt, 'Wait. Cermak is hit. Wait.'

"The car was stopped and two men on either side of the mayor walked him to the side of the car. The President elect insisted that the mayor come into the car and then I climbed on the rear bumper and rode along in that way to the hospital."

"The mayor told President Elect Roosevelt," said the alderman, "that he ought to stay out of crowds from now on; that there is no telling when a fanatic like this one will try the same kind of stunt.

"He is weak from loss of blood, but is conscious and the doctors hope to pull him through."

WHAT BOY SAW

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP)—David Whichard, a Western Union messenger boy, gave the following account of the shooting:

"I was right next to Mr. Roosevelt's car. This man was in the middle of the crowd over to the right of the President elect's car. After Mr. Roosevelt got through speaking he sat down in his car. This man started shooting just then. This fellow that was doing the shooting seemed to wait until Roosevelt finished. Mr. Broadnax was hit in the head and fell to his knees. He was standing right beside President Elect Roosevelt's car. Mrs. Gill was shot in the stomach. She was standing next to the park benches about fifty feet away from the fellow who was doing the shooting."

The messenger boy said he heard Mr. Roosevelt say:

MAYOR HARRISON SR. ASSASSINATED IN '93 DURING WORLD'S FAIR

Almost forty years ago an assassin's bullets found their target in an incumbent of the mayor's chair. The victim was genial, gray bearded Carter H. Harrison Sr. On the evening of Oct. 28, 1893, Mayor Harrison returned to his home after speaking before a meeting of mayors attending the world's fair. His doorbell was rung by Patrick Prendergast, a victim of a persecution mania, who thought he should have been corporation counsel. As Prendergast was led into the dining room of the home he fired three shots into his victim and fled. The mayor died within 15 minutes. His assassin was captured later and hanged.

THREE PRESIDENTS OF U. S., MANY FOREIGN RULERS ASSASSINATED

Three Presidents of the United States and a larger number of European rulers have been killed by political assassins within the memories of living men. Among these famous assassinations were those of:

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, President of the United States, April 14, 1865.

KING HUMBERT, of Italy, July 29, 1900.

PAUL DOUMER, president of France, May 6, 1932.

The assassins of Presidents Garfield and McKinley, as well as those of the majority of the foreign rulers, were members of the lunatic fringe of political thought, either obsessed by their political grievances or committed to the priniciples involving the murder of political leaders.

The assassination of President Lincoln differed somewhat from these in that it arose from the passions of the civil war, just then terminated. John Wilkes Booth, a headstrong and erratic actor and a southern sympathizer, organized and executed the murder conspiracy. Booth was shot to death while a fugitive.

President Garfield was shot in a railroad station by Charles J. Guiteau, a disappointed office seeker, whose radical tendencies, it was charged at the time, had been inflamed by attacks made upon the President by political opponents. Guiteau was executed.

Leon Czolgosz, the youth who wounded President McKinley fatally at the Buffalo exposition on Sept. 6, 1901, was an anarchist. He professed the view of that branch of radicals who believe in the assassination of rulers and persons exercising political authority. He also was executed.

DENTIST SLAYS WIFE AND SON IN SCHOOL, SELF

Downey, Cal., Feb. 15.—(AP)—A husband angered by a divorce complaint turned a Little Gallatin grammar school into a shambles today, shooting and killing his wife, their 8 year year old son and himself. Poor marksmanship saved the life of another son.

Twenty-five terrorized children and the teacher, Edith Unswerth, saw Dr. Vernon Blythe, 35, a Santa Ana dentist, slay Mrs. Eleanor Blythe and their son, Robert.

Students and teacher huddled in terror as the frenzied man left the school, fired three futile bullets at the older son, Vernon, as he fled from a motor car, and then turned the fatal six shooter on himself.

Blythe had been given a summons in a divorce suit filed yesterday.

HOW UNEXPIRED TERM OF MAYOR MAY BE FILLED

City officials last night looked up the law as to the procedure in case Mayor Cermak should succumb to his wound.

The Illinois statutes provide that during the temporary absence or disability of the mayor, the city council shall elect one of its own members as mayor pro tem. The alderman so elected would have full mayoralty powers.

If the vacancy is to exist for less than one year, the mayor pro tem shall fill out the full term. If, however, the vacancy is to exist for a year or more, then a special election is necessary to select a successor.

At the city hall reports last night suggested that the two aldermanic candidates likely to be considered for mayor pro tem, in case that becomes necessary, are Ald. John S. Clark of the 35th ward, and Ald. James Bowler of the 36th. Ald. Clark is now in Hot Springs, Ark. Ald. Bowler is with Mayor Cermak.

A special meeting of the council is expected to be called today, it was announced last night by Corporation Counsel Sexton.

YOUNG INSULL IS WITNESS AT SENATE INQUIRY

Utility Investments, Inc., Tale Unfolded.

BY JOHN HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The Egyptians were great pyramid builders and so was Samuel Insull.

But the Egyptians built their pyramids smaller and smaller, the higher they got. Samuel Insull built his utilities pyramid bigger and bigger.

For example, how $11,762,068 was built into a shaky structure of $36,426,000 was the story told today before the senate stock exchange committee by Samuel Insull Jr., who helped his father build the paper pyramids that later were to collapse.

It was the story of the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., that went into the record today in the words of a young man, pink cheeked, naïve, sometimes boyishly eloquent, whose oftenest repeated phrase was "my father."

Sticks Up for Father.

He ran the words together with a glib elision that spoke of long habit and made it sound like "m'father." Or sometimes it was "m'father 'n' mother," or "m'family."

He stuck up for the father, who is a fugitive from justice in Greece. He stuck up for himself.

"I don't think you can just saw off the transaction at any one time and say a fellow got a benefit which he did not exercise when he has stuck with the ship and gone down with it," he said, and the smooth, good natured face strained into lines of earnestness.

But there the figures were, and the senators around the committee table and Ferdinand Pecora, committee attorney, were more interested in the manipulations of stocks and dollars than in the sentiments of a young man who recalled his school days and events that happened "when I was just a kid."

Dawes and Young to Testify.

They were interested, too, in getting along to two star witnesses who are expected to testify tomorrow. One is former Vice President Charles G. Dawes. The other is Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric company. A third witness the committee is anxious to put on the stand is Paul H. Davis, president of the Chicago Stock exchange. For one of the things the senators would most like to know is how Insull Utility Investments stock, which had back of it utilities securities at the rate of only $7.54 a share, could be listed to open on the market at $30 a share.

The Insulls—father, mother, son, and Martin J. Insull, the uncle—took 764,200 shares of Utility Investments common when the corporation was organized in December, 1928. They put up for it stock of Insull operating and holding companies worth $8,752,468 at the market value of Jan. 11, 1929.

Defends His Family.

It was when he told this that young Insull broke in with his first words of defense. He and his family still had an investment of $8,523,658 at the time of the crash, he said.

"That's the basis of my statement when I say that my father and mother and myself did not unload," he declared and looked around in search of an answering sympathy on the faces of Senator Norbeck [Rep., S. D.], committee chairman; Senator Fletcher [Dem., Fla.], Senator Blaine of Wisconsin, and Senator Brookhart of Iowa, the radical lame ducks.

In addition to these shares, Samuel Insull Sr. contracted to dispose of 250,000 shares of common at $12. These were the shares that went to the so-called "favored list" with its numerous prominent and political names.

Asked About Favored List.

"Do you know of any persons named as being persons holding public office at that time?" asked Mr. Pecora, passing to young Insull a copy of the favored list.

Mr. Insull found the name of Samuel A. Ettelson, former corporation counsel and one time Insull attorney. Then he looked up from his diligent perusal and inquired:

"Would a general in the national guard be regarded as a public officer?"

The name was that of Lieut. Gen. of Militia Milton J. Foreman. The committee considered him hardly a public official.

Mr. Insull did not know that South Trimble was the name of the present clerk of the house of representatives.

Aid of McEnroe Enlisted.

Philip J. McEnroe, treasurer of Utility Investments, and John F. O'Keefe, private secretary to the senior Insull, were called into consultation to see whether they were quicker at recognizing public officers. One of them pointed.

"O, no, that's the chauffeur," said Young Insull.

Some 45,000 of the $12 shares went to Halsey, Stuart & Co. and other shares were sold them, bringing their allotment up to 57,000 shares. The company was also given options to purchase some 600,000 shares at $12 or $15. This was their reward, said Mr. Insull, for underwriting the $6,000,000 of Utility Investments debentures which also were issued.

In addition to the common stock, the Insulls also took 40,000 shares of preferred stock, which gave them the right to buy 200,000 shares of common at $15 a share.

Put Up $11,762,068.

In all, it was shown, the Insull family, Halsey, Stuart & Co., and others of the favored group, held on Jan. 17, 1929, the day the stock was listed, common stock or options for which they had put up $11,762,068.

The stock opened at $30, giving the outstanding shares a worth of $36,426,000 and its holders a paper profit of $24,663,932.

Between the witness and the attorney, the story of the stock's rise to 149 on Aug. 2, 1929, was told.

"And it didn't go below its opening price all during that year," remarked Mr. Pecora.

"But, of course," said Mr. Insull, very seriously, "there was a severe break in all kinds of stocks in 1929."

A gale of laughter came from the audience.

Mr. Pecora sought to show that Insull Sr. had not signed the agreement with reference to the 250,000 $12 shares until assured that the stock would open at a substantial profit. The signing did not take place until that Jan. 17, when the stock went on the market. But Mr. Insull said that the agreement had been reached orally with Halsey, Stuart & Co. several days before.

"And we always felt that when we agreed verbally that we were bound," he said.

He was surprised, he said, that the stock had opened so high. He had thought it might reach $20 or $25 a share in five or six months.

Questioned again as to whether the agreemen might have been signed before the market opened at nine o'clock the morning of Jan. 17, 1929, he described some of the working habits of the Insull family.

"I usually got to my place of business at 20 minutes past eight," he said.

"My father got down about seventhirty. My uncle lived out in the country and got down about quarter of nine."

On Dec. 31, 1929, he had exercised the option that went with his share of preferred stock to buy 29,640 shares of common at $15. The stock was then selling at $65. He explained that he and his father and uncle were given this privilege of purchase because they had put up utilities stocks which had been paying them $6 a share, while the preferred stocks bore a lower dividend rate for the first five years.

"The gross difference to me was about $59,000 in hard cash," said young Insull. "And I got this right to make what later turned out to be a very valuable profit, but at the time it was given in soft cash; in other words, it might or might not have been a profit."

"You got something which was worth $1,800,000 at the market for less than 25 per cent of that amount," said Mr. Pecora.

Calls It Paper Profit.

The witness protested that it was a paper profit only. He had held the stock.

"And today I am busted," he said. "It is not worth anything to me today to try and pay my debts with."

But he could have sold, the attorney suggested.

"No, I could not, sir," replied young Insull. "Although I might have legally done so, morally I felt bound, and I lived up to that obligation. That is why I am where I find myself today, financially."

"It does not take courage to stick with a sinking ship if you don't know it's going to sink," interposed Senator Norbeck.

Choice of Insull Trustee Contested; Up to U. S. Court

The fight for election of a trustee for the bankrupt Insull Utility Investments, Inc., was resumed yesterday before Garfield Charles, federal referee in bankruptcy, with the lawyers in the case once more stirring up strife that brought the issue to no decision.

Attorneys representing a half dozen protective committees, who on Tuesday lost their battle before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson for confirmation of their nominee, Calvin Fentress, came back before the referee and proposed the name of W. W. Wheelock, former state representative and once receiver for the Chicago and Alton railroad.

Former Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson, who won the fight for disqualification of Mr. Fentress before both the referee and Judge Wilkerson, declared himself opposed to Mr. Wheelock or to any other candidate that counsel for the protective committee might propose.

Hurl Harsh Words at Ettelson.

Harsh epithets were hurled at Mr. Ettelson by his opponents as he renewed his charge that Samuel Insull and his former bankers had "framed" the Insull receiverships and that counsel for the protective committees remained secretly in league with the banks whom they are suing for $40,000,000.

Having no candidate of his own, Mr. Ettelson proposed that the referee, himself, name the trustee, but Mr. Charles declined, insisting that an election be held. Ettelson's suggestion gained some support among the Insull investors, two hundred of whom were crowded in the courtroom.

"Why not leave it to the referee?" shouted Investor Louis Maxim. "Why leave it to this clique of lawyers here? They've all been after me to deposit my bonds, asking a $2 fee on each $1,000 deposited, when they know they can also charge up to 20 per cent of all they collect."

Proposes Prof. Cox of U. of C.

"I'll give you a trustee," declared Fred R. Tuerk, University of Chicago student and owner of $2,000 in Insull debentures. "We hear charges and counter charges here and we don't know whom to vote for. I nominate Prof. Sanford B. Cox, professor of finance at the University of Chicago."

"I'm a former Insull bond salesman," confessed another investor, William B. Hale. "I sold $500,000 of the debentures to the public and I feel morally responsible. But I believed in the stuff myself and bought $2,000 of it. We've had enough of professional receivers here. Let's elect Prof. Cox."

The referee called for a vote. When the tally was counted the clerk announced $3,384,000 of debentures for Mr. Wheelock and $20,000 for Prof. Cox. Counsel for the protective committees had voted all but the $20,000 and Mr. Ettelson announced he was challenging them all on the ground that in soliciting for deposit of the bonds the lawyers had violated professional ethics.

In the end the referee declined to rule on Mr. Ettelson's charge that the votes of the protective committees were disqualified. He would certify the record to the District court so that Judge Wilkerson might again pass on the issues raised. The case is expected to come before Judge Wilkerson some time within a week.

CALL ELECTION ON LINCOLN PARK REFUNDING BONDS

The Lincoln park commissioners yesterday appointed Joseph F. Clark to succeed John Ullrich as superintendent of employment, appointed a park civil service commission and passed an ordinance providing for a referendum Feb. 28 on the proposed $2,787,000 refunding bond issue, authorized recently by the state legislature.

A. D. Plamondon, president of the board; Commissioner Frank Bobrytzke and the new employment superintendent compose the civil service commission.

Mr. Plamondon pointed out that, although the refunding bond issue, if approved by the voters, will retire the principal amounts of bond issues coming due this and next year, the board faces a serious problem in meeting interest payments. The board has sufficient cash to meet a payment of $31,500 due March 1, but must depend on receiving tax money from the state treasurer to meet the next payment of $131,625 of interest due in April.

Issuance of 1932 tax warrants to provide funds with which to pay long overdue salaries of employés and current bills was discussed by the board.

U. S. JURY OPENS INSULL UTILITY INQUIRY TODAY

Mail Fraud Indictments to Be Sought.

A federal grand jury investigation of the affairs of Corporation Securities company, in which indictments will be sought charging Samuel Insull Sr., Samuel Insull Jr., Martin J. Insull, and probably others, with using the mails to defraud, will be opened today. This was disclosed at the Federal building yesterday with the service of 25 subpœnas, most of which are returnable today.

Determination of District Attorney Dwight H. Green to proceed with the grand jury action culminates a six months' investigation by fifteen agents of the United States bureau of investigation, whose report was submitted yesterday. Evidence to be presented at this time will be limited to the one Insull investment trust, but evidence concerning other Insull companies, particularly Insull Utility Investments, Inc., will be presented later, federal authorities said.

Public Invests 150 Millions.

Corporation Securities was the last company founded by Insull during his desperate struggle with Cyrus Eaton in 1929 and 1930 for control of the shares of his operating companies. In this concern the public invested $150,000,000, and when it was thrown into bankruptcy only a few thousand dollars in municipal bonds and tax anticipation warrants remained.

The federal agents are said to have reported two instances of fraudulent use of the mails—misrepresentation of the total investments by the company in Insull operating concerns and the pledging of assets to secure bank loans, in violation of debenture covenants to limit such pledging to the security back of the debentures.

Subpœnas duces tecum, calling upon them to produce their books, were obtained for Paul H. Davis, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, and Frank A. Racine, an official of the Utilities Securities company, an Insull subsidiary. Grand jury subpœnas were issued for twenty-three others.

The investigators accumulated several truck loads of records, including photostatic copies of the company's books and those of Halsey, Stuart & Co., the bond house which handled the Insull financing. The agents estimated that more than 250 pages of grand jury testimony would be taken.

Quiz Insull Officials.

The following persons, officials of various Insull companies and others having information about their operations, were questioned by agents of the bureau of investigation, headed by Melvin A. Purvis, during the inquiry:

A. P. Arsenault, bookkeeper of Corporation Securities; William R. Irwin, auditor of the company; William H. Culver, publicity director of Commonwealth Edison company; John F. O'Keefe, secretary, Insull Utility Investments, Inc.; P. J. McEnroe, vice president, Insull Utility Investments; Fred A. Scheel, vice president of Utilities Securities company; Charles R. Whitworth, resident partner, Touche, Niven & Co., auditors; F. W. Mead of Halsey, Stuart & Co.; William H. Horan, salesman for Insull Utility Investments; John H. Gulick, vice president, Commonwealth Edison company; B. J. Murname, Arthur Young & Co., auditors; Paul Jenkins, salesman for Utilities Securities company; Edward J. Doyle, president of the Commonwealth Edison company; W. A. Pennington, assistant secretary of Utilities Securities company, and G. A. Kemp, assistant secretary of Utilities Securities company.

Prosecutors Before Jury.

District Attorney Green and his first assistant, William J. Froelich, will present the evidence. They went before the jurors yesterday afternoon, presumably to inform them that the Insull investigation would be started today.

Besides Davis and Racine, for whom subpœnas duces tecum were issued, the complete list of grand jury witnesses includes:

Irwin, Arsenault, Walter L. Darfler of Halsey Stuart & Co., Mrs. Eda D. Flagg, Anna K. Haverson, Mrs. W. F. Porter, Mrs. E. Hawkins, Mrs. R. A. Ringland, Gulbrand Sether, Soren Sorensen, Lawrence Atwood, Rose Daly, D. J. Eisenberg, John J. Doyle, Otto Cohrs, Nancy Carlquist, George E. Bond, Robert Davis, Mary G. Tansley, Fred Nickel, Anna G. Fall, Al A. Jones and Mary R. Jones.

RELIEF EXPENSE SOARS AS TAX INCOME FALLS

45 Million Public Funds Spent Here in Year.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Relief of the idle has now become one of the greatest problems of the taxpayer. Relief expenditures of public funds in Cook county, private funds not included, reached the sum of $45,460,024 in the year ended Feb. 1. For 1933 the estimated need is placed at almost double, or 80 million dollars.

Thus far the bulk of the money has come through borrowings from the state and federal governments. The huge sums involved have not yet been reflected in the tax bill, but some day they have to be paid back through taxation. The funds are distributed to the counties by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, created a year ago by the legislature.

No less than $51,243,228 of money borrowed from state or national agencies was provided by the commission for Illinois counties in the year ended Feb. 1. Cook county got 90 per cent. For 1933 the commission estimates that 92 million dollars will be needed in Illinois for relief. It would have the spending of close to 100 million dollars under its control.

Tax Comparison Is Given.

An idea of what these vast sums mean may be gained from the fact that in comparison Illinois last year paid $93,527,973 in federal internal revenue taxes, which was 6.5 per cent of the country's $1,420,100,000 federal tax bill. Illinois stood fourth largest in the list of states.

The tremendous growth of the relief load on public funds, while perhaps undetected as yet by the ordinary tax paying citizen, has led to a growing sentiment that one vital problem now is the avoidance of possible waste in the giving of relief to victims of the depression.

An astonishing spectacle is disclosed in the tax situation. At one end income is drying up, due largely to high cost of government, until less than 60 per cent of Cook county's tax bill is being collected. At the other end borrowings are piling up that must later be paid for out of income.

Higher Than Budget Figure.

The $45,460,000 of state and federal borrowed funds spent in Cook county on relief in the last year is larger than the corporate budget estimate of the city of Chicago for this year, which calls for $43,032,000 to be raised by taxes. And of this only $38,728,000 is expected to be collected.

The Emergency Relief commission does not administer relief directly, but operates through local established relief agencies in the counties in Illinois. In Cook county the family relief is being concentrated in the Cook county bureau of public welfare. In normal times the bureau used to spend about $50,000 a month. Now it is running $5,000,000 a month. Its normal staff of 150 people has been expanded to a staff of 2,800. Of these, Joseph L. Moss, director, reports, about 1,250 are social workers with some college training.

United States Is Principal Source.

This year the federal government has been the greatest source of relief funds. The borrowing from state and federal agencies for relief purposes in Illinois from Feb. 6, 1932, to Feb. 1, 1933, are tabulated as follows, the figures being compiled from the commission reports:

State funds, from $20,000,000 state bond issue [To be paid back by counties from gas tax money allotments in 20 years.]	$18,750,000
From Reconstruction Finance corporation [federal] [This is to be paid back through the federal government withholding future road grants to Illinois, starting in 1935.]	25,723,228
From R. F. C. [for Cook county alone] [A direct loan to Cook county, secured by part of the $17,000,000 county relief bonds issued under act of legislature. These will be paid up through taxes.]	6,770,000
Total	$51,243,228

Of this Cook county got about 90 per cent, or $45,460,024. In addition Cook county got for this month $5,482,000 as a direct loan from the R. F. C., putting up more county bonds as security. Thus in a year and a month Cook county has borrowed for relief from state and federal agencies a total of $50,942,000.

This is a larger sum than the corporate budget for the City of Chicago [from taxation] in 1933, which was $50,293,534.

These figures deal with public money, and do not include the $10,500,000 private relief fund of 1931-1932, nor the private relief fund of almost $5,000,000 this year, nor the other private funds expended by private relief organizations.

As the observer circulates among the social workers one runs into a spirit among some of them that the federal treasury is inexhaustible—a feeling not expressed by the directors and managers—and that the taxpayers will not have to pay back, as the government will take the debt out by witholding funds for state aid projects. But the federal state aid money itself comes from taxes.

As to the manner in which tax collections and borrowings are traveling at a staggering pace in opposite directions, a few comparative figures tell an interesting story.

$220,000,000 Delinquent Taxes.

In Cook county the slump in the incomes of the public has been such that no less than $220,000,000, almost a quarter of a billion dollars, is delinquent on the tax bills of 1928, 1929, and 1930.

The failure to pay the full tax load has been increasing at a rapid rate. On the Cook county tax bill [including all governments in the county, and the state tax—all but the federal] the delinquency for the bill of 1928 was 15 per cent; for 1929, 27 per cent; for 1930, 42 per cent. Thus of the 1930 tax bill, collection of which was due last year, only 58 per cent has thus far been collected.

The current Cook county tax bill for 1931 is about $265,000,000. The first installment on the real estate taxes is due March 1 when $100,000,000 will be payable. County authorities forecast that not more than 35 to 40 per cent will be paid on the penalty date, despite the fact that the burden on real estate has been reduced from 85 per cent of the total to 68 per cent, by putting more personal property on the assessment rolls. The personal property tax is due May 1.

Total Tax Bill Reduced.

The delinquencies are growing, despite also a reduction in total tax bill. The 1930 bill was the peak one—calling for the collection of 291 million dollars in Cook county. The 1931 bill is about 25 millions less. Estimates are that the 1932 tax bill in Cook county will be about 35 million less than that of 1931, and 1933 will be 50 million smaller than that of 1931.

This projected saving of 50 million dollars in Cook county's tax bill in the next two years' taxes is already more than wiped out by the borrowings of $50,942,000 from state and federal agencies for relief work in Cook county in a little more than a year.

The most ever actually collected in Cook county to run all the governments in the county and to pay the state tax was on the 1927 tax bill, collected in 1928, when it ran $199,000,000. This was at the top of the boom.

Her appointment as assistant director of public welfare was sent to the senate today and confirmed with that of William W. Hart of Benton, chairman of the Franklin county central committee, as secretary of the commerce commission. Hart replaces Julius Johnson and Mrs. Kay succeeds Mrs. Mary L. Silvis of Rock Island.

Lieut. Gov. Donovan completed the personnel of the mine investigating commission by the appointment of three senators, Clinton L. Ewing [Rep., Douglas], Louis O. Williams [Dem., Clinton], and W. E. A. OF C. REPORT ASKS STEPS TO CUT RELIEF COST Wants Nonpartisan Board to Direct Work.

A report containing criticisms and recommendations as to the operation of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission was sent to the county board yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce. The report, based on a four months' survey conducted by the association, was referred to the public service committee for consideration.

"The sums that have been spent on relief are enormous," the report says under the heading, "Conclusions and Recommendations." "The amount now being spent in Illinois exceeds the entire cost of operating the state government.

Want Nonpartisan Board.

"In view of these grave facts, it is recommended that a bill be sponsored for an act that will establish a relief commission made up of a small number of men, not more than five, not connected with any party organization. This is the first and all important need to avoid the confusion which now exists.

"The relief commission should also be required to establish an adequate organization made up of competent persons chosen on the sole basis of their fitness and adopt policies and procedures for the application of relief money in such a way that each dollar will be made to go as far as possible in preventing serious privation.

Urge Reduction of Costs.

"The commission should also be required to develop a plan for making constructive use of the time, skill, and labor of unemployed workers in order that the maximum return may be secured for the benefit of the community through the reduction of present and future governmental and social costs, and that at the same time the social and economic value of the beneficiaries may be conserved by sustaining their self respect and morale. The significance of this latter recommendation is far reaching."

The report urged in conclusion the extreme necessity for the "greatest possible measure of efficiency and economy in relief administration," noting that "no community has ever been faced with an immediate problem of similar magnitude."

Senate Clinic on Depression Listens to Suggested Cures

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—America, ill with depression, today tumbled restlessly about in bed over at the senate finance committee's clinic as visiting physicians solemnly agreed that the patient was pretty sick, that the blowing of government extravagance must be reduced, that the peace of a balanced budget must be obtained, that the pulse of national credit must be steadied.

But when the senate family doctors asked, "Just exactly what would you do?" the specialists began to talk Latin.

Which made the senators mad.

"Look here," Senator Barkley [Dem., Ky.] shot back at Myron Taylor, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, "you business men come here and blame us for spending federal funds and yet it was you business men who urged us to vote money for the Reconstruction Finance corporation. You fellows told us it would prevent bank failures, help business and all that."

Taylor for R. F. C.

"I am in favor of the R. F. C.," said Mr. Taylor.

"Well I'm sorry I voted for it," suddenly confessed Senator Reed, the Pennsylvania Republican. He said it casually enough, but every senator at the table looked up, surprised. Senator Couzens [Rep., Mich.], long time foe of the R. F. C. nodded vigorously.

"I thought it was good when I voted for it," Senator Reed went on. "Now I see that it was merely postponing the cleaning up of the sore."

Then Senator La Follette [Rad., Wis.] put in that he was anxious to balance the budget, but that he was "sick and tired" of all the talk about the "psychology cure."

"I'm a realist," he shouted, with many a gesture, "and I'm weary of being told to balance the budget while we're still on the toboggan going 60 miles an hour. Furthermore, if the national income decreases this year as much as it did last year any estimates on a budget will be just as cock-eyed as they were last year."

On Advising Thrift.

A little earlier in the clinic Jackson Reynolds, president of the First National bank of New York, told everybody in the senate sickroom that Uncle Sam ought to live as prudently and thriftily as an individual lives—within his income. He said he always had.

"That wasn't so difficult for you," retorted Senator Barkley. "You were the boss of your house. But don't you know that there are many heads, too many heads in a government, to make that easy?"

Nor did it seem so sure a remedy to Senator Barkley, he pointed out, when he remembered that the national budget had been nicely balanced during our boom time—and "look what happened."

Mr. Reynolds stuck to his point. He based faith on the healing value of a balanced budget, he said, on his knowledge of the desperate things that happened in recent years when we failed to balance the national budget.

Everybody Has a Cure.

For the rest, it was the old case of everybody having a cure for a cold. Both Reynolds and Taylor opposed any tampering with the currency; Mr. Renee Leon, monetary expert from New York, advocated a monetization of silver and suggested the purchase of 400 million ounces or more of it by the treasury and the issuance of silver certificates.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, in a letter sent the committee, favored cancellation of war debts. John W. Davis, 1924 Democratic presidential candidate, in a message declining to appear before the committee, scoffed at opiates for this case and advised six surgical operations: Balance the budget by economy and, possibly, a sales tax; reduce veterans' appropriations; revise tariffs; readjust debts; repeal the 18th amendment; consolidate or abolish government bureaus.

RIOTERS BREAK COUNCIL DESKS IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—More than 100 persons broke up chairs, tipped desks, flung cuspidors, brandished clubs, and exchanged blows with police and attendants, breaking up a meeting of the Los Angeles city council this afternoon.

Twenty persons were hurt, including Police Captain William Hynes, Leo Gallagher, attorney for liberal and radical groups, and 80 city detectives. All were treated for bruises, cuts, kicks and bites. Ezra Chase and Basil Dell, radical leaders, and two others were arrested.

The riot was dubbed a "soviet demonstration" by Capt. Hynes of the police anti-Red squad, and Hynes said, "We have information that agitators with soviet connections took part in arranging it."

The riot began when the council referred to its police and fire commission objections to a raid conducted by Hynes and his squad Feb. 11 on the John Reed clubhouse in Hollywood.

IDLE CAMP OUT IN SEATTLE CITY HALL; ASK DOLE

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 15.—(AP)—More than 2,000 idle obstinately prepared for an indefinite stay in the city hall today, saying they would not leave until their relief demands were granted.

A committee planned to go to Olympia, where the state legislature is in session, to protest abolition of the King county dole system and present requests for jobs, groceries, free light, water and gasoline.

It was as queer an assemblage of the discontented as the Pacific northwest has ever seen. They sang, played pinochle, swapped stories, "bummed" cigarets and handed out sandwiches to women and children who had slept in the marble corridors all night.

Some tried to sing the "Internationale," "Solidarity," and other communist songs, bu they didn't know the words.

REVAMPED FARM ALLOTMENT BILL SENT TO SENATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—A domestic allotment plan of farm relief, confined to wheat and cotton and containing no limitation on acreage or production, was reported out to the senate today by the senate agricultural committee.

Five of the seven commodities were stricken from the measure as it passed the house. These were hogs, tobacco, rice, peanuts and butter fat. The provisions for defining pre-war parity between farm and industrial commodities were simplified and amended. And benefits under the present bill would be paid to cotton and wheat farmers without any concurrent check on their production.

As now written, the measure is largely the work of Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], chairman of the senate committee. It was agreed to in committee by a vote of 11 to 4.

The measure depends upon a tax to be levied on the processors of wheat and cotton, out of which there is to be paid a benefit to the producer sufficient to bring the price for that portion of the commodity domestically consumed up to the price paid before the war.

Pre-war prices to producers were 88.4 cents for wheat and 12.4 cents for cotton. On the basis of present prices this will mean a wheat benefit of 55.5 cents per bushel and a cotton benefit of 6.5 cents per pound.

The bill would affect the cotton and wheat crops of 1933.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Saves $2. No Cooking! So Easy!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a purer, more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs about one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up obstinate coughs.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

Its quick action in loosening the phlegm, clearing the air passages, and soothing away the inflammation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

ADMIRAL TELLS HOW MAINE SANK 35 YEARS AGO

Cluverius Is Last Officer of Ship Still Active.

Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, the only surviving officer of the Maine now on active duty, told yesterday of his experience on the night 35 years ago when the battleship was sunk by an explosion in the harbor at Havana. Two officers and 264 enlisted men were killed in the explosion on Feb. 15, 1898, that precipitated the Spanish-American war. Admiral Cluverius, now commandant of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, was a junior officer on the Maine.

"On Jan. 21 the Maine arrived at the Havana harbor," Admiral Cluverius said, "to protect American interests. Feeling was running high between Spain and the United States because of the Cuban revolution.

Vital Parts Carefully Inspected.

"A close watch was kept to keep unauthorized persons off the ship, and careful inspections were made of the vital parts of the vessel.

"On the night of Feb. 15 I had just been relieved as junior officer of the watch, having made my inspection to see that all was clear. I went into the wardroom and from there to my berth. I heard a sound of a gun being fired forward. This was followed almost immediately by a terrific explosion, which later proved to be the principal forward magazine of the ship. The effects were felt immediately, and the ship started sinking by the bow.

"The sight is scarcely describable. The entire forward portion of the ship had disintegrated, the middle part had doubled back on itself, a fire was burning fiercely amidships, and the ship was sinking. We tried with no success to crawl forward and free some of the men pinioned beneath fallen debris.

"When all had been done that could be done, Capt. Sigsbee and the rest of us left the ship for a boat.

266 of 328 Men Lost.

"We had lost 266 of 328 men. A few of us were retained in the harbor to search for bodies and to aid the court of inquiry. What we found was substantiated years later when army engineers removed what was left of the ship from the waters of the harbor. There was never any doubt that the initial explosion came from without the ship.

"I am the last in the active list of officers aboard the Maine. Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor of Chicago and Lake Forest is the daughter of George Blow, my senior division commander, who escaped from the ship but since has died."

STILL OWNER AND HIJACKERS HELD TO FEDERAL JURY

The story of a plot by his son and son-in-law to hijack the still of Mike LaPota at 3339 West 66th place, which was frustrated by the arrival of prohibition agents who raided the same still, was told yesterday to United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker.

He held LaPota, his son, Mike Jr., his son-in-law, William J. Kolb, formerly a probationary policeman, and three others to the grand jury for violations of the prohibition act. The others held were Edward Sistecky, former athlete at St. Viator's college, and Charles Oakley and his son, Harry, the still tenders.

According to Assistant District Attorney Eugene A. Tappy, the younger LaPota, Kolb and Sistecky plotted to hijack the still. Their hijacking, aided by three other men, was a success, but before they got away prohibition agents raided the place. In the fray which followed Agent William J. Connors was shot in the leg and Sistecky received a fractured skull, broken nose and broken arm.

Kolb appeared on the scene in uniform and asserted that he had come to the aid of the agents, but his part in the affair was discovered the following day and he was stripped of his star. Sistecky was defended yesterday by an attorney obtained for him by Deputy Marshal Steve Cusak, an acquaintance, who said that Sistecky had been drawn into the plot without realizing what it involved.

Seven Handbooks Raided; 300 Patrons Sent Home

Seven alleged hand books on the north side were raided by police yesterday. Over 300 patrons, one third of them women, were found in the places and were sent home after a lecture. The places raided, police said, were at 1036 North State street, 163 East Chicago avenue, 2433 Lincoln avenue, 3166 Broadway, 51 West Division street, 1 West Erie street, and 630 North State street.

MOTHER AND BABY BURN TO DEATH IN MORTON GROVE

Mrs. Mildred Baron, 30 years old, and her daughter, Joan Delores, 3½ years old, were burned to death yesterday in their living quarters above the Club Walton, a roadhouse at 5724 Dempster road, Morton Grove. Joseph Baron, caretaker of the club, was burned about the face and hands in a vain rescue attempt.

One fireman was slightly injured in the blaze, which caused damage of $7,000. Baron became hysterical after the fire and was attended by a physician at the home of a neighbor, Mrs. Elizabeth Kramer.

Police learned that Baron went to the basement at 10 a. m. yesterday after a son, Charles, 8 years old, had departed for school in Niles Center.

A defective flue is said to have caused flames from the newly stoked fire to start the blaze in the living quarters. Smelling smoke, Baron ran to the first floor. The fire had spread rapidly and he was cut off by flames when he tried to climb the wooden stairs to the living quarters. A neighbor noticed the flames and summoned fire departments from Morton Grove, Niles Center, and Evanston.

The bodies were recovered by firemen after the flames were under control.

apparently had made no effort to leave the third floor living quarters, was found close to the bed of Mrs. Baron.

The club, which had been closed since Labor day, is owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Tully, and was once operated by Ted Newberry, slain gangster.

Kills Employer in Home, Then Ends His Own Life

Frank Scarpino, owner of a house at 1213 South 53th court, Cicero, and William Becker, who was employed as a handy man about the place, were found shot to death in the basement of the home last night. Police believe that Becker killed his employer and then committed suicide. According to Scarpino's wife, the shooting followed a dispute over the heating of the house.

KEPT PRISONER BY HOUSEKEEPER, HE TELLS COURT

It required a writ of habeas corpus, issued by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude at the request of a friend to get Michael Kasper, 45 years old, free yesterday from his own home at 2918 Emerald avenue. He is reputed to be well to do.

Taken into court, Kasper charged that he had been kept prisoner for three weeks by his former housekeeper, Mrs. Minnie Satikas, also 45, and her children. They took away his clothes and kept him intoxicated, he charged.

Mrs. Satikas retorted, through an interpreter, that she is now Mrs. Kasper, having been married to Kasper on Jan. 26 in the Marriage court. Kasper, a widower, denied this.

The writ which got Kasper into court was obtained by Frank La Velle, a friend, on a petition filed by Attorney Aaron Eppstein. La Velle said his suspicions were aroused when he called on Kasper on several days and found him intoxicated and clad only in his underwear.

Says She's His Wife.

"Mrs. Satikas came to my house three weeks ago," Kasper testified. "Her two daughters and her sons-in-law were with her. She said that she wasn't going to go home at night any more, because she was my wife, and they all moved in with me.

"They gave me plenty of moonshine and took my clothes away from me when I said I wanted to leave.

Tells Story of Marriage.

Mrs. Satikas, through the interpreter, said that she went to the county building on Jan. 26, got a marriage license, and then took Kasper to the marriage court, where they were married. The ceremony, she said, was performed by Judge Harry McEwen of De Kalb county.

"I was pretty drunk," Kasper retorted, "but not that drunk."

U. S. SENATORS TO VOTE TODAY ON DRY REPEAL

Basic Law Change to Go to Conventions.

committee, some weeks ago. It provided that "congress shall have concurrent power to regulate or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors to be drunk on the premises where sold."

Explains His Vote.

"Once you legalize liquor as a practical proposition," Senator Borah said in explaining his vote to the senate and the galleries where many professional drys were congregated, "you cannot possibly supervise its sale. If we should execute such a power as herein prescribed we should be operating against the states that had legalized a saloon system."

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the senate, said tonight:

"I believe we can get the votes to put it through."

The roll call on placing repeal of the eighteenth amendment in first order of business was:

FOR VOTE ON REPEAL [58].

DEMOCRATS: Ashurst, Bailey, Bankhead, Barkley, Black, Bratton, Bulkley, Byrnes, Clark, Coolidge, Dill, Fletcher, Glass, Harrison, Hayden, Hull, Kendrick, King, Lewis, Logan, McKellar, Pittman, Robinson [Ark.], Swanson, Trammell, Tydings, Wagner, Walsh [Mass.], Walsh [Mont.].

REPUBLICANS: Austin, Barbour, Bingham, Blaine, Couzens, Davis, Glenn, Goldsborough, Grammer, Hale, Hastings, Hebert Johnson, Kean, Keyes, La Follette, McNary, Moses, Oddie, Patterson, Reed, Schuyler, Shortridge, Steiwer, Vandenberg, Walcott, Watson, and White.

FARMER-LABOR—Shipstead.

AGAINST VOTE ON REPEAL [23].

DEMOCRATS: Bulow, Caraway, Connally, Costigan, George, McGill, Neely, Russell, Sheppard, and Smith.

REPUBLICANS: Borah, Brookhart, Capper, Cutting, Dale, Dickinson, Hatfield, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, Robinson of Indiana, Smoot, and Townsend.

Those paired for or who announced they favored taking up the question were: Copeland, Long, Broussard, Wheeler, and Reynolds, Democrats, and Metcalf and Carey, Republicans.

Paired and announced against were: Gore, Stephens, Thomas, Oklahoma, Democrats, and Fess, Howell, Frazier, and Thomas, Idaho, Republicans. No announcements were made for the others not recorded.

ILL. SENATE VOTES REPEAL

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Both of the Illinois prohibition repeal bills went through the state senate today with votes to spare.

The result had been foreseen and if there was any surprise over the outcome it was that the discussion lasted half an hour.

But that brief argument did not go to the main issue. It concerned only the question whether there should be delay until the pending regulatory bills were further advanced so that they might be passed almost simultaneously with the repealers.

The two Ward bills, one repealing the search and seizure act and the other killing the state prohibition act, now go to the house of representatives for consideration. All the analysts say that the going there should be easier than in the upper chamber as it was only two years ago the senate went wet for the first time and the house has been wet for several sessions.

Seems Assured in House Also.

In each chamber a two-thirds vote is required—the 34 which was exceeded twice in the senate today and a total of 102 in the house. Almost all of the 80 Democrats in the house are wet and it is believed certain that at least 30 Republican votes will be cast for repeal there.

The first bill, the one repealing the search and seizure act, was passed in the senate by a vote of 40 to 6. The second one, rescinding the prohibition act, was passed 36 to 6, there being only a few shifts of votes across the columns.

Thirty-five senators, twenty-four of them Democrats, voted for both repealers. They were the following:

Five Die Hards.

There also were five who voted against both bills, three Republicans and two Democrats. They were Senators Barbour, Ewing, Lantz, Vogelsang, and Williams. Senator R. Wallace Karraker [Dem., Jonesboro] did not vote on either bill, recording himself as "present" both times his name was called.

Senator Harold G. Ward of Chicago led the fight for his bills and, in spite of a bit of quarrelsomeness, was thrown the solid backing of the Democratic majority under the leadership of Senator Richey V. Graham, president pro tem.

To write finis to the battle Ward made the parliamentary motion to reconsider each bill and in each instance the majority was voted down. This prevents reconsideration unless one or both come back from the house with amendments requiring concurrence. Such amendments are believed unlikely.

Sales Tax Bill Passes State Senate, 34-12; Goes to House

Small Bill Repealed

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—One of Len Small's pet measures—the quo warranto act protecting state officers from investigation and removal—was repealed almost unanimously by the Illinois house of representatives today. Thus a major campaign pledge of Gov. Horner was partially fulfilled.

The governor promised the electorate in his tour of the state that one of his first official acts would be to secure the repeal of this notorious measure. Small forced it through by making it an integral part of the battle waged for several years which involved his indictment, his trial on criminal charges and a civil suit which terminated when he surrendered $650,000 to the state.

"I am glad," said Leroy M. Green [Rep., Rockford], during the discussion today, "to see many of you members who voted to put this legislation on the books now voting to repeal it." Green led the fight against the law originally. He was one of the first to introduce a bill for its repeal this session. The bill received 119 votes. No one voted against it, but R. V. Libonati [Rep., Chicago] registered himself as "present."

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Under strong pressure from the administration and Democratic leaders the 3 per cent sales tax bill squeezed through to victory in the state senate today with 34 votes—just the number required for an emergency measure. Twelve votes were tallied against it and the remaining four members were absent.

Even proponents of this retail sales levy do not, however, regard their battle won. The struggle is now transferred to the house of representatives, where many downstate members have already indicated strong opposition and predict an engagement of major proportions. This will probably come next week.

Downstate Votes Won.

Today's victory was attributed to ardent missionary work carried on among ten downstate senators who last week refused to vote upon the bill. Seven were won over after a campaign which ended only this morning. Most of them come from border counties where citizens could, if they wished, cross the line and trade in other states.

Explanation of votes came almost without interruption when, after several false starts, the roll call finally began. The "aye" column filled gradually to the tune of fervid oratory until, almost at the end of the roll, the name of Roy C. Woods [Rep., Chicago] was reached. The bill then had 33 votes—one short of the two-thirds majority—and Woods proceeded to register what members jocularly call his "squeeze" vote.

Frequently in the past Woods has cast the deciding vote on hotly contested bills, because his name, save for that of Harry G. Wright [Rep., De Kalb] concludes the list.

Woods Surprises Them.

Members, especially first termers unaccustomed to this byplay, recalled that Woods had voted for the bill last week and assumed his stand was the same. They were considerably shocked, then, when they heard the following explanation.

"I was not in sympathy with this bill last week and I do not favor it now," Senator Woods began. "It is silly for this senate to keep sending bills over to the house for amendments when the amendments should be made here. We should take a few days' time and straighten them out before we pass them."

Announces His Decision.

Woods continued for several minutes, complaining about the bill's provisions, holding his actual vote until the last words. "However," he concluded finally, "I've decided to put all my eggs in one basket and vote with the governor. I vote 'aye.'" The downstaters relaxed abruptly and joined others in the smiles which always accompany the Woods' "act."

The votes were then counted to show that the Cook county bloc had voted as a man in favor of the sales tax, with the assistance of many downstate followers of Minority Leader Richard J. Barr [Rep., Joliet], long time "boss" of the senate Ir. Republican times.

Senate Roll Call on Bill.

FOR THE BILL—34.

REPUBLICANS—Barbour, Barr, Benson, Carlson, Huebsch, Lantz, Leonardo, Mason, Paddock, Roberts, Serritella, Woods—12.

AGAINST THE BILL—12.

REPUBLICANS—Baker, Ewing, Gunning, Searcy—4.

Four Senators Absent.

Senators Harry C. Boeke [Dem., Freeport], Charles H. Thompson [Rep., Harrisburg], Mark A. Penick [Dem., Quincy], and Wright were absent. The seven senators who voted "present" last week but favored the bill today were: Carl Behrman [Dem., Peoria], Martin R. Carlson [Rep., Moline], Dr. W. L. Finn [Dem., Iuka], W. H. Hickman [Dem., Paris], R. Wallace Karraker [Dem., Jonesboro], Simon E. Lantz [Rep., Congerville], and Louis O. Williams [Dem., Clinton].

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Finley J. Shepard, adopted son of Finley J. Shepard, financier, and Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard, obtained a license in Yonkers to wed Miss Anna L. Sheldon of Yonkers. Shepard, who gave his age as 22, attended the Scarborough school and Brown university. He said he had no occupation. His foster mother is the daughter of the late Jay Gould. Miss Sheldon said she was 19 years old. The couple said they plan to be married next Tuesday.

ROBBERS SLAY BOOKMAKER IN A LOOP HOLDUP

Three gunmen entered the offices of a racing handbook in room 909 of the Mallers building, 5 South Wabash avenue, late yesterday afternoon and after lining up about twenty patrons of the place shot and killed the operator, John Merck, 42 years old. They escaped with a roll of money taken from Merck's pockets after he fell with a bullet through the heart.

Bandit Fires Two Shots.

Bets were being taken when the bandits arrived. Merck, who was deaf, was in a small office off the betting room and apparently did not know they had entered. As he stepped out behind a counter that separated bettors from bet takers, one of the trio, startled, shot twice.

Then, as the bookmaker dropped, the man who had fired vaulted over the counter and swiftly searched his pockets and a cash drawer.

Following the shooting the three men fled into the hall and down an elevator. Then, running to the street, they got into a Checker taxicab and were driven away. A little later one of the handbook patrons ran out and notified a traffic policeman at the corner of the shooting. By this time the cab was more than a block away and pursuit was ineffectual.

Questioned by Police.

Among those questioned by Sergt. Joseph Hackss of the detective bureau and Sergt. John O'Connor of the central police were Edward Keuller, 5051 Kenmore avenue, who said he took bets for Merck, and Samuel Miller, 541 Wellington avenue, wire operator. They said that no attempt was made to rob any one but Merck.

The handbook, it was said, had been in operation about two months. The door bore the name of the A. P. Sales company. Merck, according Keuller, was a bachelor and lived at the Howard hotel, State and Kinzie streets.

A bank book found in one of his pockets, showed that he had $3,190 on deposit in a loop bank. The police learned that he had been an independent bookmaker for more than a year.

EXPLANATION: All cigarette tobaccos are treated with heat. But it is not from "heat treatment" that a cigarette gets flavor and mildness.

Mildness, flavor, throat-ease—all come from the use of costly, ripe tobaccos.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, more expensive tobaccos than any other popular brand.

NEW POSTOFFICE DEDICATED; TO SAVE MILLIONS

Postmaster General Brown at Ceremonies.

The federal government's new postoffice, the world's largest, was formally dedicated to the postal service by its chief, Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, yesterday. Some 2,000 persons attended the ceremonies, which included speeches, singing, and music by the postoffice band, in the spacious marble and gold mosaic lobby at the Van Buren street entrance.

Besides the mechanical efficiency of the new postal unit, with its fourteen miles of conveyor belts, its facilities will permit the discontinuance of five substations and result in a rental saving of 3 per cent on the investment, Mr. Brown said.

Jobs for 7,000 Workers.

"A few less than 7,000 postal workers normally will spend about one-third of their adult lives in this building," said the postmaster general. "Here will be sorted and dispatched 5,500,000 letters and circulars, 300,000 packages and 80,000 sacks of newspapers and parcel post which originate in Chicago each week, destined for every part of the globe.

"Chicago postal facilities have been called upon in the past to handle as many as 12,000,000 outgoing letters and circulars in a single day. This new postoffice will have a maximum capacity of more than four times that amount of mail, thus providing adequate facilities for any growth of volume reasonably to be anticipated in the next 30 to 50 years."

Avoids Street Trucking.

Mr. Brown spoke of the dedication as an event of major importance to the postoffice department and said the new edifice was in many respects the outstanding achievement of the federal building program instituted in 1926. "It admirably illustrates the department's policy of locating main postal workshops in large centers of populations at railway terminals, rising, as it does, above the tracks of four great railways immediately south of the Union station," he added.

"The purpose of this policy," he said, "is, of course, to eliminate the prodigal waste of time and money incident to the trucking of large amounts of bulk mail through the congested streets of our great cities."

George W. Rossetter, president of the Association of Commerce, presided, and other speakers included Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder, Ernest R. Graham, the architect, and Ferry K. Heath, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of federal buildings.

'I'M CRAZY,' BOY BOASTS, TELLING OF 200 ROBBERIES

Escaped Hospital Inmate Also Admits Rapings.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Arthur McNeill, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Rudolph Desort.

"You can't do anything to me; I'm crazy," said John Labadie, 18 years old, yesterday to police after he confessed more than 200 robberies and burglaries and the raping of several women.

"That's correct," Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission, agreed. "As an escaped inmate of an insane asylum he is legally insane and he cannot be tried for his crimes."

Labadie was arrested when detectives saw him at work on the combination of a safe in a restaurant at 513 West Van Buren street. At the Des Plaines street station he talked freely of his crimes since his escape from the Dunning institution last Dec. 6.

Tells of Seizing Woman.

"I stole a car on Christmas eve," Labadie said in the course of his boasting account. "I drove it into an alley near Chicago avenue and Leavitt street and waited, and when a woman walked by I dragged her into the car. Later I dumped her out on Ohio street."

Records showed that the victim was Mrs. Margaret Druno, 30 year old mother of two children, who lives at Rhinelander, Wis., and was here visiting her mother, Mrs. Marie O'Toole, 2143 West Huron street. In addition to rape a crime against nature was admitted by Labadie yesterday.

Fled from Two Hospitals.

Labadie was found insane on March 31, 1931, and committed to Kankakee. The court record is that he has organic brain disease. He was discharged as improved April 24, 1931; recommitted May 26, 1931, and on Oct. 5, 1931, escaped. In December, 1931, he was recaptured and sent to Dunning, from which he escaped a year later.

"Labadie will never recover his reason," said Dr. D. D. Coffey, superintendent of the Dunning institution. "If recommitted Labadie will be sent to Chester and kept there till he dies. I haven't any personal knowledge of his case, but I know we have had his home watched for two months in an effort to capture him."

EXTORTIONIST IS HIS OWN VICTIM IN KANSAS CITY

Tries to Kidnap Banker —Fails; Kills Self.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—An extortionist forced his way into the home of R. Crosby Kemper, president of the City Bank and Trust company, this afternoon, and, under threat of killing Sally Ann Kemper, 11 year old daughter, demanded $15,000.

The quick action of a nursemaid, Ann Wilde, in calling the police, brought rescue within a few seconds. The home was surrounded, and, after firing a few shots at officers, none of which took effect, the intruder turned his revolver upon himself. He died a little later at the General hospital.

The nurse, who utilized an upstairs telephone, gave the alarm to the police, and the first responding police car reached the Kemper home just ahead of the banker, who arrived with a physician.

The ensuing action was brief. The patrolmen entering the house were halted by a shot from an upper hall. Meanwhile the nurse and the Kemper girl were rescued by the police from a second floor bedroom window. There a second shot, self-inflicted by the intruder, ended the danger.

KIDNAP VICTIM'S WIFE FAILS TO IDENTIFY BOOTLEG SUSPECT

Denver, Colo., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Police tonight turned their search for Charles Boettcher II., wealthy victim of kidnapers, into new channels after Boettcher's wife failed positively to identify a suspect held in the city jail.

Chief of Police Albert T. Clark charged that the suspect, N. W. [Pinky] Mitchell, a bootlegger, was seen waiting in a small sedan automobile with two other men in front of and restaurant in which Boettcher and his wife had a midnight lunch shortly before the abduction. Boettcher is held for $60,000 ransom.

Mrs. Boettcher, seemingly worn and tired from the hours of worry since her husband disappeared Sunday night, told Chief Clark that Mitchell "resembles" the man who stepped up to their automobile, but that she could not identify him positively. Mitchell has not been released.

Late today Chief Clark issued orders that "Tip" Belcher, one time member of a famous Denver bunco ring and now living in Kansas City, be arrested. Belcher is known to have been in Denver recently and is said to have conferred with Louis [Diamond Jack] Alterie, who at first was suspected of possible participation in the abduction.

Oil Painting Is Prize in School Oratory Contest

An oil painting, "Port of Con Carneau," by Othmar Hoffler, is to be the award to the high school whose representative wins the annual Washington's birthday public speaking contest of the Union League club, it was announced yesterday. Finals in the contest will be held at the club Saturday, with winners of district contests in four groups of senior high schools in the county competing.

NEW YORK BOY'S BODY FOUND TIED HAND AND FOOT

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Bound hand and foot, gagged and stabbed to death, 12 year old William Bender was found this afternoon in a partly built house in Richmond Hill Circle, Queens, near the home from which he had been missing since Feb. 2.

The boy was dressed in the same red sweater, lumber jacket and corduroys which he wore when friends saw him for the last time two weeks ago today.

The case paralleled in some way the death of Mary Helen O'Connor, 15 years old, found slain in Massapequa. The police took into account the possibility that the same maniac child slayer might be responsible for both deaths.

The body had been in the closet for more than eight days, the police believe. Detectives began questioning children in neighboring houses.

PLEADS GUILTY TO MAIL THEFT; GETS 15 YEARS

Richard C. Allen, 42 years old, pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of stealing from the mails and was sentenced to 15 years in Leavenworth penitentiary by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. Allen was arrested in an apartment at 154 West North avenue, where postal inspectors found 400 letters stolen from apartment house mail boxes, and forged money orders for $1,783. Allen told Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher that the money orders, stolen in a sub-postal station at California avenue and Peterson road, were given him by Fred Braun. Government agents are holding Braun and Mike O'Brien in connection with the robbery. O'Brien is the brother of "Smiling Jack" O'Brien, who was executed for the murder of a policeman.

KING REFUSES RESIGNATION OF BELGIAN CABINET

BRUSSELS, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Premier de Broqueville's cabinet resigned today after a vote of censure, 82 to 72, had been carried in the parliament, but King Albert refused to accept the resignation. The vote of censure was aimed at the minister of the interior for cancelling communal elections at Hastiere.

The De Broqueville cabinet was formed last Dec. 13. De Broqueville also headed the previous government, which resigned after voting to default a $2,125,000 war debt installment to the United States.

There has been political difficulty in Belgium since last autumn. The Catholic-Liberal coalition began to crack when the Liberals, advocating a program of vigorous retrenchment, differed from the policies advanced by the Catholic party.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE DUTY OF THE COUNTY TREASURER.

It is difficult to believe that the delays in obtaining judgments against delinquent property in Chicago have all been justified; and it is impossible to believe that further delays, now that the United States Supreme court has said the last word on the legal objections, can have any justification whatsoever. If this community is ever to pull itself out of its financial difficulties its past due revenues must be collected promptly.

Judge Jarecki is pledged to issue judgments for $130,000,000 of unpaid real estate taxes of 1928, 1929, and 1930. The unpaid taxes, it will be observed, total not much less than a year's revenues from real estate taxation in Cook county. This county might worry along if, as is the fact, tax bills were a year late in being issued; or we might worry along if the unpaid taxes totaled as much as they do and there were no other complications. But no community can maintain its public services and its financial stability if both these conditions obtain and if, in addition, its problems are complicated by a business depression and further complicated by the fact that its governments normally financed their current needs by borrowing against the revenues of the coming year. A government which lives on credit must repay its borrowings promptly when due if it is to command further credit; and our governments have been unable to do so because of the tax delinquencies. Hence the bond defaults; hence the unpaid public servants; hence, also, the reluctance of many investors to put their money in our tax anticipation warrants.

Judge Jarecki is, at length, committed to his part of the program for breaking this vicious circle. It is to be hoped that Treasurer McDonough will promptly pull himself together and play his equally important part in the restoration of governmental solvency in this county. Though the county treasurer has been ill, Mr. Nash and Mr. McCabe, his advisers, have not failed to prepare a program of action which he need only underwrite to set the collection machinery in motion.

Should Mr. McDonough fail to do his part, it becomes clearer every day, those taxpayers who hitherto have done their full duty will be encouraged to join the delinquents. Of the sums called for in the last tax bills, less than 60 per cent have been paid. Sixty per cent of the property, therefore, is carrying not only its own legitimate share of the burden but the share of the delinquent 40 per cent as well. Such a grossly unfair distribution of the cost of government, if countenanced by official inaction, can only breed a general tendency toward delinquency.

Mr. McDonough has the floor.

REPUBLICAN GANGSTERS.

Reports of conditions in the Cook county Republican committee reveal that there is a danger of the organization falling into the hands of gangsters. Any one who recalls that Al Capone had a representative on the committee in the person of Berritella of the First ward and that this lieutenant of the big gorilla was both city sealer and a state senator will not feel that the reports are necessarily exaggerated. Nor was the First ward instance the only one. The submachine gun notoriously controlled in some other wards and they counted almost as many notches on guns as they did votes for the opposition.

There is also a story that the committee came within one vote of nominating a hoodlum for a judicial position. No one can accept the possibilities of gang control of the Republican managing organization. If it does not get rid of its outlaw element it will be outlawed by the voters.

THOU SHALT NOT STEAL.

Under the impression that the federal government is extorting from rich citizens for the pork barrel large parts of their income which otherwise would be turned over to them to spend, the members of the International Council of Religious Education have unanimously resolved that money so given, that is, all religious and philanthropic donations, be deductible from incomes assessed for taxation.

If the reverend gentlemen understood business and economics they would know that the government is not diverting the revenue from charitable destinations but destroying it at the source. The radical taxes have dried up the stream which used to provide taxes, wages, and the profits from which church contributions were drawn.

The situation may be explained theologically by pointing out that the eighth and tenth commandments apply to people collectively as well as individually.

The nation has violated these commandments and is being punished by the depression.

The discovery that the "soak the rich" theory of taxation is having unpleasant consequences seems a bit late. The same phenomenon appears in the field of lay education, and, in fact, in all altruistic activities. Churches and religious institutions, schools and universities, hospitals and scientific institutions, foundations, organizations for philanthropic purposes of every variety are direct and acute sufferers from inordinate taxation, and especially from taxation which exhausts the means of the rich or well to do. It is one of the tragedies of the present emergency.

And there is a special irony in the fact that it is among the immediate beneficiaries of American private giving, which surpasses in liberality and public spirit that of any other country, that we find most of the criticism of the "capitalist order" and most of the sentiment for the redistribution of wealth through class discrimination in taxation.

FEDERAL MEN UNDER PROHIBITION.

Ernest J. Stevens and the members of his family were held up in their home the other night by four bandits. One carried a submachine gun. They had possession for two hours while they ransacked the place and got away with something over a thousand dollars. When they entered the house they said they were federal men and had a warrant for Mr. Stevens. One of them read what purported to be the warrant giving them authority to search the house. It was some time before the family suspected that the men were robbers.

The most interesting feature of the robbery is that federal agents in the enforcement of the Volstead and other prohibition acts have brought themselves into such disrepute that the average American subjected to any outrageous proceeding would not be led to doubt, because of outrageous conduct, that the men who were mistreating him were not United States agents. Criticism of the degradation of a once fine service could hardly go further than that. Prohibitionists have made their law and their enforcers so intolerable that an act of banditry can be very easily accepted as an act of law enforcement. So long as the inherent viciousness of such law remains in the federal statutes and governs the conduct of men paid by prohibition appropriations it is not to be expected that there will be any correction. Federal prohibition has been permitted to abuse the bill of rights and, unfortunately, too often with the sanction of the federal courts. For an explanation it is necessary only to take a view of present day proceedings in the United States senate, where the blue nosed drys are obstructing corrective legislation proposed to carry out the popular decisions recorded in the November election. The malignancy of the dry despotism, now on its last legs, is illustrated by the conduct of bigoted legislators in Washington as well as by the disreputable conduct of agents corrupted by the poison which the legislators have shot into the laws of the United States.

POLITICS AND THE COURTS.

The first of a series of reports upon receivership practices by the bar association condemns the influence of politics upon judicial action and in its general application can hardly be classified as a revelation. It is notorious that our judiciary is in politics in degrees varying according to the character, ambition and circumstances of the individual. It is to be hoped the bar's protest will have some material result in correcting conditions, but little is to be expected from generalizations. Furthermore, when the report asserts that judges "have permitted their political sponsors to dictate, or at least to pass upon, their appointments of masters in chancery, thus transforming this arm of the court into an instrument of political patronage," justice to any judges who are not at fault in this respect requires that condemnation should be specific. By making a general assertion the innocent are discredited with the guilty, and the effect upon public opinion must be precisely what the report asserts is the result of political dictation in judicial administration—namely: the weakening of public confidence in judicial integrity. The culpable should be named, not only to enable the lay public to protect itself at the next judicial election, but to free the judges who are not chargeable from suspicion or reproof.

Another count against the judges is that in exercising their duty of electing the south park commissioners "they have been drawn into politics instead of taking the park system out of politics, as the law intended." On this score the judges, if not impeccable, may at least be credited with doing a better job than our governors, who appoint the west park and Lincoln park boards. It is also probably true that most of the Circuit judges would be glad to be rid of their responsibility for the south park appointments. We think this true in the case of most of our judges in regard to the whole problem of political entanglement. The exceptions should be specified wherever facts are obtainable to justify it.

Finally, it is to be hoped the inquiry into political influence upon judicial administration will not be confined to our state courts. Lawyers of experience, we think, will suggest that politics has for years entered into the selection and the proceedings of federal receiverships. Light should be let into this department of justice as well as into the local courts.

Editorial of the Day

[Illinois State Register.]

One of the interesting discussions before the Illinois Farmers' Grain Dealers' convention which adjourned here yesterday was relative to the mixing of grain alcohol with gasoline to produce a high grade of motor fuel.

It was explained by one authority that it would require 500,000,000 bushels of grain to produce a 10 per cent mixture of alcohol if the principle were applied to all of the gasoline consumed in the United States.

According to T. R. Cain of Jacksonville, Ill., president of the Farmers' National Grain Dealers' association, who attended the Springfield session, the use of such a mixture "could do no worse than increase the price of gasoline two or three cents a gallon and produce a better fuel." He also explains that to put it into effect would require a law imposing a tax of about five cents a gallon on motor fuel, exempting from that tax such motor fuel as contained the 10 per cent mixture of grain alcohol.

The purpose of this is to create a shortage and raise the price of grain to benefit the grain grower. It is argued that the oil industry would not suffer on the theory that the increased buying power of the farmer would be reflected into compensating benefits for the industries and for commerce generally.

Many obstacles stand in the way of such a program, but it has fascinating possibilities, the outstanding one of which is an assured benefit for the grain grower.

Another possibility is that we may yet have what might be called a grain-petroleum cocktail to stimulate the energies of the cornfed motors.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

True to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WE HAVE READ most of the declaration of what Mr. Roosevelt will do when he becomes President-elect by a man who cannot be named, but who is in the confidence of Mr. Roosevelt," and from one "who has discussed his future policies with the next President," but all we are really certain of regarding Mr. Roosevelt is that he approves the Ten Commandments, is strongly of the opinion that 2 and 2 make 4, and that the night is much darker than the day. Also he holds that the U. S. is bounded on the east by the Atlantic ocean and on the west by the Pacific, and that the square of the hypothenuse of a right triangle is equal to the sum of the squares of the other two sides. But outside of that we really do not know just what opinion Mr. Roosevelt holds on the other burning questions of the day.

FORGET ME NOT.

Oh! some folks would beg a potent charm
To aid their memory.
"Remember this," "Remember that,"
And "Think—oh, think of me!"

My trouble lies the other way—
My memory's far too good.
It holds tenaciously so much
That I don't think it should.

So I would not pray thus—oh, no!
For memory makes me fret.
What I desire is a charm
To help me to forget.

If Music Be the Food of Love, Rave On

Sir: Do you also compose music? It seems the great American opera is just waiting to be written. I mean, one without redskins in it and pale toothings on a flute. Real American opera about a huge, strong American hero. Something to inspire the great American music that only you can write, maestro.

I just ran into a handsome young tenor whose stage name is Mario Duca, who just got into town from Italy to sing in the coming "Tosca" opera here. Well, sir, knock me over with a piccolo if he didn't privately confess to being an ex-lumberjack, born in Wisconsin—and he thinks an opera should be written about Paul Bunyan, the lumberjack hero, and his famous Babe, the Sky Blue Ox.

I forget all the details of the legend of the American Manchurian, but in Paul Bunyan's outfit wasn't there a cook who greased the one-mile-long kitchen range, before he fried the griddle cakes on it, by skating along its top on strips of bacon tied to his boots?

For this scene, in this opera, I can see some wonderful musical effects. The usual strings could be removed from all the violins in the orchestra and strips of bacon substituted. The xylophone player could then walk across his instrument on roller skates. The kettledrums could be base-burning wood stoves—

But I really must be running along now, maestro. Mario arrives for "Tosca," and as I hear she is herpes I must see about hiring a white horse for her entrance.

COLOMBIA AND PERU have gone to war. This is the first time they've been at war since last October. Or was it December? It is not known what they're fighting about this time except that Colombia has some new bombing planes and it is suspected that it wants to give 'em a test. Which, after all, is a much better reason for going to war than many much older nations have had.

THE VOICE OF FEAR.

I am Fear, powerful Fear;
The greatest of the Gods;
I haunt the rich and poor alike,
On me are all the odds.

I hold my fatal weapon
Always overhead;
I wound, I hurt, I often kill;
I go with men to bed.

I creep into the human mind,
And use it as my tool;
I subjugate all mortals
Who recognize my rule.

To call my bluff, my fatal bluff,
Is such a simple thing;
For I am powerful only
While men declare me King.

I'll leave you with a paradox,
To make this matter clear;
For men who will not be afraid

THE SENATE of the state legislature down at Springfield yesterday passed the bill repealing both the Illinois state search and seizure act and the Illinois prohibition law, and the house is expected to act favorably on both measures today. And so we will immediately have light wines and beer. No, we must wait for the government at Washington or go out of the Union. And as long as there is the Reconstruction Finance corporation handing millions and millions here and there all over the place we will say most emphatically that we will not go out of the Union.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE IN THE SOUTH.

THE people who live in the northern part of the American continent have more than their share of scarlet fever, diabetes, arteriosclerosis, and goiter. The suicide rate is higher among them. These are the conclusions of C. A. Mills, quoted in this column some months ago. The same student of statistics is of the opinion that, on the other hand, the people of the southern states have more than their share of acute Bright's disease. He is disposed to think this is an effect of climate and not the result of racial characteristics.

It is not an easy matter to decide whether a given condition is the result of differences in customs and habits or is due to differences in climate, since the latter has so much to do with the former.

The foods eaten by the southern people differ considerably from those of the people of the north in articles of diet, methods of preparation, quantities eaten, and times of meals. But, in turn, this is largely the result of difference in climate.

Mr. Mills does not suggest a reason for the greater prevalence of acute Bright's disease among the southern people except as to one factor. He says southern people have a lower metabolic rate and a lower blood pressure. This may mean that they have less vitality and less resistance. This may be the cause of the difference in prevalence of acute nephritis. He does not discuss differences in diet, in dress, in drinking habits, or in the prevalence of diseases that not infrequently lay the basis for acute Bright's.

A physician in charge of a case of chronic Bright's disease, especially if there is a complicating heart disease and some tendency to dropsy, is very apt to advise his patient to winter in the south if the patient can afford it. The theory on which this advice is based is that when the kidneys are diseased some part of their work is done by the skin. If the skin is chilled a strain is thrown on the kidneys. A period of acute nephritis in a person with chronic nephritis is a source of danger to life and should be guarded against. Persons with chronic Bright's are generally advised to keep the skin always warm as a measure of prevention against acute Bright's.

If additional studies confirm this one it behooves physicians to reconsider their established policy. Perhaps their nephritics had better remain at home in cold weather. Or it may be that the greater prevalence of acute Bright's among the people who live in the south may have no bearing on the advisability of a sick man going there for a winter season.

SPOTS BEFORE EYES.

J. E. W. writes: I have something the matter with my left eye. It came all at once. A black spot floats over it from the top of the eye to the outer edge, follows the eyeball as it turns, and at night there are flashes like lightning from the top center out to the side of the left of the eye. There is no pain and I can see as good as ever. I had a bad cold in my head and sneezed quite hard. The eyes ran for two days and then stopped, and the spots came. I write quite a little under an electric light.

REPLY.

Floating spots are pretty near universal among adults. Almost anybody who has the time and inclination can see them. Watching them is one way to kill time—about as good as working puzzles.

In rare instances they are of significance and particularly when there are also flashes of light.

In these circumstances they may indicate glaucoma. Some retinal trouble is possible. You should find out if you have any trouble.

A FREQUENT COMPLAINT.

Mrs. M. T. writes: I am 74 years of age and about a year ago the small toe of my left foot went numb. I can move it but cannot feel it. Now the toe next is also getting numb.

REPLY.

This is a frequent complaint among old people. Wear loose, warm footwear.

Do not use tight garters or other tight leg bands.

AS A RULE HE CAN.

Mrs. J. C. writes: Could a man 48 years old with an irregular heartbeat and a blood pressure of 140 work? Is an irregular heartbeat dangerous?

REPLY

As a rule he can. An irregular heartbeat may be dangerous, but often is not. Much depends on what causes it, what it is indicative of, and what is associated with it.

TAX SALE.

La Harpe, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I own a farm which is free from debt, but I find myself unable to pay the general taxes assessed against the property. 1. What steps will be taken to collect this tax? 2. If offered for sale and some one buys the tax title can I redeem and what length of time have I to do this? 3. How much will it cost to redeem? 4. Should there be no buyer at the tax sale what happens to the title to the property? 5. Can it ever be redeemed at a later date? F. B.

1. Presumably the property will be offered at tax sale.
2. Two years.
3. Technically it depends on the bidding at the tax sale, but ordinarily the penalty is 24 per cent per year, plus advertising fees, etc.
4. It is "forfeited" to the state of Illinois.
5. Yes. In general it is easier to adjust a forfeiture than to adjust a tax deed.

BUILDING RECEIVER.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am living in an apartment under a lease which does not expire until Oct. 1. The building recently passed into receivership and the receiver has served notice that, effective at once, the rent will be increased $5 per month. He has also hinted that he intends to make extensive alterations which will affect our flat. 1. Does the passing of the building into receivership act to void the lease? 2. If I refuse to pay the additional rent can the receiver eject me from the premises before the expiration of my lease? 3. If the receiver says I must pay the increased rental or move and I move, can he, after Oct. 1, sue for the rent for the portion of my lease which I did not fulfill? 4. What sort of title does a receiver get to property such as in this case? J. C.

1. In our opinion the receiver is in a position to repudiate the leases.
2. Yes.
3. No.
4. Depends on the wording of the trust deed and court order under which he acts.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ALIEN VISITORS.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—[Friend of the People.]—Can you please advise me as to the coming World's Fair? I have a sister in Italy who would like to come here for the Fair, but she would like to know if she must leave a deposit there and how long she can stay here. I would appreciate any information you can give me. A. C.

You are advised that an alien desiring to proceed to the United States as a visitor to the Century of Progress Exposition should apply at the nearest American consulate for a visitor's visa. The requirements applying to all visitors to the United States will be observed in the cases of those who come here to visit the exposition. The length of time an alien is permitted to stay in the United States as a visitor depends on the circumstances of each individual case and cannot be determined in advance. Neither can it be determined in advance whether or not bond will be required. These are matters that can only be determined upon the alien's application for a visitor's visa, and late upon his or her application for admission to the United States at the port of entry.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 16, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—One phase of the crisis between the United States and Germany was cleared up late tonight with the receipt of information that Berlin has yielded to the demand of the United States for the release of the seventy-two American seamen captured by German raiders in the Atlantic. This action will make unnecessary the sending of an ultimatum which was being prepared at the state department with the sanction of President Wilson. It had been planned to send the ultimatum within twenty-four hours, together with a report showing that no German merchantmen in American continental or insular ports have been seized and that no German seamen have been taken into custody or otherwise detained, which was the reported reason given by the German government for holding the American seamen.

AMSTERDAM.—The following imperial order, signed by the German emperor and addressed "To My Navy," is published in the Marine Verordnungsblatt, according to a Berlin dispatch: "In the impending decisive battle, the task falls to my navy of turning the English war method of starvation, by means of which our most hated and most obstinate enemy intends to overthrow the German people, against him and his allies by combating their sea traffic with all means in our power. In this work the submarines will stand in the first rank. I expect this weapon to be developed with wise foresight at our admirable yards. In coöperation with all our other naval fighting weapons, and supported by the spirit which during the whole course of the war has enabled us to perform brilliant deeds, it will break our enemies' war designs."

WAR SUMMARY.—Paris reports the repulse of enemy attacks in Champagne. Surprise attacks by the French between the Oise and Aisne were successful, according to the war office statement. London says the British carried out successful raids on the Somme front while Berlin states that all enemy attacks failed. Berlin reports a raid on Russian positions on the road from Kovel to Lutsk which netted numerous prisoners. A successful attack north of Slochoff-Tarnopol railroad is also chronicled. Petrograd reports that the battle near Kadarovtze continues. Paris reports that the Italians in Macedonia have retaken trenches east of Paralova, lost on Feb. 14 to the enemy. Three ships and two trawlers were sunk in the day's U-boat operations, but no lives were lost. Great Britain will make Halifax instead of Kirkwall port of call for all neutral ships sailing from the United States. This action will permit vessels to avoid the newest U-boat war zone. Berlin agrees to permit all Belgian relief workers to remain at posts in Belgium and northern France.

HACHITA, N. M.—Lem Spillsbury, Mormon scout, and companions late yesterday discovered the bodies of Andrew P. Peterson, Hugh Acord, and Burton Jensen, American cowboys kidnaped on Feb. 12 when Mexican bandits raided the Corner ranch, sixty miles southwest of here. The bodies, badly mutilated, were found on the Mexican side, three miles south of international monument No. 53. It was believed they were taken across the border and killed when they attempted to break away from their captors. Acting under instructions from Col. F. C. Sickle, commanding the Columbus camp, Lieut. Col. J. C. Waterman, in charge at Hachita, ordered all available troops from here into the Corner ranch section. The troops left for their new posts last night. Lieut. Col. Waterman said he could not tell whether his troops would cross into Mexico.

CHICAGO.—J. Ogden Armour became identified as one of the subscribers to the British war loan when it was announced from London that the packer had subscribed for $500,000. Others whose names were listed among the American subscribers are W. M. G. Singer, who took $500,000, and the Strattons of Independence, Colo., $330,000. From Los Angeles comes word that Charlie Chaplin, America's movie star, is a $150,000 contributor to the war loan.

CHICAGO. — Measures amounting virtually to the precautions of war time are being taken by the civil and military authorities of the federal government to prevent violence and destruction of property in the event of war with Germany. Hundreds of secret service and special agents are guarding property in Chicago, while every person known to be an agent of the Teutonic powers is under surveillance. Guards have been thrown around railway stations and terminals to prevent explosions and incendiary fires, while strangers are forbidden to enter roundhouses or places where locomotives are stored. Every railroad bridge of 150 feet or more in length is under guard, and practically every mile of trunk line railway is patrolled by track walkers.

REVENUE FROM COFFEE.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—A source of revenue easy to collect and not burdensome to the people has apparently been overlooked, namely, a duty on important tea and coffee. An average of 1,000,000,000 pounds of coffee and about 100,000,000 pounds of tea are imported into the United States every year. A tax of 3 cents per pound on coffee and 10 cents per pound on tea will, therefore, produce $55,000,000. The average household sets fifty cups of coffee out of one pound. The average restaurant gets about thirty-five cups. So the extra cost per cup to the household will be 3-50 of a cent and the cost per cup to the restaurant will be 3 35 of a cent. Both coffee and tea have depreciated in price more than three times the amount of this duty, so there will be no added burden to the consumer. Machinery to collect duty, namely, the custom house, could function with no added expense whatever. Why not try it?

THE SCHOOL OF THE STRONG.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—I wish to congratulate THE TRIBUNE on its efforts toward reform in government, especially its editorials and cartoons, which I think are wonderfully applicable to existing conditions, and exhort you to keep up the good work. It will finally bear fruit.

I also wish to add my voice to the thousands who keenly regret the ills which have brought on this crisis, but feel powerless to help.

I believe one of the causes of these ills is too much promiscuous education, too much coddling, too much soft-pedaling for the welfare of our youth, which is resulting in a nation of tenderfeet politicians, bureaucrats, social workers, advisers, would-be scientists, and last, but not least, criminals. The ordinary avocations are beneath these pampered youths and as all cannot find places in the above category of jobs they resort to dishonest methods of livelihood.

O, for the good old pioneer days! When I was a very young girl I walked a full mile to the little red schoolhouse, often through snowdrifts reaching to my knees. My woolen stockings were frequently soaked and the teacher allowed me to stand close to the old hot blast wood burner to dry them. They partially dried, at least; but it was a matter of small concern to me. I was happy as a lark, and even as I plodded through the snow I loved and enjoyed the beauty of nature about me.

Well, some seventy odd years have passed over my head and I am still forging ahead, but the present man made depression renders the forging much more difficult than the snowdrifts of my youth. After sitting about forty-five years at a desk one could not be expected now to be a champion hiker, yet I have been driven to sew and to sell the garments I make.

I climb innumerable stairways and pay little attention to fatigue. I often think that had I been trained and educated under our present incubator system I should now be on the charity list or an inmate of the poorhouse, provided it is not already overcrowded; and let me add that I never received any lessons in sewing.

As we eulogize Lincoln let us remember that he was self-taught, that education, various advantages and care were not rained upon him, therefore he became great; and we with all our modern institutions are searching for strong men, brave men, patriotic men. Alas! we find ourselves in the hands of weaklings who are leading us to ruin. M.

DUPLICATED SERVICE TO ST. LOUIS

Chicago, Feb. 13.—I don't believe that Mr. H. A., when writing his article on "Duplication of Service," which appeared in these columns today, consulted his railroad friend, for I am sure that if he had he would never have written it.

By consulting the official guide Mr. H. A. will find that each of the roads mentioned offers service via different routes, through different parts of the state, with service to other large towns en route between Chicago and St. Louis. The C. & E. I. operates through Momence, Watseka, Villa Grove, with connecting service from Danville, Sullivan, Pana, Nokomis and into St. Louis; the Illinois Central operates through Kankakee, Gilman, with connecting service from Champaign, Urbana, also connecting service from Madison, Wis.; Freeport, Ill., at Clinton, thence through Springfield and into St. Louis, and the Wabash and Alton roads have similar service through entirely different territories, Chicago to St. Louis. Consequently high class passenger service must be maintained over each of the four routes for the public's convenience.

None of us usually desire to spend more time on the train than is absolutely necessary, and I am sure we will all agree that 7:30 a. m. or thereabouts is a seasonable arrival hour in St. Louis. It gives a business man sufficient time in which to clean up before opening of business at 8 a. m.; it is not too early, and it permits each of the four roads mentioned to enjoy their full share of the business, Chicago to Dallas, Fort Worth, Birmingham and other southern points, with night departure from Chicago and second morning arrival at these points.

In view of the foregoing the only separation of time, then, could be made in Chicago, and if the following schedules were offered:

Lv. Chicago.	Ar. St. Louis.	Roads.
10:00 P. M.	7:38 A. M.	I. C.
11:55 P. M.	7:21 A. M.	C. & E. I.
9:00 P. M.	7:43 A. M.	C. & A.
8:00 P. M.	7:15 A. M.	Wabash

THE UNION SCALE IN PUBLIC SERVICE.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—Union men employed by the city and county are holding up the taxpayers in excessive wages at the rate of $100,000 a day. You can employ nonunion men for one-third the scale or rate paid by the city. It appears the unions had an ordinance passed that the scale must be paid by the city. Why should we be held up by these fellows, and stand for the $13 and $14 a day with a helper at $8 a day? You can get good servants at $3 to $5 a week, and thousands of men will work for $2 a day, and have done so since 1929.

THE NEGLECT OF WAGNER.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Fifty years ago tomorrow Richard Wagner, one of the greatest musicians of all time, died in Venice, Italy, mourned by the whole world. In all European cities this week is devoted to performances of Wagner's works, either in opera or concert form. In this city not one work of this genius was played, either at last week's or this week's symphony concerts. Those responsible ought to bow their heads in shame.

SENATE BOOSTS INTERIOR COSTS; PROTEST FUTILE

Additions Are Approved in Half an Hour.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—With virtually none but senators from the western public land states taking an interest in the proceedings, the senate in less than half an hour made a net increase of $164,940 in the $48,652,904 interior department appropriation bill as passed by the house.

One or two feeble references were made in the course of the proceedings to the necessity of retrenchment, but were frowned down by the senators piloting the expenditure boosts through the senate.

The total carried by the bill had been boosted on the floor of the house half a million above the amount recommended by the house appropriations committee. Of the increase, $460,000 was to provide a heating plant for the private Negro educational institution, Howard university, to the upkeep of which the federal government contributes. The Negro congressman, Oscar De Priest [Rep., Ill.] forced the house by filibustering tactics to include the expenditure, which had been rejected by the committee as unjustified.

Includes Some of Own.

The senate accepted that increase and then proceeded to include some of its own. The bureau of Indian affairs, which is notoriously inefficient and wasteful of public money, was granted $57,000 more, while an additional $100,000 was allowed the geological survey and $20,940 additional was given to the national park service. The only reduction voted was $13,000 in the allowance for the Virgin islands.

All of these amendments were adopted in rapid fire order, for the most part without explanation or discussion, under the direction of Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], chief pilot of the bill. Mr. Smoot has always stood for liberal appropriations for the interior department. In fact, nobody ever thinks of Mr. Smoot as a watchdog of the treasury.

Senator King Protests.

His colleague, Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah] protested in general terms against the boost in the appropriation for national parks, $7,000 of which was for Mr. Smoot's pet—Zion national park. He said he realized the value of national parks but could not condone extravagance on anything in this period of depression. There had been "a mania to establish national parks," he said, it seeming "to be understood that every interesting or beautiful or unique spot of mother earth must be converted into a national park to be maintained at the expense of the government."

When the bill was in the house, with 33 of the 435 members in attendance and most of those western public land state congressmen, Representative John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.] turned wrathfully upon the group.

"There are over 20 states taking out of the federal treasury more money than they are actually paying in," he said, "and among those states are the states that are benefiting by the 43 million dollar appropriation bill that we are considering right now. Congress has run wild on federal aid. We are seeking money to help pay this federal aid, to help these nontax paying states to get this money from the federal treasury."

Repeal Failure Cited.

He called attention to the failure of the house to adopt the resolution submitting repeal of prohibition which would eliminate the cost of prohibition enforcement, estimated at 65 millions annually, and restore liquor tax revenue estimated at one billion dollars annually.

"Members of congress who come from these nontax paying states that get this federal aid, with, I think, one exception," Mr. Cochran went on, "voted against the resolution whereby we sought to reimburse the treasury of the United States by repealing the eighteenth amendment and taking the money away from the bootleggers and putting it where it belongs in the treasury of the United States. Look around. See the members from those states in the north central, western and northwestern parts of the country; every one of them is here today looking after this appropriation bill. Why? Because it is their appropriation bill. Within its pages is carried the money that goes to their states.

May Lose Aid, He Says.

"I say to the gentlemen from these states I realize that you need help, but the taxpayers of my city and state need some help, also. They want the burdens lifted from their shoulders. I say to you in good faith and in all kindness, if you do not help us find ways to raise the revenue to assist you, then this federal aid is going to be taken away from you sooner or later."

The appropriations committee had cut the allowance of the office of education for printing and binding from $40,000 to $20,000. Representative Burton L. French [Rep., Idaho] declared that a great injustice.

'THIEVING LIAR,' SAYS HUEY LONG; OFFERS APOLOGY

State Employe Tells of 10% 'Pay Tax.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—A canceled check, an enforced deduction from a state jobholder's pay, jolted the Long-Overton defense against charges of practicing extortion on state employés during the senate election investigation today.

In the next few minutes H. B. Bozeman, former legislator and chairman of the Louisiana tax commission, testified he had been ordered by Gov. Long to increase the assessment of the Times-Picayune, the New Orleans States, the New Orleans Item, and several large business concerns in New Orleans. Bozeman said he had refused.

Chairman Howell of the committee rapped for order and Senator Long arose again, but to apologize.

"Liar" Mildest Term.

Later in the proceedings Senator Long paid further attention to Mr. Bozeman. The mildest term he used was "liar." Senator Howell threatened Senator Long with action for contempt.

Again Senator Long arose to apologize.

A former state job holder, introduced by S. T. Ansell, senate committee counsel, stated that 10 per cent was forcibly deducted from workers' pay in the autumn of 1932 to provide funds for the Overton campaign.

This witness, J. Pierce Porter, testified that in September, 1932, 10 per cent was deducted from his pay by orders of his official superior. He was an employé of the conservation department, he said, at Monroe.

Overton Tells of Fee.

Representative John H. Overton, recalled to the stand as the morning session began, admitted receiving a fee in the toll bridge deal, but said it was paid to him by the Nashville Bridge company, which he was representing in the negotiations. He branded as a "damnable falsehood" the version given yesterday by Earl Long. That declared Overton stood to receive a fee of $200,000 if the toll bridge proposal was approved.

Senator Long said he was the instigator of the whole bridge scheme. Representative Overton said the Nashville Bridge company had paid him a fee. Senator Long said he had repaid the Nashville concern with money raised among friends. The money repaid included Overton's fee, it was testified.

Dudley Guilbeau, a member of the state highway commission under Gov. Long, declared Long had told him of paying John H. Overton "a sum of money out of his pocket, as coming from the Nashville Bridge company, as a retainer." On question of the sum was placed at $5,000 "to keep him [Overton] from being dissatisfied."

Mr. Guilbeau turned to Senator Long and asked: "What have you got to say to that, Huey?"

Senator Long did not reply.

HEWITT TO SEEK MORE MEN FOR SNOW REMOVAL

Relief Commission Aid Is Sought.

In an effort to hasten the removal of snow from the loop Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt announced yesterday that he would apply to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission for more men.

The commission paid 600 men who worked in the loop for three days, but the snow is not all cleared from the business streets. Since Tuesday the last day the extra men worked, the regular ward force of over 100 men has been attacking the snow piles.

Although most of the snow fell on Feb. 7, it was not until Sunday that men paid by the relief commission went to work. This delay was blamed on Michael Carrozzo, head of the street sweepers' union, who insisted that the 600 men put to work in the loop should be chosen from his union. He won his point.

Not a U. S. Citizen.

Carrozzo, according to federal records, is not a citizen of the United States. Neither is his name Michael. He was born in Italy Nov. 25, 1890, and named Marco by his parents. He entered the United States on March 17, 1909, and at the time of his entry signified his intention of remaining permanently in this country.

Despite that intention Carrozzo has never been naturalized as a citizen. Twice he filed a petition for naturalization, but each time withdrew his application because he lacked "competent witnesses." This was interpreted to mean that he did not have witnesses to prove his legal entry or to establish his character and he feared his petition would be denied.

A basis for such a fear may be found in an investigation of Carrozzo's standing made by the immigration office in 1926. At that time he was serving a year and 106 days in the House of Correction after conviction on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Conviction for another crime involving moral turpitude would make him subject to deportation.

Suspect in Murder.

Carrozzo also was arrested, according to the federal records, as a suspect in the murder of Morris Enright and in the Dearborn station mail robbery. In both cases he proved an alibi.

In attacking the recent snowfall, Commissioner Hewitt utilized five automatic truck loaders which a predecessor, Richard W. Wolfe, had purchased for $40,000 but had never used. Wolfe had an opportunity to use the loaders in 1928 when the snowfall measured 7.2 inches; in 1930 when there was 19.2 inches, and again in March, 1931, when 16.4 inches fell, but he didn't move them from storage.

CHICAGOANS GET FIRST 1931 TAX BILLS TOMORROW

McDonough Tells Why He's Often Out of Office

Chicagoans will receive their first 1931 real estate tax bills tomorrow. At 10 o'clock this morning a force of clerks in the county treasurer's office will begin mailing the first of 15,000 bills for taxes totaling approximately $2,000,000 in the town of Hyde Park. Tax bills in the other Chicago towns will be sent out as soon as possible.

This announcement and several other items of interest to taxpayers were made public by the county treasurer's office yesterday after County Treasurer McDonough appeared at his county building office and issued an explanation for his frequent absences therefrom.

Announce Seizure and Sale Plan.

When County Judge Jarecki last week revealed that he is prepared to dismiss all objections to 1929 and 1930 real estate taxes, totaling $130,000,000, Mr. McDonough was sought in order that his plans for collection of taxes might be learned. Difficulty was encountered in finding him. Finally his secretary, Edward J. McCabe, and his attorney, Thomas D. Nash, announced a plan to collect overdue real estate taxes by the seizure and sale of personal property on which the statute gives the state a lien for realty taxes.

Mr. McDonough yesterday indorsed this plan and announced that the slogan of the county treasurer henceforth will be: "Get all the collectible taxes into the treasury immediately."

The county treasurer said he had been attending to his duties as a public official in other offices and at his home where he could be away from the importunities of job and favor seekers. He also declared he has been in poor health since an attack of influenza two months ago.

Decision to Speed Collections.

"When Judge Jarecki hands down his decision our hands will be free and we will bend every effort to getting every available dollar into the treasury so that the local governments may be able to function without the handicap of huge debts and unpaid employés," he said.

The opening of a tax warrant division of the treasurer's office in quarters on the second floor at 6 North Clark street was also announced.

The county treasurer also urged citizens to pay their taxes by mail to avoid congestion in the treasurer's office.

KERNER TO QUIZ SECRETARIES OF ALL BOND GROUPS

Attorney General Otto Kerner yesterday summoned secretaries of all bondholders' protective committees to appear in his office with all their records. The action is a step in his investigation of excessive fees and other abuses of receiverships and foreclosures.

Six secretaries have been asked to appear in the attorney general's Chicago office tomorrow afternoon for questioning by Assistant Attorney General George S. Lavin. Other groups will be heard daily until all the secretaries have appeared. Another assistant is to be appointed to aid Lavin, the attorney general said.

The secretaries are to be questioned on the membership and operation of the committees. Complaints have been made to Kerner that protective committees have been organized in many instances by individuals for personal gain.

Minutes of the committee meetings are expected to show whether or not individuals organized the committees to give themselves posts at high salaries without regard to the interests of the bondholders. If the charges are substantiated Attorney General Kerner said he would place the evidence in the hands of State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney for prosecution.

(The appointment is under the regular arbitration treaty. Arbiters have been appointed by the United States and Panama and the appointment today was of a third, neutral, arbiter. It does not indicate any dispute at the moment.)

Using Tribune color as their merchandising weapon Hormel salesmen lined up chain grocery organizations as well as over 2,000 leading independents—before the advertising ran.

The Tribune was the only newspaper to carry any advertising of the new Hormel soup to Chicago housewives. The Tribune alone can do a similar job for any other food product manufacturer.

Tribune merchandising and advertising have proved so successful for Hormel that they are applying the same principles—using the same advertising—in other markets. You can apply them in the same market—and advertise in the same newspaper—which produced such definite, immediate results for Hormel.

The Chicago Tribune delivers practically today's entire market for advertised products. Considering the duplication between them, it reaches practically as many families in Chicago and suburbs as any two other newspapers combined. 52% of the families in the metropolitan market read the Tribune — practically complete coverage of the better grade residential districts and suburbs and the cream of the below-average districts.

When you use the Tribune—you reach families able to buy. And you reach them at the lowest milline rate of any Chicago newspaper.

Write, wire or phone to get the complete story of Hormel's success and how you can use the Tribune to introduce a new product or to stimulate sales of goods now on the shelves of retailers.

Dear Mr. Dreier:

As you know, it took considerable courage on our part to enter the Chicago Market during times like these, on a quality product like Hormel's Vegetable Soup.

Perhaps we under-estimated the pulling power of the Tribune. However, the returns are now in and I think you will be interested in them.

Using a Tribune color page as our merchandising weapon, we were able, within a few days, to get distribution in Chicago chain organizations, and more than 2000 of the best independent dealers. In this, your merchandising service proved very helpful.

The response to the first color page was so unusual that we ran a second color page, and obtained many thousand more first tasters of Hormel Vegetable Soup than we had expected.

Some idea of our satisfaction with the results can be seen in the fact that we are now applying to other markets, essentially the same plan that we used in Chicago.

Or, perhaps a better indication of our satisfaction is the enclosed duplicate of the Agency's order for two additional color pages and the substantial schedule of black and white.

Yours very truly,

Mr. A. W. Dreier,

Dear Mr. Dreier:

Under separate cover we are mailing you insertion orders for three additional 3-color pages and a black and white schedule on Hormel Vegetable Soup, the second color page to appear in your edition of Thursday, December 8th.

Undoubtedly this is the manner in which you would prefer Geo. A. Hormel & Co. and this agency to tell you how successful the first color page proved to be on this product. However, we wish to express our appreciation to you and Mr. Field for your own splendid interest and the cooperation which your entire advertising and merchandising department extended to us. It was most helpful.

We secured a splendid distribution in Chicago and suburbs, as a result of the first color page, and an unusually large amount of merchandise moved into consumption. We feel sure that the new color schedule of three additional pages and the black and white copy that follows, again will demonstrate the ability of the Tribune to deliver a powerful selling punch — even in times like these.

Again, thanks for your cooperation.

Dear Mr. Colton:

I can't resist writing you about our experience with your new vegetable soup. When your salesman first called I turned him down, thinking a 15¢ soup would not go over.

On the 10th when the page ad appeared in the Tribune and I saw what a marvelous color picture it was, I figured we might wish to have some. Before I could execute that idea our telephones started to ring in so many different directions in each of our four stores that the managers in desperation pleaded with me to get some Hormel's Vegetable soup.

On Friday afternoon the day after the ad appeared I made arrangements with our jobber to take care of our stores the following morning.

I have never seen anything go over as effectively as this advertising. The only thing I can recall that is at all comparable happened about eighteen years ago. During all that interim I can think of nothing which compares with the way your product went over.

We try to be alert, particularly on quality items, and wish to congratulate you on your success. We thought we might get by without stocking your item and see what happened.

Dear Mr. Colton:

We are pleased to learn that Hormel's Vegetable Soup will continue to be featured in Tribune color advertising. Sales were so definitely stimulated in all of our LOBLAW GROCETERIAS and JEWEL FOOD STORES as a result of your sensational introductory advertising, that we have decided to co-operate again with you to the fullest extent, in conjunction with your page of February 8th.

Frankly, conditions being as they are, we were surprised at its quick acceptance by Loblaw and Jewel customers. However, because of the high quality of your product, they were enthusiastic about it from the day it was introduced, and are continuing to buy it in ever increasing volume.

As you know, it will be necessary for us to have all advertising material here by January 23rd. Will you please see that this is taken care of?

TAYLOR ELECTED NEW PRESIDENT OF SCHOOL BOARD

Month's Salaries to Be Paid in Warrants.

Trustee Orville J. Taylor was unanimously elected president of the board of education yesterday. Both Republicans and Democrats on the board voted for Mr. Taylor, who is an appointee of Mayor Cermak.

The election was deemed necessary by Henry E. Cutler of the firm of Chapman & Cutler, security experts, who held in a formal opinion that the school board presidency was left vacant through the resignation of Lewis E. Myers three weeks ago.

After Mr. Taylor took the president's chair the trustees voted to pay the 14,000 teachers and 4,000 other school employés a month's wages, $4,723,650, in 1931 tax warrants. It will probably be ten days before the red tape of printing, signing and authenticating the warrants will be cut away and actual distribution is started. The warrants will be in $50 denominations.

Avoid Heavy Discounts.

The warrants have been held in the city's aggregate of funds. According to the plan the city will reinvest in 1932 school warrants.

Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell, who introduced the resolution, explained that the warrants given to the employés would be among the first to be redeemed from the collection of 1931 taxes and so they will not have to part with them at heavy discounts. The market quotations on 1931 educational fund warrants yesterday were 92 bid and 94 asked.

Many of the employés will be able to cash the warrants at par, Mr. Caldwell said. The 1931 tax bills will be out in Chicago within the next few days and the first penalty date is scheduled for March 1. The bills have already been mailed out to the country towns.

Committee to Name Month.

On the motion of Trustee Joseph P. Savage, the board voted to allow Mr. Taylor, Howard P. Savage, business manager of the school system, and Supt. William J. Bogan to decide on which month of 1932 the warrants would be applied for pay. The board owes its employés $21,900,000 for compensation in 1932.

The election of Mr. Taylor had been a foregone conclusion for several days. He insisted, however, that the election would be to fill the unexpired term of President Myers.

Mr. Taylor said that the five new trustees to be appointed by Mayor Cermak should be given a voice in the selection of a president at the regular election late in May.

Mr. Taylor is a partner in the law firm of Taylor, Miller, Busch & Boyden. He is a graduate of Northwestern university and was a major of cavalry during the world war. After his appointment to the board, nearly a year ago, Mr. Taylor led a fight for economy in school expenditures which culminated in a $15,000,000 slash in the 1932 budget.

CONFER TODAY ON SCHEME TO FINISH SCHOOLS

Plans for the resumption of work on school buildings will be discussed today at a conference between Howard P. Savage, business manager of the school system, and Patrick F. Sullivan, president of the Chicago Building Trades council. Mr. Savage hopes that the building artisans and contractors will accept 1933 building fund tax warrants in payment.

Mr. Savage said that after talking to representatives of the building trades he would confer with contractors and material concerns.

The school board has ten building projects which have been halted at various stages of construction because of lack of funds. In the 1933 school budget the board has set up a levy of $2,441,569 for building through which it is hoped to complete three or four of the structures. It has not been decided which buildings to finish.

Provision was also made for the extension of $3,000,000 worth of contracts on the projects until 1934 through the payment of slightly more than 6 per cent carrying charges to contractors.

HITLER ORDERS STRONGER GRIP ON RUHR POLICE

Precaution Taken on Workers' Threat.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—To strengthen the position of the government in event that communist or republican workers of the Ruhr attempt to rise against the chancellor's rule, Hitler's Prussian minister of interior, Capt. Wilhelm Goering, today appointed Police Commander Stieler von Heydekamp "special commissioner with exceptional powers for the provinces of Rhineland and Westphalia."

Control of the entire state, communal, and country police forces of the two provinces were placed in the hands of Von Heydekamp, who will issue orders in the name of Capt. Goering. All officials must obey Heydekamp's instructions.

Newspapers Suspended.

This is the government's reply to the grave warning of Theodor Leipart, president of the General Association of German Trade Unions, who had declared, "Recent official speeches can only be interpreted as a declaration of war on organized workers. The will to freedom and the determination of German workers would make such a fight one of life and death whose terrible consequences must, in anticipation of them, intimidate the present rulers."

The draconic régime of France von Papen, vice chancellor of Germany and dictator of Prussia, were reintroduced today when among further newspaper suspensions were the socialist "Vorwaerts," organ of the second biggest party in Germany, and the republican "National Zeitung."

They were suspended until Feb. 22. Their offenses were reports on the Eisleben battle between Nazis and communists—in which two communists and one Nazi were killed—also for comments on the battle in which they "slandered" the government.

FOR ST. LAWRENCE POWER ALL GOING TO NEW YORKERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The foreign relations subcommittee, which investigated the St. Lawrence seaway treaty today recommended that the federal government turn over all power developed on the American side of the river to the state of New York.

The subcommittee said it was of the opinion that New York state should be given a monopoly of the power upon payment of so much of the total cost of the improvement as is justly chargeable against power.

If the subcommittee report is approved New York state will be given a tremendous advantage.

VIVID FINANCE DRAMA BACK OF BANK HOLIDAY

Ford, Couzens, Hoover in the Picture.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Michigan's banking holiday, which by proclamation of Gov. William A. Comstock impounded one and a half billion dollars in deposits in 500 state banks until Feb. 23, is not regarded as a major disaster or even the beginning of one. It is taken in the spirit of coöperative effort to help the bankers through a difficult situation, which is confined, however, to one institution, the Union Guardian Trust company, which has been regarded as a "Ford bank." The people of Michigan have settled down cheerfully to await developments and to get along without money for a week.

One of Banking Chain.

Whether the Union Guardian will be able to reopen is a matter of speculation. This is one of a group of 21 banks known as the Guardian Detroit Union group, which includes the Guardian National Bank of Commerce with deposits of more than $161,000,000. The Union Guardian which precipitated this trouble, listed deposits of $31,438,601 last Dec. 31. More than 70 per cent of its assets are in real estate mortgages. The liquid assets are said to be in the neighborhood of $4,000,000.

The possible reorganization of the Union Guardian, which has Clifford B. Longley, Ford company attorney; Edsel Ford, Ernest Kanzler, brother-in-law of Edsel Ford, and Roy D. Chapin, secretary of commerce, among its directors, appears to rest with Henry Ford, the Reconstruction Finance corporation and a group of industrial leaders who had agreed at one time to place large cash deposits in this bank, and had failed to do so.

Couzens Opposes Ford.

This left Henry Ford, as he put it, "holding the bag," with $7,500,000 on deposit which he had agreed to let remain there if the others would join him in helping to save the institution. They may now come forward with a reorganization plan, but substantial help from federal funds seems out of the question in the present situation. This is due largely to the attitude of Senator James Couzens, who had threatened to speak against it on the floor of the senate.

Mr. Ford and Senator Couzens, long friendly enemies, have been baiting each other for a week over this situation, it is revealed by their friends.

The story is that when the automobile magnate refused to let his $7,500,000 deposit remain "frozen" in the bank, subject to the lien of the Reconstruction corporation, Senator Couzens offered to put in ten millions if Mr. Ford would do the same.

"Jim was trying to make a sucker out of me," Mr. Ford is quoted here as having said.

Mr. Ford's attitude on this was that it was wrong in principle for a citizen to underwrite the United States government, particularly when that citizen happened to be one of the largest taxpayers.

Edsel Large Stockholder.

Edsel Ford is drawn into this situation in a variety of ways. He is a large stockholder in the company and Mr. Longley, Ford company attorney, is president of the concern.

On two previous occasions, it was learned today, Henry Ford has put millions into this bank at the request of his son.

When the present situation arose last December application was made to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan of $60,000,000. As about 70 per cent of the assets of the company were in real estate mortgages made on old valuations, that was refused. The request later was pared down to $37,000,000 and it was there that negotiations began with Mr. Ford to use his $7,500,000.

The Union Guardian had previously had a $6,000,000 loan from the Federal agency. The hitch came when Mr. Ford found that his was the only private money to be used, and that the government would have first call upon it as a quick asset.

Not only Senator Couzens, President Hoover himself called Mr. Ford yesterday on the telephone and urged him to coöperate in the way suggested, but Mr. Ford flatly refused.

Mr. Ford refused today to comment on the situation in Detroit, but said he might talk later in the week.

Seeking Special Laws.

The Union Guardian Trust company, it was announced tonight, will not open for business tomorrow morning, when the five per cent withdrawals from all accounts become effective. This is not taken as an indication of its action at the end of the moratorium. All other units of the Guardian Union group will open tomorrow.

A meeting of bank executives was held in the First National bank today. Afterwards it was announced that two bills had been sent to congress for passage during the remaining six days of the holiday. The exact nature of these bills was not disclosed, but it is said that they seek remedial legislation which will aid the entire state, not any one bank.

President Hoover, it was represented here, will urge such legislation on congress. The Michigan legislature will be asked to value bank assets, with the idea of issuing certificates against the slow assets.

Hits Detroit Finances.

The city of Detroit found itself in financial difficulties as a result of the moratorium. Last week a group of industrial leaders, who have been financing the city since last July on tax warrants and bonds, met and agreed to let the city have $2,000,000 more to meet a bond interest payment of $611,000 in New York and other immediate expenses and pay rolls. This check was due yesterday for cashing, and when it could not be cashed the city stood in technical default on its interest. The city will scrape along for a week on promises, and no essential duty will be neglected.

The street car revenues of about $40,000 a day can be used temporarily, although these are not city funds.

The banks are to open tomorrow to permit withdrawals of at least 5 per cent of deposits, and this may be increased. This is to give business men a little ready cash.

PEASANTS GATHER IN MOSCOW; REPRESENT 14,500,000 FARMERS

MOSCOW, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The all-union congress of collective farm shock brigades, the first unionwide gathering of peasants since the inception of the Soviet régime, opened tonight at the Moscow grand opera house. Fifteen hundred delegates, representing 14,500,000 collective farmers on 200,000 farms, attended.

The session was opened by Secretary Kaganovitch of the Moscow communist party, who read greetings from factory workers and party and government officials.

Today's issue of the newspaper Pravda printed a long cablegram of greetings to the congress from the militant American farmers. "Your example is a ray of light to us," the cablegram said.

TURN HUNDREDS AWAY AT LECTURE BY PROF. PICCARD

Prof. Auguste Piccard, famous for his balloon explorations of the stratosphere, told of his experiences last night before a crowd of 1,500 persons in Fisk hall, Northwestern university. Several hundred other persons could not get in.

The scientist illustrated his talk with slides, and used a billiard cue as a pointer. The pictures included photographs taken from the specially built gondola in which he and another man braved abnormally low temperatures.

"The balloon took us up at the rate of 20 miles an hour," said Prof. Piccard. "At 9½ miles, the outside temperature was 55 degrees below zero. However, we had painted one side of the gondola black, and this helped in preserving the warmth of the sun. Inside the gondola, the temperature rose to 106 degrees above zero."

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

UPHOLD KILLING OF ROBBER.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of justifiable homicide in the death of Thomas J. O'Brien, 28 years old, 6150 Ellis avenue, who was shot on Sunday by William Frasia, a bartender, who testified O'Brien attempted to rob the soft drink parlor at 604 North Dearborn street.

"MOIST THROAT' STOPPED MY COUGHING SPELLS!"

"I'm certainly glad I learned about 'moist throat'!" writes Miss A. S., of New York City.

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny "bottles" continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these pores clog. Phlegm collects. Dangerous germs find a breeding place. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

To cure your cough you must increase the flow of your throat's natural moisture, loosening the phlegm so it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely "deaden" the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble!

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of throat moisture and brings quick relief naturally.

If your throat's raw or dry, take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN now. It's safe, even for children. At drug stores, 60¢.

Stop a COLD the First Day!

Taken Promptly, this Four-Way Remedy Will Usually Stop a Cold the First Day and Save You Much Suffering as Well as the Danger of Serious Complications!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started. Once a cold fastens itself on you, it becomes twice as hard to remove. And a cold lodged in the system may lead to something worse.

Don't hope to kill a cold with merely local or external applications. A cold is a germ attack, an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment.

Don't hope to kill a cold, either, with anything except a COLD remedy. A cure-all is self-deception. Many preparations which people commonly take for a cold actually make the relief of a cold more difficult because these preparations are constipating and also make the system acid.

The Required Effects

The thing to take for a cold or case of grippe is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine—because it does the four things necessary, in the way that is necessary.

First of all, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly—the first step in knocking a cold. Secondly, it kills the cold germs in the system, expels the poisonous infection and reduces the fever. Thirdly, it relieves the headache and that grippy feeling. Fourthly, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Harmless, but Effective!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine may be safely taken by young and old and whether you stay indoors or go out. There is no penalty attached to its use. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the wold, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine now comes in two sizes—30c and 50c. Resent a substitute as an attempt to exploit you.

NOTE: During Epidemics a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine every morning and night will do much to fortify your system against infection.

You'll do it better on DATED coffee

Coffee is an unfailing stimulant. Its effect on brain and body is to quicken your reactions, make you feel gay, happy, boldly confident. But remember to guard against stale coffee.

YOU'VE heard of famous writers, inventors and lawyers, who have toiled long into the night. And how they've drunk cup after cup of coffee . . . to drive away fatigue . . . to keep them going.

That's what coffee will do . . . stimulate. But why, when some folks drink it, does it seem to make them "jumpy," irritable, cause indigestion, even?

Now science has found out. There's a big difference between the effects of fresh coffee and stale coffee!

Stale coffee contains rancid oil. If you drink stale coffee regularly, it may easily give rise to indigestion, "nerves" and moody fits of "blues."

That's why Chase & Sanborn instituted Dated Coffee. If you're a normal, healthy grown-up, you can take as many as 5 cups a day of this fresh drink without the slightest bad effects.

An expiration date is stamped on every pound. Never is a can of it allowed to stay on your grocer's shelf after its date has expired.

Order Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee the next time. You'll work harder and play longer . . . on Dated Coffee.

ETHIOPIAN RULER HIRES BRITON TO CRUSH SLAVERY

Emperor Intends to Free 2 Million Men.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Emperor Haile Selassie I. of Abyssinia today engaged Frank de Halpert of London to assist in stamping out slavery in his domains, a job which he hopes to complete within the next 15 or 20 years.

A new governmental bureau called the slavery department has been created, to which de Halpert will act as adviser.

"First of all, the emperor will send picked men to the borders where raids are still carried out in order to prevent seizures of slaves in intertribal fights, most of which result from feuds," De Halpert said.

Kidnap Women and Children.

"Blacks on the Sudan border cross the river and carry off women and children. The raids are effected secretly and swiftly and it is difficult to trace whether the seized natives are sold into slavery. There have already been established 55 slavery courts in various parts of the country where slaves may ask for freedom on different grounds, including ill treatment.

"The new department of which I am the adviser has at its head a live wire who is a young aristocrat. His assistant is a young noble who has been in France, where he obtained a copy of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' and translated it for the benefit of his countrymen."

Slavery Deeply Rooted.

Ras Tafari moved to free the 2,000,000 slaves in Abyssinia soon after he was crowned as Emperor Haile Silassie in April, 1930. He also endeavored further to stamp out slave trading, which had been driven underground by a decree issued in June, 1923, prescribing the death penalty for offenders.

An edict was issued in March, 1924, providing for the gradual emancipation of Ethiopian slaves, beginning with the children born of slaves, but slavery, deeply rooted as a domestic institution, has persisted. Last April Baron Noel-Buxton of Aylsham, chairman of the Anti-Slavery society's mission to Abyssinia, obtained a promise from the emperor to establish a special department looking toward the elimination of the system.

DICK TRACY—The Eyes Have It

DIETERICH WILL OPPOSE GREEN AND JOHNSON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Senator Elect William H. Dieterich [Dem., Ill.] announced today that he will not join with Senator Lewis and other prominent Illinois Democrats in sponsoring the respective appointments of George E. Q. Johnson and Dwight Green to the federal bench and the Chicago district attorneyship.

Mr. Johnson and Mr. Green are Republicans, now serving under a recess appointment by President Hoover. While it is customary for United States senators to recommend the appointment of members of their own party to such positions, Senator Lewis, together with Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, is understood to have agreed to ask for the appointment of the two Republicans in recognition of their services in the successful prosecution of Al Capone.

Mr. Dieterich stated that he was "unwilling to believe reports" that his future colleague in the senate and Mayor Cermak had agreed to sponsor the appointment of Johnson and Green to important federal offices in Illinois.

"While these two men are competent officials," he said today, "I am unable to understand why there should be any thought of recommending them for appointment by a Democratic senate. The offices now occupied by Judge Johnson and District Attorney Green should be filled promptly by capable Democrats, of whom we are fortunate in having an abundance in our party."

Mae Tinee Reviews New Films as They Reach Chicago Screens

Most Recipes May Be Halved to Serve Two

Trick of Revamping Cook Book Easily Learned.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented weekly by Miss Meade over station W-C-N. Tune in at 9:45 next Saturday for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

It seems to be the opinion among recipe artists that where only two or three are gathered together it's no crowd and food is hardly to be expected.

At least it must look so to the young bride who frantically leafs through her wedding cook books and decides from the "serves six" signs appended to recipes that she will have to take in boarders to eat the surplus food.

But actually, once she has mastered the tricks of recipe revamping and got a pretty accurate lineup on the size of appetites to be catered to, cooking for two or three, with seconds as wanted but few irritating leftovers, becomes as simple as cooking for six—and frequently much more fun.

In the first place many recipes may be neatly cut in half or thirds without upsetting the results. However, if the recipe is designed to serve six it is usually better to cut it in two to serve two diners, since there is a greater proportional waste on dishes and spoons when cooking is done in small quantities.

Next, remember that liquids evaporate from foods proportionately faster in cooking for two than in cooking for twenty. Use, therefore, a little more liquid in sauces, gravies, and liquid type dishes.

Egg division is always a sticker and the call for "three eggs" in a recipe to be cut in half has discouraged many a cook who balked when it came down to splitting eggs. There are two ways out. If your division leaves you seeking one and one-half eggs, use two small eggs or simply beat the to-be-divided egg slightly and divide it, covering the unused half for a later need.

But usually such maneuvers are unnecessary. There are very few recipes in which the presence of an extra half egg will make any difference. Two eggs, preferably small ones, may in most cases be regarded as half of three.

In most recipes, except those for cakes and breadstuffs, it is possible to approximate the amount of the whole recipe in cups and determine from that figure the number of servings obtainable. Usually from one-half to one cup of soup may be planned for a serving. Vegetables and creamed dishes are made into servings of about two-thirds cup per person. Desserts also average one-half to three-quarters cup per diner.

The following recipes have been worked out to supply three average servings or two generous ones:

CREAMED DISHES.

3 to 1½ cups prepared vegetable, meat, eggs, fish, etc., with 2 cup medium white sauce (2 tablespoons each butter and flour, 1 cup milk)
Seasoning

CREAM SOUPS.

(Serves Three.)
½ cup vegetables, fish, eggs, etc.
2 cups liquid (milk and juices)
1½ tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons grated onion
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of peppe.

This recipe is the background of a score of delicious soups. Carrot, onion, pea, mushroom, celery, corn, asparagus, cauliflower, salmon, chicken, tomato, and oyster soups all evolve from it. Simply prepare a thickened white sauce from the flour, fat, liquid, and seasonings. Add the onion and the chief ingredients of the soup. Usually the meat, egg, and fish are cut fine, while the vegetables are ground or sieved.

JELLIED DISHES.

(Serves Three.)
1 tablespoon gelatin
1 tablespoon to ½ cup sugar
1½ cups liquid (fruit juices, etc.)
½ cup cold water
Fruit, nuts, etc., as desired

Soak the gelatin in the cold water five minutes, then dissolve over hot water. Add the fruit juices, sugar, and fruit or nuts as desired. Let cool, then pour into cold, wet molds.

MUFFINS

(Four Medium or Six Small Muffins.)
1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons sugar
1 tablespoon melted fat
¾ cup milk
1 egg, well beaten

Sift the dry ingredients together and add the egg, milk, and melted fat. Pour into four medium sized muffin pans or six small ones. Bake in a moderately hot oven (410 degrees F.) fifteen to twenty-five minutes.

High Hats Give Hint of Spring in City's Shops

Black-White Combinations Are Effective.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Brave milliners with wild, surging ideas, whimsical hat designers with funny ideas and a few practical souls have sent into circulation some new hats that probably will make both male and female spectators wonder what it is all about!

Quite a blizzard of the high hats, literal creations with considerable altitude have arrived . . . and to say they are startling is to speak mildly. Anyway, they are different, and the gal who has shopped up and down the street begging for something that isn't a twin sister to a pan lid ought to be silent for a few hours.

It is said that these sky climbing tall hats are copied from some cocky originals worn by swaggering Cossacks or the fez of a Turk; but, whatever high hat was used for an ancestor, the copies are disconcerting things to contemplate, especially after the potato chip affairs that have been roosting on the best coiffures.

You can find some stunning looking high hat creations in navy and black, starkly simple things that shoot directly up in front and all the way around. It is nothing to find a high and up-shooting brim that is as high as four to six inches.

Black and white combinations with the white slashed into the black in diagonal sections are most effective. Some navy blue models go out with vivid splashes of red patriotically perched along the steep sides, while the plainest untrimmed high hat has an amusing little gadget right in the center of the crown that might remind some one of an abbreviated rat tail.

Some interesting white hats, with and without brims, are knockout tops for suits and coats . . . drag out the washable fabric gloves to wear with these ghostly apparitions. Look for the new white fabric hats made with a material that looks exactly like white moss; it isn't a woolly, fuzzy material, but a smooth whipped cream effect that ought to be enough different to satisfy the most capricious shopper.

Along with the return of good old-fashioned jersey for smart daytime dresses come the jersey hats—sleek, smart looking hats in navy, black, and colors. They have becoming brims that can be dipped and swirled to frame the face, whether you want both, or merely one eye, in a flattering shadow. The one accent that makes them distinctively different is the band and perky bow of white piqué—nothing could fashion a midseason hat more practically and effectively than wisps of this obliging cotton fabric combined with jersey. The pert bow and band of white piqué can be matched with neck scarfs, separate bows, and other trimmings on the wool or jersey frocks.

One black straw hat with a cut-out brim uses a scarlet silk for emphasis—the gently curving brim is cut in over the left eye, the under side of the brief but flattering brim is faced with a white dotted scarlet silk. The top of this fetching new straw glistens and shines almost wickedly. Maybe that is why only a wee little straw bow is used for extra decoration. With this hat comes a smart ascot scarf, a bit narrower than you usually see, and this neck scarf is also fashioned of the dotted red silk.

New Paintings by Newberry Tell History

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

For several years Lane K. Newberry, a Chicago artist, has been interested in painting the historic spots of Illinois. In various exhibitions during these years he has hung now one and now another of these pictures.

Last summer he made the most complete circuit he had yet attempted through the state, and the result, some thirty paintings, is hung in the Florentine parlors of the Congress hotel. The exhibit is sponsored by the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts.

Mr. Newberry wants the paintings looked at more from the standpoint of their value as historic documents than for their worth as art. Yet in many of them he has succeeded in combining good craftsmanship with his primary goal. Not least interesting is the descriptive sentence which accompanies each title in the catalogue.

There is, for example, the snow bound landscape graced by a long low building, "Branton's Tavern." This was near Galena, we read, and in August, 1832, Black Hawk held a council of war under a white oak tree here. The stump of that tree was incorporated in the floor of the inn.

"Acorns and Oaks," a desolate spot of flat brown country with a cold rivers and colder trees marking its loneliness, shows Lincoln's home. About the year 1830 Abraham Lincoln, a young man, with his father, built this cabin on Goose Nest prairie in Coles county, Illinois.

So the paintings run, touching in their passage upon the Indians, the Mormons, Lincoln, the Portage Trails, and the other events of interest which so enrich the history of Illinois. The exhibit is not pretentious; it is neither great, nor grand, nor impressive; it is interesting.

A piece of marble carved by Epstein and called "Mother and Child," a sculpture purchased fro mthe J. J. Quinn collection, is on view in the Findlay galleries, Auditorium building. The quality and texture of the stone is rich and like velvet to the touch, but the modeling, there one must hesitate.

The child is a cartoon, a sketch, a round, flat blob with a scrawl to indicate its features; the mother is Mongolian, Negroid, a long, flat featured individual, sufficiently abnormal to arouse repugnance. Yet below the heads there is clear and decisive modeling. A contradiction and a challenge, Epstein in character, in short.

The Newberry exhibit will continue into March; the Epstein may remain on view indefinitely.

Evanston Lecture.

Report $20,000 as Pledged to Music Temple

Await Week-End Reports with Anxiety.

Despite dinners, musical programs, and meetings, and the efforts of a group of persons prominent in society, the campaign to raise $100,000 conducted by the Friends of Music for the construction of a temple of music at A Century of Progress has thus far netted less than $20,000, according to authentic reports yesterday.

No definite statement could be obtained from Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, who has managed the campaign from headquarters at 104 South Michigan avenue. Mrs. Upham admitted that only one-fifth of the subscription books had been turned in. If all the subscription books of 20 tickets each were sold $82,000 would accrue to the fund.

Many of the $20 subscription books had been sold in full, some had been partly sold, and others had been returned intact, Mrs. Upham said. She declared that the exact amount netted in the campaign could not be known until next Monday, when a report would be made at a meeting of the board of directors.

"We haven't given up hope, that is certain," said Mrs. Upham. "We are watching reports with anxiety this week to ascertain just how much money has been contributed. It would do no harm to say that Chicago should be ashamed of itself if the money is not raised, because it is the only money which Chicago itself has been asked to contribute to a building for the exposition.

"Personally, I am hopeful that a large amount will be shown to have been contributed when all the subscription books are in. The books are scattered all over the state and are slow in coming in. The final survey late this week will show us definitely what has been done."

The $100,000 was to be used to construct a permanent structure within the World's Fair grounds. The stage would accommodate 600 persons, large enough to house the largest orchestra or band or chorus that is considered generally practicable in the art of making music.

Among those interested in the campaign are Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra; Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Chauncey McCormick, and a number of others.

Lorado Taft Will Design Two Statues on U. S. Fair Building

Lorado Taft will design two of the statues which will represent the departments of government on the Federal building at A Century of Progress Exposition. A contract with World's Fair officials was signed by Taft at the Administration building Tuesday, it was announced yesterday. The statues, 20 feet and 5 feet high, respectively, will symbolize the judicial branch of the government, and will decorate one of three tall towers.

On the other towers statues representing the executive and legislative branches of government will be shown. They will be designed by Raoul Josset and John H. Storrs, also Chicago sculptors.

Josset also will design six statues 6 feet tall and 7½ feet in diameter to be shown over the five entrances to the Federal building, and will execute four reliefs representing the state, treasury, army and navy departments for display in the rotunda.

Good Morning!

Well, they've got to handle Mr. James Cagney better stories than this one if they expect to keep their little star twinkle-twinkling.

The yarn and Cagney's rôle are reminiscent of "The Half Naked Truth" and Lee Tracy's characterization therein. In "Hard to Handle" the former plays a hard boiled, enterprising and ingenious publicity promoter, usually just one step ahead of the police. But, where Tracy had a funny, meaty story, Cagney has merely considerable banana oil. His performance, however, is a distinguished and live wire one.

You meet him exploiting a dance marathon. You leave him breathless after a grapefruit campaign that has socked him in the eye, but, responsive to his persuasive methods has turned about face and planted on his brow the kiss of wealth, and, you hope—wisdom.

Mary Brian, looking weird in a blonde wig—at least I HOPE it's a wig!—is the girl in the case. Her acting's all right. Ruth Donnelly delivers excellently as the maiden's brazen, grasping, unscrupulous mother. Never before, I think, have I seen a film in which mother and daughter dress like twins.

Direction is better than the story—a whole lot!

With hope hopefully springing in the breast, we await bigger and better pictures for Mr. James Cagney, who deserves them.

Given Height One Arrives at Correct Weight

Girl 5 Feet 5½ Inches Tips Scales at 120.

An illustrated booklet of Miss Donnelly's stretching exercises may be obtained by sending a stamped, self addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

One girl is five feet five and a half, the other five feet seven and one-half inches. They ask about ideal waist and hip measurements for their height. Also about ankle measurements.

The five feet five and a half-inch girl, as nearly as we can figure ideal weights, would run about 120 pounds. More of the "ideal" pursuers would probably weigh 115. But 120 pounds is a nice, healthy weight for her, without showing a sign of overweight—and better still, showing no sign of underweight. Her waist measure might be 26 inches, although twenty-five is common for this weight girl. Her hips had better not go over 37 or 38 at the most. And they could be 35 quite properly. Her bust measurement would be around 34½ and 35.

Good ankle measurement for this girl (or for almost any girl, for that matter) is around 8 inches. It might be a quarter of an inch less or a quarter more.

The five feet seven and a half girl we'd put at a weight of 125 pounds. But a couple of pounds over or under this would be all right. Her bust measurement would be a 34 or 35; her hips 35 or 36. And her ankle measurement the same as that allotted the five feet five and a half inch girl.

I'm applying these measurements to the girl inquirers rather than with any perfect figure in mind. I haven't yet seen a chart or known of one that could be used as a standard gauge for all girls of a certain height or a certain weight. The difference in bone weight makes it difficult to get up a chart of the sort. And fatty tissue distributes itself over different figures so differently.

But speaking from a health and looks angle, the ideal proportions for a girl of a certain height would most certainly name a weight at which said girl looked and felt the best.

Too, the manner in which the body is carried has everything to do with an ideal figure.

Casino Circus Act Knows It Has Rehearsed

All in Acrobatic Troupe Are Limping.

BY JUDITH CASS.

If you saw Ned Platt or Walter Frazier or Doris Winterbotham [Mrs. John R. Jr.] or Peggy Hambleton or Dorothy Schmidt or Eleanor Cochran [Mrs. John L.] limping around yesterday, don't be alarmed and think they were with Arthur Meeker Jr. when he was in an automobile collision the other night, for it's just because they're in "The Family Weyhe" that they're that way.

Mr. Meeker would be that way, too, if he had been able to attend the rehearsal at Mrs. Cochran's Tuesday night, for every one there was injured in some way, we're told, but he was so shaken up Monday night that he had to give up his place in "The Family Weyhe" and Ned Platt took it.

"The Family Weyhe" probably will be the headliner at the circus performance members of the Casino are putting on Saturday night for a benefit for the Emergency Relief fund, for as a family of English acrobats they are said by those who have seen them to be screamingly funny. The skit was put on first at a "Bright Young People's" party the Walter Brewsters gave about a year ago.

The acrobats hope to recover from Tuesday night's injuries—limps were not all the casualties, for one had a cut eyelid and another broke her specs—in time to put on a finished performance Saturday night, but in the meantime they are wondering why they ever chose to be acrobats.

Other Acts Will Be Kept Secret.

This is to be only one of a number of circus acts, but the committee in charge is shrouding everything in dark mystery, for they want the entertainment to be a surprise. The dodgers announcing the affair said that guests might be dressed as participants or spectators at a circus, but the committee hopes there will be no boiled shirts nor conventional evening gowns there, for after all that isn't the proper garb for any one seeing a country circus. You can be a "hick" but you mustn't be formal, for formality is not to be the keynote of the scheme of entertainment.

That the Casino will be as crowded as the most popular country circus or fair is assured, for the club had to stop taking dinner reservations days ago and most of the overflow from there will dine in the Lantern room of the Drake hotel.

The Bush sisters—that sounds as if they were to do an act, doesn't it?—Emeline and Carol, are getting up a progressive dinner, and the Cyrus G. Hills and the Arthur D. Bissells are among the many planning small dinners at home.

The board of governors of the Casino had a special meeting the other afternoon to decide whether or not to let down the bars enough on Saturday night to let newspaper photographers take pictures of the circus performers and spectators, and the decision was not favorable. The Casino has a rule that no newspaper "photogs" can enter the club at club parties, but of course when the club is rented to a member for a private party that rule is not enforced and it is up to the hostess to decide about this matter of great moment to society editors.

The circus is a club party, so the governors decided that a tintype artist was the only one of his profession to be admitted, although the committee in charge would have liked to have rescinded the rule for that one occasion.

Betty Histed Wedding Feb. 24.

On Feb. 24 at 4:30 o'clock in the presence of the immediate families Miss Betty Histed, daughter of the J. Roland Histeds, will become Mrs. Stephen Van Dyke Horton. The Rev. Herbert Prince will read the ceremony in the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest. As Miss Histed has been married before, she will not wear a wedding gown and she will be unattended. Around March 4 when the Hortons come back from their wedding trip to New York, they will be at home in an apartment on the north side. Mr. Horton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin P. Horton of Oak Park.

This afternoon at the Casino the trustees of A Century of Progress are entertaining at tea from 4 to 6 o'clock for Prince Spada Veralli di Potenziani of Rome.

Tonight the prince will dine at the Casino as the guest of his fellow countryman, Count Ruggero Visconti di Modrone, and the contessa, who are giving a small party for him. It is the 18th of March and not the 13th of this month that is the sailing date of the Viscontis so they will not be leaving Chicago until mid-March instead of this week as was reported.

Mrs. Robert H. McCormick and her daughter, Miss Eleanor McCormick, are entertaining at dinner tonight for Miss Florence Crane and William A. Robinson, who are to be married on Saturday. The dinner, a small one, is to be at the McCormick residence at 1260 Astor street.

Give Dinner for Mrs. Howitt.

Last night the Byron S. Harveys gave a dinner for Mrs. Henry Howitt, who is the guest for ten days of the Edward H. Bennetts, and later the party attended "Cavalcade." We are not the movie critic, but since Mae Tinée praised it so highly, perhaps it wouldn't be out of place to say that every one whom we know who has seen this great picture agrees that it is the outstanding picture of the year, perhaps of years. Nevt week Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr. will give a luncheon for Mrs. Howitt and various

MORT GREEN AND WIFE . . .

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new-made fortune, known as "Nosey Ingy," rows to town and sends Bart help and taxies home. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived in seclusion on the island fifteen years. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. He confesses in a letter left for Bart to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly Island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his invalid mother's sake, to guard the secret, and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a problem. When Bart realizes he loves Alice, he resolves to stay away from Folly Island. He sees a lot of Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcee, and soon finds himself unexpectedly engaged. The Bayleys visit New York and Bart has luncheon with them. Ingy Warren has been visiting the island and has invited Alice to Wyattville. Bart and Alice quarrel. He tells her of his engagement and she says she never wants to see him again.

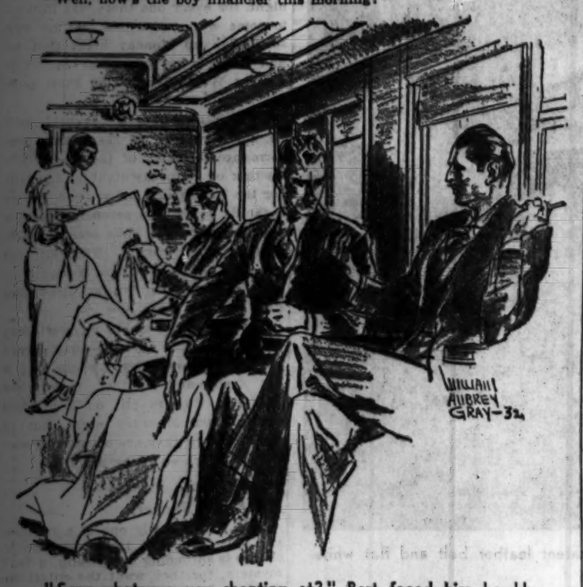
INSTALLMENT XXVIII.

FAMILY HONOR.

Business minded Wyattville usually went to New York by rail, preferring this to the nerve strain and delay of motor traffic where the roads narrow through Queens and across the bridge. The club car, being exclusive, had an air of its own. The passengers were subscribers by invitation only. Everybody knew everybody, sometimes to their mutual discomfort; the noses, eyes and spectacles behind a long line of morning newspapers were practically always the same; the same bridge games went on every morning at either end; the same white coated Elmer—more steward than Pullman porter—dispensed coffee, cigars and virgin decks of cards.

Bart sat a little away from the others, his eyes engaged with the melancholy financial reports in the newspaper. He was not in a sociable mood, and instinctively he withdrew from the political opinions and wise cracking which were sure to follow the first reading of the front page, all along the line. Again he saw the angry look in Alice's face; yes, and the passionate young love which had made it blaze. Ah, the adorable creature. . . . Savagely he crushed the thought out of his mind.

"Well, how's the boy financier this morning?"



"Say, what are you shooting at?" Bart faced him harshly.

He looked up and saw Ingy Warren in an odd brown suit, cool and porous like shredded wheat.

"O, hello." Not very invitingly. But Ingy took the next chair, offered his cigaret case and when his generosity was ignored, selected one for himself.

"Swell day to be out on the water, isn't it?" Ingy kept his voice quiet, so that it barely sounded above the rattle of the train.

"Yeah. Swell."

"Everybody has to work this summer," grumbled Ingy. "In ordinary times, now, I'd be on the water, far away. Nice water around Folly Island, when the tide's high."

"I guess so."

"Guess so?" Ingy Warren's rosebud mouth widened in a smile. "Come along, Bart. Enterprise is half the battle. And that's the very thing you've got."

"Say, what are you shooting at?" Bart faced him harshly.

"Listen, dear boy. The day we saw that Wonder Girl in the canoe we started even-Stephen, didn't we? But I was sluggish. That's my great trouble. And I certainly admire a fast worker. See what I'm shooting at now?" Merry and teasing, he laid his hand on Bart's knee.

"No." This was a lie in one syllable.

"Well, I'll tell you. That girl's about the best bet I've seen along the north shore. What did I do about it? Just went home and thought it over. But you got on the job like a fireman. Now I know what you've been doing with your Saturday afternoons. Did you make an impression? Whoo! You know I was slightly wrecked myself on that desert island the other day. And she gave me the prettiest earful—mainly about you. It was Bart this and Bart that. You certainly put up the moon for her."

Bart sat silent, considering what to do. Bust him in the jaw and spread the scandal all over Wyattville? That would be pleasant, if impractical. And how much had the Bayleys told Ingy? Very little, apparently, as his next remark showed.

"I didn't know anybody ever went to Folly Island—thought it was a government reservation, something like that. But it's like a poem, isn't it—I mean that lovely creature and all the flowers, and that sort of thing. Bart, I think you and I are pretty lucky sailors. I mean, getting ourselves stranded in those waters."

It was evident that the puppet master's quick little mind was plotting, plotting, some new, delightful combinations, embarrassing to everybody but himself. The train was now roaring through the tunnel, men were getting up, reaching for their hats. And Ingy Warren was leaning over, his chin within splendid punching distance of a restive fist.

"I think you're damned impertinent," said Bart against his better judgment.

"Think I'm what?"

"Damned impertinent."

"O, yes." With the cheerful smile of good fellowship. "I guess we're both that, aren't we?"

The train drew up at a platform under the Pennsylvania station.

Bart was now in a cold rage, but not too angry to regret his show of temper. There was no heading Ingy off by barking at him. To resort to simple racketeering and beat him up would accomplish nothing. That had been tried before, and without success—witness the scandal in at least one family, leading to a divorce and a carefree victory for Ingy Warren. And here was no case for strong arm methods. The honor of the family required dishonorable silence, and subterfuges more dishonorable still.

Out on the platform the tremendously cordial Trevor Wyatt was consorting with a puggy old gentlemen; somehow you knew that his panama hat covered a perfectly bald head. As Bart came along cordial Trev caught him by the elbow and said, "Gen. Farnham." The general made a bronchial noise, focused bovine eyes through very small nose glasses and said, "Barton Burgess? Kinsman of mine. How do you do? How's your mother? Hope she'll let us call before we go. See Lora in Philadelphia now and then."

They walked together to the main rotunda of the station, where Trev Wyatt spoke of hurrying to the subway; apparently he had had enough of the general for one morning. But as he marched along beside Bart, reciting a Genesis chapter of Farnham's leading up to Mrs. Trevor Burgess, the young man had one of those flashes which come sometimes from a morbid state of mind. Philadelphia. And Gen. Farnham was Philadelphia from Rittenhouse square to Radnor. Philadelphia. Mrs. Bayley had mentioned it so secretively on Bart's first meeting with her. The telegram on her desk, under the book, had been dated from Philadelphia. . . .

"I wonder if you know any Bayleys in Philadelphia?"

That was an idiotic question, thought Bart, as soon as he had asked it. Bayley was a cooked up name, adopted for purpose of evasion.

"How do you spell the name?" The general was a little deaf.

"Never heard of 'em."

That settled the Bayleys, swept beyond the social register, back to the telephone book. And the general should have known. He took ten minutes of Bart's time reciting the family archives line by line. In saying good-by his handshake was full of grandeur, a little like Aunt Augusta's.

Bart Burgess, going on his way, had few thoughts to waste on Gen. Farnham and his book of family origins. In the Burgess blood Bart had no great pride any more. It had turned against him.

GASOLINE ALLEY—A WILL AND NO WAY

U. S. Traffic Rules Puzzle Una O'Connor

She Can't Grasp Custom of Driving to Right.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 15.—Una O'Connor, the Irish-English actress whom Fox imported to play the maid in "Cavalcade," has not yet gotten accustomed to the queer way in which American motor traffic takes the right side and other peculiarities. Steering her new Yankee automobile into the Fox Westwood Hills lot she juggled her controls and her car bumped, banged and sidewiped three nearby cars. A horrified attendant ran up to help, but his answer was, "Let it be; I've got to learn by experience, haven't I?"

Charlie Mack and his partner, Moran, of "Two Black Crows," have returned from a vaudeville swing and are working on "Hot Hoofs," race track comedy directed by Harry J. Edwards, for Educational Comedies. Wheeler Oakman and Iris Lancaster, who, like the boys wear blackface, head the cast.

A year or so ago Mary Miles Minter had a small fortune in local real estate. She secured a $75,000 trust deed with her personal note, a Los Angeles mortgage company foreclosed, sold the property, and now is suing Mary for $41,008, which the selling price fell short of the $75,000. The litigation has been conducted under the former actress' own name, Juliet Reilly.

Benita Hume's appendicitis operation today was termed a quick success, and her part in "Service" at MGM is being held open pending an expected rapid recovery. Incidentally the talkie version of "Service" has been expanded to include the modern business phenomenon of chain stores.

Sam Goldwyn showed me a screen test of Anna Sten, his Russian "find," before the producer left for New York yesterday. It was a scene from "Mata Hari," in which the spy vamps Barry Norton, and it really was an intense and passionate ten minutes of acting. When it was over Mr. Goldwyn's comment was: "See. Didn't I tell you? I predict she will be the Greta Garbo of 1933 and 1934."

It's a big order to fill for a girl who never has appeared in one American film performance; but this man Goldwyn has a remarkable faculty for picking finds. I suggest you paste his prediction in your memory, and see who the champion lady star is at Christmas time, 1933.

Mrs. Jack London leaves this month with a movie yachting expedition headed by Arthur R. Robinson and Willard Dittmar for Central American jungles. Patricia O'Neill, British novelist; J. Maurice Ruddy and Lieut. Seymour Pond, British adventurers, and Capt. Earl Dunning, world traveler, are in the party, which proposes to film archaeological subjects and film backgrounds for use in future romance pictures.

Polly Moran got Ben Kendall, an old Chicago police reporter, to take her on a night trip through the slums and drab hangouts of Los Angeles night creatures this week. "It's a great experience," Polly said when the police car finally turned back to the station from the oriental quarter. "It makes an old saloonkeeper's daughter feel like a queen."

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hoving are at the Plaza from Lake Forest, Ill., where they are making their home for the present. Mrs. Hoving is the former Miss Mary Osgood Field.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Blair Wailes of the Hotel Carlyle will sail on Saturday on the Vulcania for Rio De Janeiro.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jacques Balsan, who arrived from Paris on the Berengaria last week, are visiting the latter's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt.

WEDDING

Moses Korn of 5053 Drexel boulevard is announcing the approaching marriage of his daughter, Zorabel, to Morris S. Telechansky, which will take place Sunday, Feb. 19.

other things are planned for her during her visit to Chicago.

Prof. and Mrs. Alfred E. Emerson will have a dinner party for Dr. William Beebe tonight before he tells of his experiences in a "bathysphere" at Mandel hall at the University of Chicago. The Emersons are old friends of Dr. Beebe, Prof. Emerson having accompanied him immediately after the war on three different expeditions to British Guiana.

On Monday evening Dr. Beebe is to be the guest of the Howard C. Ballengers in Winnetka before his talk at the New Trier Township High school. The Ballengers' younger son, John, is to introduce Dr. Beebe that evening, since he is president of the New Trier Boys' club.

Mrs. Borden to Arrive Today.

When Mrs. John Borden arrives tomorrow morning from Grenada, Miss., she will be met by Mr. Borden and then hurry out to Lake Forest, where she is to be the week-end guest of the Robert A. Gardners. Mrs. Gardner will entertain for her at a small dinner party tomorrow evening and on Monday Mrs. Gardner's sister, Mrs. James C. Hutchins, will have another party for her at her home in Astor street.

Mrs. Borden is planning to come in town Monday morning to be the guest of Mrs. Hutchins until Friday, when she will leave for Washington, D. C. She has asked her two hostesses to leave her time as free as possible, for she has a great deal of business to attend to in connection with her new novel that is to make its appearance next week.

A half hour after Baron and Baroness Wolfgang Peck von Pecoz arrived in Lake Forest yesterday they were besieged with telephone calls from their many friends who want to see them and entertain for them during the next fortnight. But all they could say on such short notice was, "We've had a perfectly glorious time and we can't tell yet what our plans will be."

Baroness von Pecoz is the former Martha Morse Stibolt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse, and her husband is a member of an old Munich family with one of the largest estates in Bavaria. Mrs. Stibolt met Baron von Pecoz while studying in Munich, where her family has a home, and was married to him last December with only a few of her friends having even an inkling of the romance.

Western Trip Is Honeymoon.

The trip has been a western honeymoon to Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, the Grand Canyon, and Santa Fé. It was a particular treat for Baron von Pecoz, since he is seeing America for the first time, and Baroness von Pecoz had two delightful weeks in Seattle with her sister, Mrs. William S. Covington, and her husband and the three little Covingtons.

Mrs. Morse, who went west several weeks ago to visit the Covingtons, expected to be on hand to welcome Baron and Baroness von Pecoz when they returned to Lake Forest, but her visit in Seattle has been lengthened another week. The Von Pecozes will be at the Morses until March 9, when they will sail for Germany. After April 1 they will make their home at Renata strasse 73, Munich.

The young gentleman who first saw light of day at the Presbyterian hospital early Tuesday morning will probably be named Robert Carr Hodgkins after his mother's father, Robert F. Carr, so Mrs. William Press Hodgkins, his mother, told me yesterday. The baby has an elder brother, William Press Hodgkins Jr. So far little Robert doesn't resemble any one, his mother says, but it's a bit soon to decide whether he favors mother or father.

News Notes of Winter Vacations.

Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum leaves today to visit Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tietgens in Gainesville, Fla. She will be back in a fortnight, or three weeks at the most, for, being president of the Fortnightly, she does not feel that she can take a very long winter vacation this year.

Miss Theresa Rew, daughter of the Irwin Rews of Evanston, is having a wonderful time in Florida. This week she is spending with her cousin, Mrs. George S. Haskell, in Clearwater, and then she returns to Palm Beach to the home of Mrs. Albert R. Hansen, where she will stay until she comes home the first of March. Mr. Hansen is going down soon to spend March in Florida.

Mrs. Haskell and her children, who have been living in Warm Springs, Ga., for several years, will return from Clearwater in June, which is good news to Mrs. Haskell's friends, for it means that she is recovered enough from the infantile paralysis which had made it necessary for her to be in Georgia to be at home again.

George Stuart and his two daughters, Miss Harriet Stuart and Miss Elizabeth Stuart, are packing this week for a three weeks' vacation in southern California. They plan to leave town either today or tomorrow.

Mrs. William A. Yager is leaving tonight for the wedding of her nephew, Guy A. Thomas Jr. of Minneapolis, to Miss Jeannette Underhill of Buffalo. Then Mrs. Yager may go to Washington, if it's not too cold, and return here in ten days before she goes out to California, where the Yagers have a home in Beverly Hills.

Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Gustav Baumann, in Paris, is arriving the end of this week in New York and is expected home the first part of next week.

The Ronald J. Chinnocks are back in town from a vacation down at Biloxi. And there isn't any one happier to see them back than Patches, their six months' old terrier. Patches couldn't make the trip since he is troubled with sea sickness as soon as he enters an automobile.

Forewarned it would seem Mr. and Mrs. William H. Avery with their daughter, Miss Virginia Avery, and their son, William H. Avery Jr., left the day before the big blizzard for a fortnight's vacation in Miami. They will be at home again this week-end in time for Mrs. Avery to make plans for the party of the Kentucky society of Evanston, to which she will be hostess the evening of Feb. 28.

Mrs. Arthur H. Hedly and her daughter, Miss Marion Hedly, are leaving tomorrow morning to motor east for a short holiday. Miss Hedly is going for the junior prom at Yale on the 24th. Mrs. Hedly will meet her sister, Mrs. Albert Stahelin of Detroit whose daughter, Miss Betty Stahelin, was a debutante of the last season.

Two more travelers are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Friestedt and they are both leaving for warmer climes. Frederick Friestedt leaves Saturday for Miami and Luther Friestedt sails the same day from New York for Bermuda.

Alliance Holds Causerie Today.

Another dozen flannel baby dresses will be turned over to the Red Cross today as the result of the fourth "causerie" of the Alliance Française this afternoon in the alliance library in the Fine Arts building. Arthur Allais, president of the society, is to give readings from Victor Hugo between 3 and 4 o'clock and between 4 and 5. Mrs. Allais, Mrs. Allen Howes, Mrs. Robert Barbee, Mrs. A. J. Van Thielen, and Mme. Jules Bloch, hostesses for the afternoon, will prepare tea for all of the needleworkers.

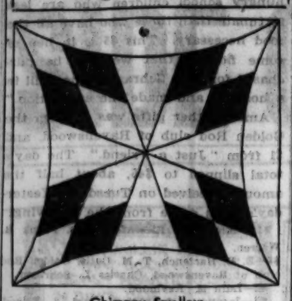
Although it's over two months until it takes place the members of the Oak Park Juniors and the Junior auxiliary of the Infant Welfare already are busy with preparations to make this year's party the most successful ever. It is to be on April 21 at the Drake hotel and as usual, it will be a supper dance with all sorts of gay carnival features.

Miss Jean Dean Cole will arrive in Chicago today from Washington, D. C., where she is head mistress of Mount Vernon seminary. Miss Cole is to be the guest of the Chicago alumnæ of the seminary tomorrow afternoon at a tea at the Woman's Athletic club. Miss Jeanne Street, their president, will be the hostess.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker will entertain Admiral and Mrs. Wat T. Cluverius, Mrs. William H. Hubbard and the foreign consuls in the city and their wives at dinner preceding the card party and dance to be given on Feb. 22 at the Army and Navy club for the benefit of the Army Relief society. Numerous other dinner parties are being planned, among the hosts and hostesses being Col. and Mrs. Stanley Clark.

Dr. and Mrs. John H. Cadmus of 1163 Tower road, Hubbard Woods, announce the engagement of their daughter, Edwina Martha, to Melvin D. Losey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer D. Losey of Springport, Mich. Miss Cadmus attended Northwestern university and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.

Early Kentucky Life Is Reflected in Quilt Pattern



Chimney Swallow

BY NANCY CABOT.

Another example of the Kentucky influence, the "Chimney Swallow" quilt pattern dates back to early pioneer days. Are you reminded of the little log cabins with the big broad stone chimneys and the old fashioned wood burning fireplaces? You don't have to be a native Kentucklan to conjure up such a vision.

For a pattern of the "Chimney Swallow" design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Girl Who Visits a Man's Rooms Is Talked About

It Just Isn't Done, Says Doris.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The young man is out of work. The girl visits his rooms—bachelor's quarters, he calls them. Her mother is distracted. The girl is 21 and though her mother has faith in her girl's ability to take care of herself, gossip is aircady afoot about her frequent evenings at the man's rooms.

Well, many things have changed since we were a girl! Some of them for the better, and three cheers for them! But this business of a young girl visiting bachelor rooms or apartments alone and remaining late into the evening is not among one of the changes for the better.

The chief reason for decent folk not sanctioning the practice is that men have not changed appreciably enough. Nor has human nature—including the girl's. Set a stage with all the elements for liberty or license, and that's pretty much what the actors who play on it get.

The bachelor apartment has become pretty much of an institution in our midst now. Conducted with an eye to the conventions, there is no more danger in it than in a town hall. But a good many of these apartments are not conducted with an eye to the conventions and that is why folk unleash a gossip tongue when young girls are seen entering them unattended.

The important argument, however, is that no young man honestly in love with a girl and with the right intentions concerning her would be a party to her being talked about. He would not have her coming to his rooms nor to a bachelor apartment of any kind alone. When it comes right down to it, about the young woman, a man is sincerely and decently interested in he is more jealous of her reputation than she sometimes is herself.

A girl a man's just playing around with is another matter. So long as she is willing to play the unconventional game the consequences are up to her. And don't any of you young girls fool yourselves that it's old fashioned to keep yourselves from being talked about. It's just being smart to keep your stock at par.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE MYSTERY AT GUNPOWDER CREEK.

"You know, sheriff, at times nothing is quite so baffling as the obvious," said Joe Fordney as the two sat chatting on the ranchhouse porch. Their conversation was interrupted by "Bugs" Cain, who reined in his galloping horse and drawled, "Evenin', sheriff. Came to tell yuh 'Scotty' Hawk's been murdered near Red Star ranch."

"Come on, Joe," shouted Gill, getting into action.

The three men rode to where Hawk lay, shot through the heart. Absence of blood on the ground showed he hadn't been killed there. Fordney found further confirmation in Hawk's mud matted hair. It hadn't rained in two weeks!

The sheriff, recognizing the significance of this, suggested the ford in Gunpowder creek.

"The water's right low now and considerable of that mud bottom's uncovered. Let's look around."

On the right bank they came upon two sets of footprints leading to the ford. There they found evidences of a struggle, but again no blood stains, which, in any event, would not long have remained visible in the mud.

"Let's compare his boots with these prints," suggested Fordney. Cain rode back and took the shoes from the dead man's feet.

"H'mmm," mused the young criminologist shortly after "Bugs" returned. "The prints are similar, but they weren't made by these."

"Go get 'em," interrupted Gill.

"Well, Joe, are you satisfied now? These boots of Hawk's fit one set of prints EXACTLY. THIS is where he was killed, all right!"

"To the contrary, sheriff. Hawk wasn't murdered either here or where we found him!"

WHY WAS FORDNEY SURE OF IT?

Quilted Taffeta Makes Stunning Paris Ensemble

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Cloqué, matelassé, and quilting all mean one and the same thing—the smartest material in French fashions for spring. Woolens, silks, cottons, and chiffons are coming out of the looms all puckered and quilted, to be called cloqué or matelassé. Taffeta is the latest material to fall afoul of this vogue, and to come out crinkled and rough looking.

The Vera Borea ensemble shown in our sketch today, is made of quilted taffeta, or taffeta cloqué, as they call it in Paris. The dress is black and the jacket is old rose in color. Special Borea costume jewelry goes with the outfit, and consists of pliable, woven silver circles, like the rims of plates and saucers, one for the neck and one for the wrist.

The jacket is a bolero with leg o' mutton sleeves that extend well over the hands. The back of the jacket is cut up in a point below a diagonal seam from the right shoulder.

The dress has a plain, square-necked bodice, which is fitted and ends in a curve at the hipline in back, while in front it has a draped girdle held in by a silver buckle. The skirt is full in front and back, the back being gathered on to the bodice and the front having two box plaits and a gathered godet at the center front.

Childish Fight Settles Issue in Boys' Lives

Mother Wisely Lets Them Alone.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Here is an anecdote as told to me the other day:

Two brothers, 16 months apart in age, had been in the same class throughout their school years, having started in kindergarten together. When they became juniors in high school both were very popular with their school mates. Both were nominated for class president. The younger brother won the election.

The boys were about the same height and weight and looked about the same age. The elder boy, however, had better control of himself than the younger. When they had little fights, as brothers will, the elder boy always got the best of it because the younger boy lost control and cried. However, their mother would never let them fight it out, although their father advised her to do so.

One day the mother and the little 7 year old brother were seated in the dining room eating their lunch and the big brothers were in the living room across the hall. Suddenly a noise of battle came from the living room. Not a word was spoken, but the two boys rolled around furiously, banging into the furniture, and threatening to break the double glass doors leading into the hall. It was a real fight for supremacy.

The little boy whispered to his mother: "Aren't you going to stop them? They'll break all the furniture. O, if they'd only go outdoors! Aren't you going to say anything, mother?"

But his mother shook her head no and just sat still and held on to herself. Somehow she realized that something important was being settled in that living room.

Finally the boys stopped fighting and went up to their rooms. Nothing was said to the mother, nor did she speak to them. Afterwards she found out that they had started fighting over a piece of paper which each one wanted—something of no consequence. And, as it happened, this time the younger brother won because he kept his head. He got the scrap of paper.

Those two brothers have never had a fight since that day. They treat each other as equals now. The younger boy had proved that he could be as self-controlled and determined as the elder.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Jackie, age 5, returned from kindergarten one day looking very glum. His mother asked if anything was wrong. He said: "I don't like my teacher."

"Why?" asked his mother.

"She called me a dirty elephant."

Upon investigation the mother found that the teacher had remarked to another teacher in his hearing that Jackie was a disturbing element in the room. L. B.

Russian Trio Really Plays as Ensemble

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Here in Chicago there is a chamber music organization called the Russian trio, and it is to a marked extent more able than the most of its kind. Its membership consists of Nina Mesirow-Minchin, piano; Michael Wilkomiraki, violin, and Oscar Eiler, cello. It proved its quality by appearing in Kimball hall last night.

Ensemble playing has a definite connotation. It implies teamwork, wherein no single player permits his own personality to be obtrusive at the expense of the others. This is entirely true of the Russian trio, except that their teamwork is of an extraordinarily brilliant kind. One hears them racing along at what sounds like a reckless dash, but whatever may be their speed, they are holding together, tossing the ball of melody to and fro and never missing it on the uptake.

This is playing of an unusual order, though they demonstrated their fitness with only two works, the Brahms trio in C minor, No. 8, and the Tschaikowsky trio, opus 50. They were interesting, and their next appearance will be looked for as an event.

Rudolph Ganz begins tonight a brief service as conductor of the last three concerts of the Omaha Symphony orchestra. Gitta Gradova, Chicago pianist, will be the soloist tonight.

COLOMBIA STRIPS PERUVIA INSIGNIA FROM LEGATION

Both Sides Claim Victory in Leticia Battle.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The Colombian government today delivered the passports of the personnel of the Peruvian legation, and took down the coat of arms of Peru from the legation building, precipitating a demonstration from a crowd which packed nearby streets.

(By diplomatic usage the delivery of passports to the representatives of a foreign nation is the equivalent of breaking off diplomatic relations between the two governments involved.)

The return of the passports followed shortly after the opening of hostilities between the forces of Colombia and Peru near the port of Leticia, on the upper Amazon. Since Sept. 1, 1932, when Peruvian nationals seized Leticia, the two nations have been in conflict over the border territory.

Claim Capture of Town.

News from the front told of the capture by Colombian trgops of the town of Tarapaca, on the Putumayo river about 80 miles north of Leticia. The Putumayo runs into the Amazon east of Leticia and Tarapaca.

"Our flag floats on the hills of Tarapaca, captured in battle by the artillery supported by planes," said a message received by President Olaya Herrera from Gen. Alfredo Vasques Cobo, the Colombian commander in the field. "Troops have been disembarked. Congratulations. All's well."

The general informed the president that strong entrenchments were found in Tarapaca hill after the occupation. He reported that his men captured $250,000 worth of war material, including six .75 Krupp guns, eight mountain guns, and numerous machine guns, as well as a store of ammunition.

Fabio Lozano Jr., Colombian minister to Peru and son of the Colombian ambassador to the United States, was instructed to make a formal protest to the Peruvian government against the alleged attack yesterday on the Colombian flotilla "while in neutral [Brazilian] waters, which continued in Colombian waters in which the flotilla was navigating in order to accomplish its police mission in Colombian territory."

Peru Claims Victory.

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The Peruvian government claimed victory against the Colombians in its first official statement today on the battle fought yesterday at Tarapaca. An official announcement said Peruvian artillery and airplanes defeated the Colombian river flotilla after the Colombians had shelled Tarapaca for fifty minutes.

Meanwhile a squadron of amphibian airplanes, bound for the front, arrived at Iquitos and was enthusiastically welcomed.

Col. Antonio Beingolea, minister of war, started today for Iquitos.

In its first version of the outbreak of hostilities the government said:

"The Colombian flotilla opened fire with artillery against Peruvian planes on a reconnoitering flight. Then they shelled the Peruvian position at Tarapaca for fifty minutes.

Land Batteries Answer Fire.

"The land batteries, supported by the planes, answered the fire, defeating the attacking flotilla, which fled into sheltering neutral waters. The Tarapaca troops remained in position.

"The Peruvians, through this gallant action, obtained a decisive victory in this first stage of a fight which they did not provoke."

It was reliably understood that Peru was taking up with Rio de Janeiro the question of the retirement by the Colombians to Brazilian waters after the Tarapaca fight. The newspaper El Comercio said the question presented an interesting international problem, as a neutral country must disarm a belligerent crossing its frontier.

U. S. WILL SEIZE AN EX-IOWAN AS LONDON GRAFTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—United States Commissioner Francis O'Neil issued a warrant today for the arrest of Oscar Merrill Hartzel. He is a former Iowa farmer, who has been deported by the British government on charges that he swindled Americans out of from $800,000 to $1,000,000 in the last ten years in London. Hartzell's most recent American address is Monmouth, Ill.

Hartzell will arrive here tomorrow morning aboard the steamship Champlain of the French line and United States marshals will meet the ship to arrest him.

According to John S. Pratt, special assistant to the United States attorney general in Washington, Hartzel will be prosecuted on charges that he defrauded hundreds of credulous Americans by representing that he had an assignment on the estate of Sir Francis Drake, British naval hero of Queen Elizabeth's reign, but a nonexistent estate, according to the British government.

Japan Gripped by War Fever; Stocks Continue Toboggan

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Feb. 16.—[Thursday.]—(AP)—The stock exchanges in Tokio, Osaka, and Nagoya, which closed yesterday as a result of a slump in prices following upon increasing anti-Japanese sentiment in Geneva, reopened this morning, but the lower price tendencies that have been felt since Monday continued. Big banks have advanced 20,000,000 yen (currently about $4,210,000) to brokers to tide them over the crisis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 15.—For the first time in months a tense atmosphere, reminiscent of the hectic days during the war in Manchuria and at Shanghai last year, was prevalent today. Newsboys, selling extra editions, jangled their bells from dawn to midnight. The newspapers devoted their entire front pages to the league of nations' rejection of Tokio's conditions for settlement of the Sino-Japanese dispute and to the action of the league's committee of nineteen in unanimously adopting a report condemning Japan's actions in Manchuria.

Ultra-nationalist self-styled patriots again sounded grave warnings, and sent bold petitions to Premier Makoto Saito. Stocks sustained further sharp losses throughout the day. The Tokio, Nagoya and Osaka exchanges suspended operations. Munitions shares spurted.

Many Factors for Alarm.

Factories manufacturing military supplies have renewed their activities and it is to this, as well as to troop movements in the Chinese province of Jehol; the decision of the United States to keep its Atlantic fleet in the Pacific; Japan's enormous war budget, which was passed by the diet yesterday, and Russia's armament plans that sensation mongers point with alarm, thus increasing the anxiety among the people and forcing the collapse of stocks.

Business men and economists, alarmed at the drop in stocks, are reassuring the public through the press and over the radio that there is no possibility of an economic blockade of the nation.

The cabinet met again this afternoon, after which Admiral Saito proceeded to the palace for a conference with the emperor.

Yomiuri, a newspaper serving the middle classes, reports that Count Yasuya Uchida, foreign minister, cabled Yosuke Matsuoka, Japan's chief delegate to the league, to return to Japan at any time. Another report said Matsuoka had asked permission to return soon by way of the United States, where he hoped to see President Elect Roosevelt. It was said this request was granted, although Matsuoka will have no official mission in the United States.

The All Japan University Professors' association presented a resolution to Premier Saito demanding that Japan withdraw from the league. Numerous other groups are presenting strong petitions.

Count Makino, who was the target of numerous assassination plots last year, resigned today as imperial household minister. He was succeeded by Chief Finance Inspector Kurahei Yuasa. Count Makino gave failing health as his reason for resigning.

Invoke Nine Power Pact.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Feb. 16.—Provision for invocation of the nine power treaty guaranteeing the integrity of China is contained in the draft recommendation of the league of nations on the Sino-Japanese situation, on which the league assembly will begin discussion on Feb. 24. Also, the way is paved for consultation with the United States as soon as the report is adopted.

These facts were made plain tonight in an unofficial translation of the preliminary French text of the last section of the league's representations. It reads, in part:

"Because of special circumstances involved, the solution recommended differs from a simple return to the status quo previous to September, 1931. It equally excludes maintenance of recognition of the existing régime in Manchuria. The members of the league ought to continue not to recognize this régime either de jure or de facto. They mean to abstain regarding the situation in Manchuria from any isolated action and to continue to concert action among themselves as well as, if possible, with the action of nonmember states."

FRENCH CABINET FACES NEW CRISIS OVER TAX BOOST

Senate Balks at Levy on Fixed Incomes.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 15.—A conflict between the Socialist dominated chamber of deputies and the more conservative senate over the budget bill was precipitated today when the senate committee, which is discussing the budget, first eliminated the crisis surtax on fixed incomes proposed by the government, and then voiced disapproval of the proposed $25,000,000 cut in national defense expenditure.

The senate did not say how far it thought military expenses could safely be reduced, merely tacking on an amendment lowering the government's estimate by $4 to provoke discussion.

Concerned for Security.

The concern of the senate for national security is inspired partly by the advent of Adolf Hitler as chancellor in Germany, but chiefly by the alleged transportation of bombing planes and other war material from Italy to Hungary, about which the war ministry is said to have precise and detailed information.

In eliminating the crisis surtax the senate seeks to substitute for it a 5 per cent cut in salaries of state employés, which the government sought to dodge. Another cabinet crisis is feared as the outcome of the senate's action.

With the senate taking a stand against additional taxation and for governmental economy, nourishment was given to the conflict which today divides all France into two warring camps—those who support the government and those who are supported by it. The first test of strength will come tomorrow, when representatives of the first category, the taxpayers, will manifest opposition by a series of imposing demonstrations. The chief of these will be the closing of shops in Paris and many provincial cities throughout the country tomorrow afternoon.

Unions Threaten Premier.

On the other hand, unions of civil servants are getting ready for collective strikes or other forms of direct action against pay cuts. The most powerful group of civil servants, the Confederated cartel, today addressed an ultimatum to Premier Daladier, which is probably unique as a message from employés to the head of a state After protesting against tax dodgers and fiscal privileges, the ultimatum says:

"Through the Confederated cartel, the agents of public services warn you, monsieur president of the council, that they will resist by all means at their disposal the selfishness unloosed against their dignity and their material interests; they will fight against those who wish to strike at them in order to break their strength, and if it is a social conflict that is thus being opened they accept the risks, determined to conquer."

BULLITT RETURNS HOME AND DENIES WAR DEBT STORY

New York, Feb. 15.—William C. Bullitt, the journalist whose activities in Europe this winter have been a matter of some concern to the state department, came back to America today professing no little astonishment over the ruckus he had raised.

Mr. Bullitt told reporters that he had been representing no one but himself in his travels about European capitals and wanted it understood that he had never made any pretentions to the contrary.

Most certainly he said he had never posed either as an "envoy extraordinary" of this country abroad, or as the personal representative of President Elect Roosevelt, in connection with certain secret international negotiations.

"It's silly—ridiculous," he blurted when questioned on the fuss supposed to have been made in high official quarters over his doings.

Mr. Bullitt arrived here on the Europa. He said he would go immediately to his home in Philadelphia.

IL DUCE CHARGES FRANCE PLOTS TO STIR UP TROUBLE

Says Reports of Alliance Are "Inventions."

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 15.—At a meeting of hi cabinet today Premier Mussolini dealt with accusations brought by Deputy Jean Ybarnegaray before the committee on foreign affairs in the French chamber of deputies recently that Italy, Germany, and Hungary on Aug. 7, 1932, had formed a new triple alliance to further Italy's seizure of Albania and Germany's seizure of the Danzig corridor.

Mussolini made a short outline of recent political events and declared that the charges concerning the triple alliance were pure inventions designed by France to be provocative of disorders in Europe.

Relations Are Strained.

Official denial that such an alliance had been formed was issued here some days ago. Significance was given the situation which has arisen between France and Italy from the fact that today's cabinet meetting was held apparently to deal extensively with the reports about the alliance and that Mussolini added another official denial.

For the moment, at least, tension between France and Italy has been renewed and hopes that the new French ambassador to Italy, Robert de Jouvenal, could arrange an entente between the two Latin sisters have been set aside.

At the same time that Italy has been letting the French know that it does not desire to enter discussions for an entente at the present time French policies were pictured today in Mussolini's newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, as being a menace to the peace of Europe.

Hurls Charges at France.

Mussolini's paper charged the French with deliberately seeking to provoke a troubled situation in Europe and compared the charges of a newly formed triple alliance with the famous telegram altered by Bismarck which provoked the Franco-Prussian war.

"No one menaces France," declares Mussolini's paper. "It is France, with her formidable armaments, her intrigues, her egotism, her ignorance of the needs of other peoples, her military alliances, and her munitions makers, who is menacing the world."

The article was dated from Rome, which indicates that it may have been inspired by Mussolini himself.

The European situation is further complicated by reports that Jugo-Slavia fears a revolt against King Alexander's dictatorship and has asked that the little entente come to Jugo-Slavia's aid in case of internal troubles in Jugo-Slavia.

BRITISH MOVE TO GET DEBT TALKS IN LONDON SEEN

Would Isolate U. S. Representatives.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—A scheme to switch the war debts discussion from Washington to London is indicated by agitation now going on to have Prime Minister MacDonald go to Washington immediately after President Elect Roosevelt's inauguration and have a talk with the new President.

Advocates of this plan insist they do not expect MacDonald to conduct long and intricate negotiations, but to "create a favorable atmosphere." The suggestion, first made in the London Times, was followed up editorially today and now is being taken up by other newspapers. All official sources deny any knowledge of the plan.

Would Benefit British.

In some usually well informed quarters, however, it is being hinted that MacDonald might persuade Roosevelt that debts and the world economic crisis have so much in common that after preliminary discussions between debts experts at Washington, the question should be referred to the world economic meeting in London of which MacDonald will be chairman.

The advantages from the British point of view are obvious. Such a plan would isolate the American representatives and bring them face to face with the bloc of European debtors who, whatever may be said about a united front, are joined by common interests against the interest of the United States.

Lloyd George Flays Government.

In the house of commons tonight David Lloyd George, who was prime minister during the war and is now leader of the newly formed opposition party of twelve Welsh Liberals, made one of his infrequent but active appearances. He assaulted policies of the government along the whole line from war debts to the gold standard, the reparations agreement and the world economic conference.

The government's policy, he said, is all wrong, besides being weak and futile. It tried to settle international debts without settling Britain's debt to America, he said. Lausanne produced a reparations agreement with "all its," he said, which now was to be gone all over again.

As for the world economic conference, he wanted to know if the government is prepared to allow an increase of imports of American manufactured goods and American raw materials? Every nation, he said, is going to the conference to seek concessions—none is ready to make them. He warned that if at the end of the conference the nations had nothing but provisional agreements, "conditions might be catastrophic."

More Discussion in House.

Earlier in the day George Lansbury, Labor leader, tried once more to get the prime minister to promise the house an opportunity to discuss any settlement before it was agreed upon.

MacDonald, after trying to avoid a direct answer, made it plain he had no intention of subjecting the fate of the settlement to debate in the commons. He also refused to make any clear statement as to the government's plan of action in the debts discussion.

RAIL MEN AGAIN FIGHT TROOPS IN RUMANIA; 24 HURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 15.—The communist uprising in Rumania shifted today from Cluj to the capital. Four thousand railway workers took possession of the government shops here and twice repulsed attempts by police and troops to force them to surrender. They are demanding the release of eleven of their leaders who have been arrested as communists.

Twenty-four workers and soldiers were wounded in today's fighting. Following the second unsuccessful attack on the shops late tonight, officials ordered troops to surround the shops and try to starve the workers into submission. The barricaded railmen have threatened to blow up the shops as a last resort.

LEGISLATORS IN NEW YORK OPEN FIRE ON BOXING

Schaaf Death Brings Demand for Probe.

Mexican Boxer Dies

OAXACA CITY, Mexico, Feb. 15.— (AP) —Felix Barron, middleweight boxer, died here last night from the effects of a knockout blow received Sunday in a bout with Hugo Monterrubio. Both were railroad employés. Physicians said Barron died of a congestion of the brain, an injury similar to that which caused the death of Ernie Schaaf at New York.

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Assemblyman Saul S. Streit, Tammany Democrat, today introduced in the state legislature at Albany a bill to appoint a committee to conduct an inquiry into boxing and wrestling in New York as a result of the death of Ernie Schaaf yesterday from injuries believed to have been sustained when he was knocked out by Primo Carnera last Friday.

Streit would have the committee determine whether the state athletic commission is really enforcing the boxing laws, whether fights or wrestling matches are "fixed," and whether the commission has made proper regulations concerning the licensing of persons connected with the ring.

Wants Boxing Law Repealed.

A much more drastic measure, which would repeal the Walker boxing law, was introduced in the legislature today by Senator Henry G. Shackno, Bronx Democrat, and only the objection of another Democrat prevented it from being advanced to the order of final passage.

While these attacks were being made on legalized boxing, Assistant District Attorney James J. Daly continued his investigation of the fight between Schaaf and Carnera.

James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, announced that he will retire from the chairmanship of the state athletic commission on March 1 to take up new duties in the Roosevelt cabinet in Washington. He disagreed with Commissioners William Muldoon and John J. Phelan in their decision to enforce the "dreadnaught" rule, whereby Carnera would be allowed to fight only super-heavyweights.

220 Pounds Minimum.

There are only a few "dreadnaughts" in professional boxing. They are men who are 6 feet 2 and over and weigh 220 pounds or more. Men coming within this classification would not be permitted to fight boxers who fall within the ordinary heavyweight limits. Schaaf, for instance weighed only 204 pounds; Carnera 264.

"I don't want to appear in the light of making any suggestion as to how the commission should treat the proposed Carnera-Sharkey fight," said Farley, "because I will not be a member of the commission after March 1 and the fight is scheduled for a later date. It would be embarrassing to Gen. Phelan and Commissioner Muldoon for me to offer any suggestion on how to handle this situation or any other.

"It is my private opinion, however, that they cannot interfere in such a fight because one man outweighs another 60 pounds or so. Remember, that is my private opinion, it carries no official weight because I won't be involved after March 1."

Promises Aid in Inquiry.

Farley said that the commission is prepared to make any investigation into the death of Schaaf that Gov. Lehman may ask.

Sharkey, passing through the city today to attend his protégé's funeral in Sheldonville, Mass., on Friday refused to discuss the possibility of a fight with Carnera.

Jimmy Johnston, in charge of boxing at Madison Square Garden, announced that despite the death of Schaaf and despite the opposition to it expressed yesterday by members of the New York State Athletic commission, he was going ahead with arrangements for a heavyweight title match between Carnera and Sharkey next June.

May Go Outside State.

There were indications that the Garden, if forced from New York with the title match, would seek a site elsewhere, as was done when the commission failed to sanction a title bout between Dempsey and Gene Tunney in 1926 and again between Max Schmeling and Young Stribling in 1931. The Dempsey-Tunney bout was taken by Tex Rickard to Philadelphia, the Schmeling-Stribling match to Cleveland.

THE GUMPS—NO TIME TO LOSE

In the WAKE of the NEWS

FOOTBALL RULE CHANGES.

THE national football rules committee has decided to "let well enough alone" by not approving for another year, at least, any rule changes which would further confuse the football attending public.

The change to eliminate the out-of-bounds play will be readily recognizable and understandable. It improves the game to the benefit of the offensive eleven. Much of present criticism is that defense is progressing faster than offense. Clipping, broadened in scope as an offense but with the penalty reduced from 25 to 15 yards in hope of stricter enforcement, is not generally seen or understood perhaps by the average fan. The change seems for the better.

The Wake is not thoroughly satisfied, by any means, with the present code but we approve leaving it alone for the present except the point after touchdown, to which we'll never become reconciled. But that elimination has been suggested before and voted down.

Like Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern we do not regard the forward pass rules as perfect. Like him we favor legislation, at some time, to keep the game open with more of a premium on running play. Not a student of tactics like he is, we're open minded on his suggestion of opening up the area from which the pass may be thrown. That idea, however, may well hold over for another year for the desideratum of keeping the rules practically intact for two years in succession.

I know exactly how it feels when up and down they face him, and with a line of endless spiels they follow and chase him; but in the line of ticklish deals that send one to the mat, I wonder how the pitcher feels when Wagner comes to bat?

I know about how Roosevelt feels out in some wild western lair, if I should swiftly turn about and face a grizzly bear; or walking down a street high fenced, with no long stretch to run, should find my features pressed against an automatic gun; but in the line of ticklish deals that leaves one feeling flat, I wonder how a pitcher feels when Wagner comes to bat?

BRUINS PLOT TO WHIP HAWKS AND TAKE 1ST PLACE

Stadium Game Tonight Is Battle of Ifs.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

"The Bruins are coming—the Boston Bruins," shouted Manager Thomas Gorman of the Blackhawks yesterday as he took to horse and urged all of his players to prime their muskets for the invaders from down east who will skate onto the Stadium ice tonight in one of the truly crucial games of the National Hockey league season.

Manager Gorman's haste and the fervor of the Hawk's scrimmage at the Stadium yesterday afternoon were not unwarranted, since the outcome of the game tonight is almost one of those "or else" propositions as far as the Chicago sextet is concerned. The Bruins now lead the Blackhawks by seven points in the fight for third place in the American division of the league, and with it a berth in the Stanley cup playoffs.

Bruins Have Chance at Lead.

The Bostonians, in turn, are interested not only in maintaining that third place rating, but also in the possibility of crowding into first place in the league standing ere the night is over. Should the Maroons upset Detroit at Montreal while the Maple Leafs are attending to the Rangers at New York, and granting that the Bruins will win over the Hawks, Boston would take charge of first place before midnight tonight.

Not the least of the visitors will be one Edward Shore, an agricultural expert from Saskatchewan, who cannot only raise a handsome deal of Canadian wheat, but also play a lot of hockey as well. Mr. Shore is no stranger to any person who has seen a National league hockey game in any of the nine member towns of the circuit, and certainly not to Chicago, where it has been necessary for a covey of gendarmes to escort him from the premises for safety's sake.

A Nice Boy—in Chicago.

They have been naming all-star hockey teams for a long time, but the expert who omitted Edward from his selections at this writing would come down with a red face mighty soon. Not only is he very rugged in his defensive chores, so much so that the entire league aims plays at him, but he does his share of puck carrying with a dash that only Morenz can equal.

Eddie's previous appearances in Chicago this year have been singularly free of any misbehavior, despite the efforts of the Hawks to bait him, although he has not neglected his reputation in other cities. In his last game against the Chicagoans he played a hardy 70 minutes with nary a penalty. On the other hand he became tangled up in a tiff with the Red Wings, was fined $100 for taking a fall out of Sylvio Mantha of the Canadiens and Referee Cooper Smeaton on the same rink, and was the recipient of a cuff on the jowls from Charley Conacher of the Maple Leafs as recently as Tuesday night.

CORBETT SPENDS RESTFUL NIGHT AT HIS HOME

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—James J. Corbett, former boxing champion, spent a restful night last night at his home in Bayside, Queens, where for the last several weeks he has been in a serious condition from heart disease.

From time to time during the last few days the former fighter has been said to be losing strength, but his recuperative powers enable him to show a return of vigor and interest which gives hope to his wife, friends, and physicians.

Sir Malcolm said he may not make the attempt until Friday or Saturday.

'ANOTHER FLAG FOR CUBS,' SAYS CHARLEY GRIMM

"It looks like another pennant for the Cubs."

This was Manager Charley Grimm's greeting to the loop as he arrived from his home in St. Louis last night to arrange for the departure Monday of the club's advance guard for the Catalina island training camp.

Grimm, accompanied by Mrs. Grimm and their daughter, May Gene, 7 years old, stepped off an Illinois Central train at the 12th street station to be met by what to them was frigid weather. "It certainly is cold in these parts," was Charley's first comment, but when informed that the current temperatures are mild compared to what Chicago experienced a week ago, he was content to turn from thoughts of the weather to a discussion of the Cubs and himself.

"Sun Will Beat Lumbago."

Grimm, bowed down with an attack of lumbago, laughed off his condition with the remark that "A day or two in the sunshine at Avalon will fix me up, and, while I have an able understudy in young Harry Taylor, I expect to put in something like 154 games at first base."

"Babe Herman will give us the punch we have needed in the outfield ever since Hack Wilson weakened," Grimm continued. "Our lineup, aside from Babe in right field, will be the same as the one which won a pennant for us last summer. Billy Herman will be at second, Bill Jurges at short, Woody English at third and Riggs Stephenson and Kiki Cuyler in the other two outfield berths.

"Holdouts? What are those? I've no way of knowing until I have conferred with President William Veeck tomorrow just how many of our boys are in line, but from what I can learn everybody concerned is satisfied with the terms offered. I feel certain that we shall have perfect coöperation and harmony throughout the team."

Grimm's meeting with President Veeck is set for 10 o'clock this morning.

A Team of Batterymen.

The Cub manager expects to lead a party of 13, all batterymen, out of Chicago at 9:05 Monday morning. The group will include Gabby Hartnett and Zach Taylor, catchers, and Pat Malone, Guy Bush, Lon Warneke, Roy Henshaw, Leroy Herrmann, Buck Newsom, and Beryl Richmond, pitchers.

Micelli Is First West Sider to Reach Tourney of Champions

BY ARCH WARD.

The first west side boy to qualify for the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions was Nick Micelli of the Catholic Youth organization. After whipping Edward Leaverette of Oklahoma Tuesday night, he drew a bye last night, which automatically admitted him to the meet at Chicago Stadium Feb. 27, Feb. 28, and March 1. Here he will meet the 160 pound winners from 22 out of town centers as well as from the three other city qualifying tournaments.

The first match in the far south section at the Roseland State theater tonight will go on at 7 o'clock. There probably will be about 50 bouts on the program. The admission is 60 cents, tax included. There are no reserved seats. Early arrivals will get the choice locations.

The hardest and most accurate puncher in the west side meet was Steve Dusek, lightweight from the Lippers Athletic club. He won his qualifying medal by stopping Art Papineau of the Gubbins A. C. in the second round. He sent his foe down with a short right reminiscent of the old Dempsey wallop.

The first member of the 1932 Golden Gloves squad to be eliminated was Ambrose Geohagen, colored middleweight. He lost the decision to a wild swinging puncher from the Catholic Youth Organization named Charles Wozniak.

Jimmy Spata, 135 pound open division boxer, protested to tournament officials last night because his bout on Tuesday night was stopped when he received a bad cut over the eye. "Can you imagine a referee stopping a match because of a little blood?" he inquired. "I can whip any lightweight in the world except Tony Canzoneri," he said, "and I want a chance to prove it."

Les Garrett of Lisle, a winner in the 126 pound novice class is a star track athlete. He won the mile run in the state interscholastic at Champaign last year in 4 minutes and 28 seconds. His home is in Johnston City, Ill., and he is staying with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Matthews of Lisle, during the Golden Gloves tournament.

Seven entrants were rejected last night by the staff of seven physicians. Three or four had participated in the earlier rounds, but showed up for the finals with minor defects.

Tony Randazzo, novice featherweight, was so thrilled after his third straight victory that he made known he intends to become a professional. He probably will change his mind before the 1933 meet is concluded. Randazzo helps his father make Italian pastries at 2016 Grand avenue.

The total attendance for the West Side trials was in excess of 7,000, more than twice the number that saw the 1932 bouts in the same section. The entry of 618 also was a new record. This has been surpassed by the North section, however, with 624 nominations. The North Side trials open at Loyola university gymnasium Monday and continue Tuesday and Wednesday with two rings in operation each night.

PEORIA UNCOVERS A NEW RING HERO; NAME? ART COOK

Golden Gloves Champion Hailed as 2d Papke.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 15.—Fistic lore here and all along the countryside to nearby Kewanee is rich in tales about Billy Papke. This is quite natural because the old thunderbolt of the prize ring was brought up in this section.

It is also quite natural that these stories about Papke—old ones, and of course there's always a new one—are being heard almost everywhere here today, for a new Kewanee thunderbolt has flashed into local fame and will soon be on his way to THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions.

Art Cook, a 19 year old lad from Papke's Kewanee neighborhood, has caused the old timers to recall the deeds of the meteoric, dazzling, bull doggish original thunderbolt. Cook is the big blond kid who won the heavyweight championship in the Peoria Journal-Transcript's Golden Gloves tournament, which was concluded before a capacity crowd here last night.

Wins Title by K. O.

It was a knockout he scored a few seconds after the first round was underway that brought him the title. But it was the spectacular fighting he did earlier in the tournament that caused the crowd to begin shouting, "Come on, Thunderbolt!"

Cook is 6 feet and 1 inch tall, and although he does his fighting at around 185 pounds, he appears to be almost as broad as he is tall. He goes into his battles with the speed of a lightweight.

Can he take it?

Well, between the old time tales about Papke and the discussions which compared Cook with Papke a fellow told a story today about one of Cook's first bouts.

"He was knocked down six times in the first round," so the yarn goes. "He came out in the second session and knocked his man out with one short right to the chin."

Punches Bag of Wheat.

Right now Cook is doing the best that he can on a farm near Wyoming, Ill. He trained for his Golden Gloves engagements on the farm, and the only gymnasium implement he used was a punching bag.

This wasn't the kind of a punching bag some of our $10,000 a night professionals use. It was a canvas sack filled with wheat which dangled from the limb of an apple tree in the Cook family's back yard.

Fans down here in the Illinois river valley are of the opinion that the Peoria amateur glove swingers will go places when they get to the Tournament of Champions. The original field was 65 per cent larger than at any previous tournament. The entire section of central Illinois is represented on the team, which is as follows:

126 pounds—George Dungey, Bloomington.
135 pounds—Keith Graves, Peoria.
147 pounds—Cliff McKeel, Peoria.
160 pounds—Fred Tyus, Decatur.
175 pounds—Al Salatka, Peoria.
Heavyweight—Art Cook, Kewanee.

Jackson and McKeel were members of Peoria's team in the Tournament of Champions last year. Jackson for two years came near winning a Golden Glove in Chicago. He's an improved boy, appears stronger, and can punch with more power.

ROCKFORD PICKS TEAM

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Before the largest crowd ever attending an event of its kind, eight Golden Gloves champions in the Rockford Morning Star's tournament were decided tonight.

Out of eight fighting youths who captured the title in their respective divisions only two entered THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Tournament of Champions in 1932. Joe Romano, featherweight, and Sammy Fisher, bantamweight, both of Rockford, are this year's finalists who have had previous experience in the Chicago tournament.

Champions in the other six divisions are Ario Soldati, Dixon, heavyweight; Arv (Tiger Lily) Barksdale, Beloit, Wis., light heavyweight; Julius Denny, Rockford, middleweight; Elwood McReynolds, Dixon, welterweight; Bruno Galvanoni, Rockford, lightweight; and Hubert De Shepherd, Rockford, flyweight.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The west side last night chose its representatives for the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium, where the successful amateur boxers from seven states will come together Feb. 27, Feb. 28, and March 1. At the same time a crowd of 2,300 watched the hardiest and best of the west side novice boxers win the right to compete in the Metropolitan tourney at the Stadium.

From this group have come several excellent boxers. They are equal, perhaps superior, to those who last year represented the west section. Gold medals were presented to the winners in the open division.

Tonight the Golden Gloves scene shifts to Roseland. Nearly 200 amateurs are eligible to compete at the State theater, 110th place and Michigan avenue. All must report between 4 and 6 p. m. Pairings will be made at 6:30 o'clock, and the first bout will begin a half hour later. One ring will be used. Admission will be 60 cents, including tax. Seats are not reserved, and the doors will open an hour before the bouts start.

Geoghegan Is Defeated.

One indication that the 1933 crop of amateur boxers may be superior to that of a year ago was the defeat of Ambrose Geoghegan last night. This lanky Negro boy sailed along through the 160 pound division in 1932 and finished next to the champion, Charley Neigo. Last night Geoghegan was defeated in three rounds by Charles Wozniak of the Catholic Youth organization. Wozniak, a free swinging fighter, landed enough punches to outscore the jabs of Geoghegan.

The crowds, which had been treated previously to two nights of riotous boxing in two rings, saw a mixture of excellent sparring and give and take slugging. The crowd was larger by several hundred than on Tuesday.

Sanello Comes Through.

Frankie Sanello of Trafton's gym, Central A. A. U. champion last year, won one of the two qualifying berths in the open flyweight division. Frankie thinks he will win the title at the Stadium and he certainly did well enough on the west side to warrant that belief. Sanello is coached by Paul Dazzo, former Golden Gloves champion. Frank Easaty, unattached, was the other flyweight qualifier.

JONES TO MEET O'BRIEN TONIGHT AT WHITE CITY

The Card

Frankie O'Brien vs. Tom Jones [10].
Jack Moran vs. Bud Saltis [6].
Dick Sisk vs. Solly Dukelsky [5].
Bill Reardon vs. Joey Cohen [5].
Johnny Caserio vs. Frankie Keevil [5].
Steve Seigrat vs. Al Bisignano [5].

Frankie O'Brien, Hartford, Conn., middleweight, and Tom Jones, south side light heavyweight, will meet in a 10 round bout at White City tonight. Jones was substituted for Osk Till of Buffalo, N. Y., last night when it was learned that Till was ill with the flu.

The contest will be O'Brien's second in Chicago. Last month Frankie stopped Kid Leonard of East Moline, Ill., at White City. Jones is a Negro boxer who went the limit of 10 rounds with Art Laskey, Minneapolis, Minn., heavyweight, here last summer.

There is considerable interest in two of the five supporting bouts. These will bring together Jack Moran and Bud Saltis, and Dick Sisk and Solly Dukelsky. Saltis held Eddie Gill to a six round draw in his most recent contest several weeks ago.

Ray Tramblie, Rockford, Ill., fighter, yesterday finished boxing at Kid Howard's gymnasium for his windup with Young Stuhley, Illinois middleweight championship claimant, at the Cicero Stadium tomorrow night. Tramblie sparred two rounds each with Jimmy Cummings and Walter Jerz, who faces Tommy Kluth in a four rounder in his pro debut on the same card. Ray weighed 160 pounds after the workout, one pound less than required. Stuhley will arrive from Kewanee, Ill., today.

Four contests have been arranged by Johnny Coulon for the show tomorrow at the Rainbo Fronton. Jackie Parker will clash with Kid Pancho in the six round main event. Art Mitchell faces Sammy Morales in the five round semi-final. Other contests are Johnny Fitzpatrick vs. Buddy Kernes and Red Chinski vs. Paddy Walthier.

Weekly wrestling shows will be inaugurated at Kid Howard's gymnasium, 116 West Madison street, next Tuesday night. Johann Leskinovich will appear in the windup match against Bob Jackson of New York. Three other bouts will complete the card.

Capacity, with Gilbert Up, Is Hialeah Victor

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The combination of H. D. Cox's Capacity and Jockey Johnny Gilbert proved successful again at Hialeah Park this afternoon, when the victory in the Miami Spring purse fell to the pair. It was the fifth start at the meeting for the gelded son of Eternal-Assembly and he now has won four times. Gilbert had the mount on each occasion.

Third choice in the betting, Capacity returned $9.30 for $2.00 and won by two lengths from Gift of Roses. Morgil was third, half a length back of the placed horse. The time was 1:12 flat for 6 furlongs over a fast track.

Mr. Cox is the developer of Gilbert and had Capacity as sharp as ever for the brilliant apprentice, who is the leading rider of the meeting. At the break Gilbert had Capacity on his toes and away they went to the lead. Thereafter Capacity never was headed. Morgil was in closest pursuit of the early pace, but in the stretch was passed by Gift of Roses.

Gift of Roses and Morgil were in close quarters in the first furlong, but it is doubtful if they could have beaten Capacity even if unimpeded.

SMITTY—BIRDS OF A FEATHER

STARLING FLOCKS INVADE CHICAGO; WAR IMMINENT!

BY BOB BECKER.

Spring is not so far away and the "starling bird war" may break out again almost any day now. Bird fans in the central states still are not very familiar with this species. Many residents in Chicagoland who know a fairly large number of our common summer residents haven't become "starling conscious" to the extent that they look for this invader who has conquered a good deal of the world and is now doing his best to dominate sections of the United States.

THE STARLING.

The starling is slowly but surely becoming a real invader and is increasing his numbers in the central states. Thus far we have received more inquiries regarding the identification of the bird than complaints about the starling's economic relation to our robins and martins. However, it won't be long until the second angle of the starling's invasion will be dominant.

Presence of Species Is Surprise.

The presence of starlings here is possibly such a surprise to many bird fans that even those who knew this bird in Europe hardly believe their eyes. The following letter from Mrs. Anton A. K.—— of Elgin, Ill., explains just such a predicament.

"Please help me out. Have we starlings in the middle west?

"I had never known of starlings any further west than western New York [1916]. But on Thursday, Feb. 9, I discovered two of them, apparently exhausted, in one of my bird shelters. They were somewhat recovered on the following day, very brisk and alert the following day, and the next time I looked out I had six of them. Can I be mistaken? Have we a bird here that looks something like the starling?"

Even the Bluejay Is Afraid.

"Titmice, nuthatches and downies, appear to be somewhat afraid of these starlings. Even the bluejays show a tendency to doubt the kindliness of disposition of this newcomer. Only one cardinal [male] isn't in the least intimidated, his attitude plainly is: 'I was here first and what do you think you can do about it?'"

There isn't much doubt that this bird is a starling. There are scattered flocks all through Chicagoland, nesting in the spring and moving around the country during the winter.

New York is disgusted with this bird. It has proved a nuisance. London recently conducted a war of extermination against the flocks which are fouling many of the public buildings.

N. B. C. APPOINTS STROTZ HEAD OF ARTISTS' SERVICE

Sidney N. Strotz, president of the Chicago Stadium, has been appointed manager of Chicago artists service for the National Broadcasting company, it was announced yesterday by Niles Trammell, vice president in charge of the Chicago division of the company.

Strotz will continue his activities as receiver for the Stadium corporation. He fills the vacancy created by the transfer of L. F. Fitzgerald to the New York N. B. C. artists service.

In 1928 the late Paddy Harmon, builder of the Stadium, interested Strotz in organizing and financing the corporation. He became its secretary and treasurer and was elected president upon the death of Harmon in 1930.

BOWLERS HONOR STEERS TONIGHT; 22 YEARS IN GAME

Harry Steers, who has competed in the Randolph Bowling league for twenty-two years, will be honored tonight at the Randolph alleys. Steers, a member of the Mineralites, has an average of 202. He has knocked down approximately 397,320 pins.

He has bowled with four teams in the league, the Breen-Kennedy Distillers, Blatz Beer, Rubini, and the Mineralites. He joined the latter team in 1915. He won the American Bowling congress doubles championship with Fred Thoma at Cincinnati in 1916 with a score of 1,335.

SKATE STARS TO MEET SATURDAY ON STADIUM ICE

National and international skating stars will clash Saturday night in the western open indoor speed skating championship meet at the Chicago Stadium.

The meeting of the champions will be featured by the appearance of Canada's outstanding stars, headed by Frank Stack and Lela Brooks-Potter, captains of the Canadian men's and women's Olympic teams. A host of other Maple Leaf skaters are in the field.

America's chief bid for honors will be made by Melvin Johnson of Detroit, national outdoor champion, and Kitty Klein of Buffalo, who holds the same title in the women's division. In the supporting cast will be more than a dozen Olympic contenders and Charles Delphier and Rose Marie Brady of Detroit, runnersup to Johnson and Miss Klein in the nationals.

The speed program will be augmented by a series of figure skating exhibitions. Norval Baptie and Gladys Lamb will head a cast composed of Evelyn Chandler, world's women's professional champion; Robin Lee, national junior champion, and Bobby Hearn and Bobby McLean, former professional speed champions now specializing in trick skating.

A feature of the meet will be the international relay, matching the best American and Canadian skaters against each other in a one and one-half-mile race. Two men and two women will make up each team. A special inter-city and Chicago relay also will be held.

INDIANA RACING BILL REACHES ITS SECOND READING

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Amended to eliminate night racing, a change interpreted as a blow at dog races, the pari-mutuel racing bill was advanced to the second reading in the Indiana house of representatives today after having been shelved in the committee on public morals more than three weeks.

Other amendments added today included one increasing the license fee of racing associations from $750 a day to $1,000 and another diverting 25 per cent of the income to the state fair association, 25 per cent to county fair associations, and 50 per cent to the state general fund. Another amendment cut the number of racing days permitted on each track annually from seventy-two to fifty.

The amended bill limits racing to the hours of noon to 7 p. m. The bill does not specifically prohibit dog racing.

The bill provides for the licensing of persons, associations, corporations, or trusts for holding races at the specified daily license fee of $1,000, plus 20 cents to the state for each admission. It specifically prohibits racing on Sunday, authorizes the "parimutuel or certificate system of wagering by patrons," and prohibits the licensee from retaining more than 10 per cent of money wagered in addition to breaks not to exceed five cents of the dollar. Minors are prohibited from betting.

FESLER'S NAME MISSING ON NEW HARVARD STAFF

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 15.—(AP)—The name of Wesley Fesler, Ohio State's 1929-'30 football star, was missing from the 1933 Harvard varsity football coaching staff announced tonight by William J. Bingham, athletic director. Eddie Casey was reappointed head coach for the third consecutive season and his assistants, for the first time in many years, were all products of the Harvard football system.

Fesler recently conferred here with Bingham about a coaching engagement for football and basketball. Harvard officials tonight indicated that the Ohio State all round athlete had been unable to come to any agreement with the director.

Even Fans Can't Find Ruth's Ball; He Loses Match

Belleair, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Although a gallery of several millionaires and citrus farmers hunted among the palmettos for five minutes, they were unable to locate Babe Ruth's golf ball on the sixteenth hole today and the Babe lost to D. N. Tallman of Minneapolis, 3 and 2, in the second round of the Belleair amateur championship.

When they came to the sixteenth tee Ruth was 2 down. He pulled his tee shot into the rough and took 2 to get back onto the fairway. Then he took a hard cut at the ball and it made a bee line for the palmettos. The entire gallery took up the search, but it was no use.

With the match all square after 13 holes Ruth faltered. He hit another long ball off the fourteenth tee, but it landed in a flower garden and he had to lift out for a stroke penalty. He lost the hole and was one down. At the short fifteenth he again was off line with his tee shot, while Tallman was on the green. Tallman went two up.

As they stood on the sixteenth tee Babe said to Tallman: "Two down and three. I will have to step on it. Glad this is a long hole."

WEST SIDE PICKS 16 CHAMPIONS IN GOLDEN GLOVES

Scene Shifts to Roseland Arena Tonight.

before he was defeated by Don Gonzales, winner of the 126 pound title that year, qualified in the lightweight class. Steve will make all of the flyweights keep on their toes. He's a good bet for a championship.

Phil Sweeney of the C. Y. O., an overwhelming favorite with the crowd, lost to Benny Friedman of the Jewish Peoples' institute. His blond hair and graceful style in shooting his gloves straight to his opponent's face caught the crowd's imagination, but in this match Friedman withstood several extended rallies to earn the decision.

Frank Mirabal and John Mirabal of the West Side Community Recreation center are brothers. Each hoped that if he couldn't win a novice title that the other would. Last night both won. Frank qualified in the 118 pound class and brother John in the featherweight class.

Comeback Attempt Fails.

There was a brief uproar when, through mistaking the corners, the announcer raised the hand of Lou Bagnulo, who was John Mirabal's opponent. Almost before the crowd started to roar Bagnulo jerked his arm down and pointed to Mirabal, thereby concurring in the judges' decision.

Lyndon Sandford of Melrose Park went down for a short count in the first round of his bout with Sam Felcone of the C. Y. O. Many thought he would come back as he had in previous bouts after being knocked down, but he couldn't even the score against Felcone, despite a courageous uphill fight.

PICK RECEIVERS FOR THE WILLYS OVERLAND CO.

Action Described as Friendly One.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Toledo, O., Feb. 15.—Receivers for the Willys-Overland company, one of the pioneer automobile manufacturing concerns, were named in the United States District court here late today. The step was described as friendly action and was said to have been brought about by a shortage of working capital.

John N. Willys, chairman, and L. A. Miller, president, were chosen by the court to act as receivers. The action was taken on the application of the Monroe Auto Equipment company, a creditor. C. O. Miniger, president of the Electric Auto-Lite company, is an official of the Monroe Auto Equipment and is said to be heavily interested in Willys-Overland.

The court's order gave the receivers broad powers to operate the plant. Creditors are barred from bringing any bankruptcy action against the company without permission of the court. The receivers' bonds were set at $100,000.

Expect to Continue.

Mr. Willys said that the receivership would not interrupt the company's business. He had every reason to believe, he said, that the production of trucks for the International Harvester company would be continued. Willys entered into a contract late last year with International for the production of a light truck. This business is said to have been profitable for Willys.

The complaint of the Monroe company stated the assets of the Willys Overland company at a fair valuation were greater than all liabilities. The plant has been carried on the books at $31,000,000, the company has investments of $1,500,000 in other companies, and miscellaneous investments and inventories have been carried at more than $5,000,000.

Current Assets $2,500,000.

Current obligations are $1,500,000, and half of the funded debt of $2,000,000 has been in default since last September, the bill recites. Current assets are estimated at about $2,500,000.

Production of the company was 5,400 cars in January, and its schedule called for 6,000 in February and 7,000 in March. Nearly 8,000 men have been employed in recent weeks.

Willys, who is a former United States ambassador to Poland, resumed active control of the company last summer after being out of the automobile business for three years. He sold out his common stock holdings in 1929 to a group of Chicago capitalists for a reputed price of $25,000,000. The Chicago group purchased the stock for the Chicago Corporation, an investment trust backed by several prominent Chicagoans. The trust now owns 800,800 shares of the common stock.

Willys in Control.

Willys and his friends retained their preferred stock holdings and they resumed active direction of the company last year after four consecutive dividends on the preferred stock had been passed. The company's charter provides that the preferred stockholders shall elect a majority of the directors after the passing of four dividends.

It was stated yesterday by officials that despite the greatly depleted working capital of the company a complete new car had been brought out by the company this year. Had it not been for the delay in the revival of general business the company would have been able to tide over until a reorganization plan had been worked out.

The Chicago corporation has written its holdings of Willys-Overland stock to ¼ cent a share, it was learned here yesterday. It also was learned a plan of reorganization calling for a revision of the auto firm's structure is being worked out.

U. S. AND CANADA REDUCE OUTPUT OF NEWSPRINT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 15.—Production of newsprint in United States and Canada totaled 214,983 tons in January, compared with 218,757 tons in December, and 265,568 tons in January, 1932, according to the Newsprint Service bureau.

Output in Canada was 140,539 tons, against 138,682 tons in December, and 171,821 tons in January, last year. United States mills turned out 74,444 tons during the month, compared with 80,075 tons in December, and 94,247 tons in January, 1932.

Shipments from United States and Canadian mills in January were 205,781 tons, against 219,772 tons in December and 266,393 tons in January last year. Canadian mills shipped 133,056 tons, against 138,682 tons in December and 171,843 tons in January, 1932.

Holiday Plans for Farm Debt Ignore Others

BY SCRUTATOR.

The clamor for moratoriums on farm lands and other real estate has spread rapidly throughout the country since leading life insurance companies a few weeks ago announced a loan moratorium on farm foreclosures in Iowa.

At Washington yesterday the Steagall bill providing a temporary moratorium for farmers having loans with the federal land banks was favorably reported by the house banking and currency committee.

At Springfield three moratorium bills have been introduced, in addition to a resolution calling upon the governor to ask holders of mortgages to refrain from foreclosures pending action on the moratorium bills.

Legislatures in other states are likewise being called upon to vote the mortgage burden off the land owner's back.

Only Land Owners Helped.

A check with officials of a number of lending organizations discloses that almost without exception these proposals for moratoriums seek only to protect the land owner against the consequences of his debt, but make no provision for the protection of his creditors, in turn, against the consequences of their own debts.

In other words, the moratorium is a discriminatory proposition. It is meat for one set of debtors and poison for another.

The federal land banks and the joint stock land banks combined hold a total of about a billion and a half dollars' worth of farm mortgages. A moratorium on farm mortgages would relieve the farmers—temporarily, at lease—from the pressure of this billion and a half of debt.

Against these mortgages, however, there are outstanding an almost equal amount of bonds in the hands of the public, for it was by selling bonds to investors that the land banks raised the money to lend to farmers. A moratorium on farm mortgages would deprive the holders of these bonds of any income from them.

Insurance Companies Affected.

Fifty-two legal reserve life insurance companies in the United States on Dec. 31, 1932, had approximately 1 billion 666 million dollars of their assets invested in farm mortgages. This represented 8.8 per cent of their total investments.

The freezing of this 8.8 per cent of their aggregate of investments would not break the life insurance companies, but it would be a weakening influence and would undoubtedly cause further reductions in dividends to policyholders.

Furthermore, should the moratorium fever spread from farm mortgages to other types of mortgages, the consequence would probably prove disastrous, because in addition to the 8.8 per cent of farm mortgages the life insurance companies have 27.5 per cent of their investments in other mortgages.

"Before the life insurance company moratorium on foreclosures in Iowa was announced," the executive of one big leading institution asserts, "we estimated that about 50 per cent of the joint stock land bank farm mortgages were delinquent in some respect. Since that time the delinquent item has been mounting at the rate of about 10 per cent per month.

Sees Moral Breakdown.

"There has been a moral breakdown in promises to pay. This development has been disastrous to many people of moderate means who had been living on the income from their investments. I am referring not to speculative real estate bonds, but to individual mortgages that normally would be considered quite sound. About half of these mortgage holders are women."

The moratorium fever had its inception in the one year moratorium that the United States granted its European debtors on their war debt installments to this country. By forgiving a quarter of a billion dollars of these installments, the United States eased the pressure on the debtor nations. But, because it could not pass this moratorium on to its own creditors, the holders of Liberty bonds, the United States had to pass the load over to the taxpayers in the form of a bloated deficit.

To date no form of moratorium has been invented that would protect the farmer's creditors, in turn, from their creditors.

GREAT LAKES DREDGE SAVES BY WRITE-DOWN

A saving in depreciation charges as a result of revision in asset book values was made by the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, the 1932 report reveals.

Plant and equipment is carried in the year end balance sheet at $7,762,000, a net reduction of $1,223,000 from 1931. On the revalued basis depreciation of $476,000 is charged against $552,000 in the preceding year. Net income was $248,681, equal to 45 cents a share, as compared with $1,326,000, or $2.49 a share in 1931.

RAIL MEN FLOUT PLAN TO CREATE ONE U. S. SYSTEM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—With the exception of the suggestion as to the formation of a "single national" railroad system, railroad officials found much of practical value today in the report of the national transportation committee. The idea of one big railroad was described variously as impractical and chimerical.

The four emergency measures suggested in the report, besides many other of its findings, had received previous approval by the Association of Railway Executives in statements filed with the committee.

As to the strictures on managerial wastes leveled at the railroads by the report, it was rumored that a committee of leading eastern carrier executives would issue a statement on Friday, which might answer some of the contentions made in this section of the report.

Seek to End Wastes.

This committee was formed last summer by the eastern railroads to investigate methods for curtailing wastes arising from competitive efforts. It is headed by W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania. This committee has already plugged one drain on railroad resources by drastically reducing the number of passes issued.

The consensus of railroad opinion on the suggestions as to railroad consolidation made in the report appeared to have been summed up in a statement by L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central. This railroad has been among the greatest sufferers from government subsidized waterways traffic.

"I doubt the advisability of one big railroad system," said Mr. Downs. "Such a system would not give the service to which the public is entitled. Regional mergers by mutual agreement should insure satisfactory progress in consolidation, and provide sufficient, but not undue competition."

Congressmen Study Report.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—While of considerable interest in official circles here today, the report of the national transportation committee was generally regarded as a reiteration of proposals made from time to time by the interstate commerce commission and in congress, and as a valuable exposition of the problems confronting the railroad industry.

Members of the house and senate who found time to go through the summary of the report said it would undoubtedly be influential in the consideration of legislation dealing with transportation when the subject is again brought up, but any such action during the present session was considered out of the question.

At the interstate commerce commission it was recalled that many of the proposals in the report dealing with the immediate situation had been urged by it before congress.

Proposals of Coolidge Group Approved by Chicago Leaders

The Coolidge group's report making recommendations designed to improve the railroad situation won favorable comment from Chicago railroad leaders yesterday. None of the Chicago rail leaders had studied the report in detail. Most of those interviewed were agreed that if the recommendations are put into effect, the railroads should benefit materially.

W. B. STOREY. [Moffett Photo.]

"I see nothing extremely objectionable, and, on the other hand, I find some helpful points," was the comment of William B. Storey, president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway. Mr. Storey said he had not seen a copy of the complete report and would withhold full comment until he had.

"In the newspaper account of the report I find many things on which I am in accord," Mr. Storey explained. "For instance, I agree that our method of handling the rate structure is unwieldy. On the other hand, control of the rate structure cannot be too liberal or we would find the railroads cutting each other's throats in competition for business. There would arise such a situation as now exists in the motor truck business. My general impression is favorable to the report."

H. E. Newcomet, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, who is in charge of his road's activities in the Chicago district, said he considered the recommendations contained in the Coolidge report were rather conservative and about what might be expected.

"Repeal Recapture Clause."

"The recapture clause ought to be repealed," Mr. Newcomet said. "It was based on an unfair premise in the first place. So far as the valuation of the roads in determining rates goes, I cannot see where this has ever accomplished anything.

The nation must adopt a broader policy for the railroads. People are constantly blaming the roads for things over which they have no control because their hands are tied.

"I do not believe that business can go forward until the transportation problem—in its broadest sense—has been settled. In settling this problem every form of transportation, railroads, waterways, trucks, buses, and aviation should be considered.

Calls Rate Structure Chaotic.

"We have a chaotic condition in our rate structure, due to lack of control in certain branches of transportation. I do not believe in penalizing the public—it should have the right to take advantage of the transportation best fitted to its needs. But we must give each form of transportation a fair deal. We can't have unregulated competition."

H. R. Kurrie, president of the Monon railroad, saw the report as constructive.

"There appear to be a number of statements in the report with which the railroads are in accord," Mr. Kurrie said. "We agree with the recommendations for the repeal of the recapture clause, a more simplified system of rate making, getting the United States government out of the waterway business and imposing control over motor trucks."

Mr. Kurrie said he could not comment at any length until he has read the full report.

NEW DIRECTORS FOR CIVIC OPERA BUILDING CORP.

Six new directors were elected to the board of the 20 Wacker Drive Building corporation [Civic Opera building] at the annual meeting of stockholders. The only old director reflected was Ernest R. Graham.

The new board members are James G. Alexander, Charles E. Brown, Will C. Essman, Charles F. Hough, Herman T. Kraft, and Beverly M. Marcon. Retiring directors are Stanley Field, John F. Gilchrist, George F. Mitchell, Herman Waldeck, Samuel Insull, and Samuel Insull Jr.

The corporation had a gross deficit of $2,129,000 last year. Net loss, before depreciation, was $18,711, against net profit, before depreciation, of $307,178 in the preceding year. Depreciation last year was $630,000, in addition to which there were other charges against surplus of $1,881,000.

The year-end balance sheet listed cash and receivables of $64,416. Accrued accounts, including property taxes, were $459,609 and accounts payable amounted to $2,930. The first installment, amounting to $150,000, of the corporation's 10 million dollar first mortgage note issue falls due Dec. 1, 1933.

AM. TEL. & TEL. MAINTAINS $9 DIVIDEND RATE

Means $42,000,000 to Stockholders.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph company at noon today declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share, thereby assuring the 700,000 stockholders of close to $42,000,000 of income on April 15. The company thus maintained its position as the largest current dividend payer in the country. The payment is to be made to stockholders of record March 14.

Publication of four quarterly statements last year showing that the regular dividend was not earned, and the knowledge that the Bell system is still discontinuing about 100,000 more telephones per month than it is connecting, have led to much discussion about continuance of the $9 per year dividend rate.

Annual Report Raises Doubt.

Doubt about the dividend policy was increased when the company revealed in its annual report last Friday that last year's earnings were equivalent to only $7.82 per share. Treating the system as a whole, including the Western Electric company with its $12,600,000 net loss, earnings last year were equal to only $5.96 per share of American Telephone stock.

Walter S. Gifford, president of American Telephone, wrote into his annual report a justification of the policy of paying unearned dividends, although he did not venture to predict how long that policy would be continued. He said that the company up to Jan. 1, 1932, had accumulated a surplus amounting, with its proportion of the surpluses of its associated companies, to $29 per share of stock. He pointed out also that during the boom period the company had resisted all pressure brought to bear on it for the payment of a higher rate of dividend, and had not paid stock dividends or split up its stock.

Gifford Defends Payments.

"For many years," President Gifford said, "an important consideration back of the financial policy of the company has been the fact that regular dividends, representing, as they do, a return on actual cash invested, are vital to the day by day living of the vast majority of its hundreds of thousands of stockholders."

At today's meeting Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy, was elected a member of the board. Mr. Adams normally would not be required to attend a meeting of the board until after he has retired from his cabinet position.

Mills Invites Bids on New $60,000,000 Treasury Bills

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—Secretary of the Treasury Mills today invited tenders on $60,000,000 of 91-day treasury bills to replace an issue of similar size, which matures Feb. 23, the date on which the new bills will be distributed. Tenders will be accepted by federal reserve banks up to 2 p. m. eastern standard time, on Feb. 20.

Steel Plants Make Best Gain for This Year

The steel business during the last week has witnessed the most definite improvement so far this year, partly due to automobile requirements, according to the weekly survey of the industry by Iron Age.

"There has been a loosening up of automobile tonnage, with the release of steel for 10,000 cars by the Ford Motor company and the settlement of the strike at the body plant of the Hudson Motor Car company, which had affected its entire works. Steel output for the country has advanced to an average of 20 per cent."

The review states that the Chicago mills have had the best week's business in several months, while inquiries also have gained. It says that while the railroads are doing very little steel buying, some western roads have contracted for small amounts of malleable castings in the Chicago district.

Pig Iron Shipments Rise.

This demand has contributed to an increase in Chicago pig iron shipments, which are now running about 20 per cent higher than the January rate. The review says several roads are estimating rail requirements, with the Erie expected to take 25,000 or 30,000 tons and the Chesapeake and Ohio a lesser amount.

"Steel orders have gained moderately at Pittsburgh and Cleveland and production has increased a point to 16 per cent at Pittsburgh and 3 points to 38 per cent at Cleveland. The valley district is maintaining last week's rate of 20 per cent, while the Wheeling output of raw steel is fully 35 per cent, being sustained largely by tin plate requirements, which are responsible for the operation of one Bessemer plant in that district at about 70 per cent.

Better Demand for Bars.

"A considerable part of the gain in steel tonnage of the last week has been in bars, which normally take first position among all steel products in volume and in diversification of uses, though they were displaced last year by sheets. A consistent increase in bar orders would naturally reflect increasing activities among a wide range of consuming industries."

Iron Age finds that some producers are trying to check the weakness in prices of sheets and wire products. It says one Pittsburgh manufacturer of wire products has announced a price boost of $1 a ton on nails, staples, and galvanized barbed wire. Others are announcing minimum prices.

N. E. L. A. DISBANDS; EDISON INSTITUTE ORGANIZES TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—The National Electric Light association, whose membership numbers 600 light and power, electrical manufacturing and utility holding companies and individuals, voted today to dissolve and distribute the assets, consisting of about $830,000 cash and securities, among the members. The body will be succeeded by a new organization called the Edison Electric institute, from which manufacturers of electrical appliances will be excluded.

George B. Cortelyou, president of the Consolidated Gas company, who is president of the National Electric Light association, also will be president of the new institute, the members of which will hold an organization meeting tomorrow.

The dissolution of the association was voted almost exactly forty-eight years after it was organized.

MORTGAGE FIRM WILL REFINANCE REALTY BONDS

Plan Loans to Help Reorganizations.

BY AL CHASE.

The Republic Realty Mortgage corporation, organized nearly ten years ago by a group of prominent Chicagoans headed by Gordon Strong, to negotiate second mortgages at minimum rates, for the home owner, yesterday announced that it actively will enter the business of loaning money on apartment buildings for reorganization purposes. the company is retiring from the second mortgage field, according to President H. L. Schmitz.

H. L. SCHMITZ.

"Loans will be made on first mortgage trust deed or master's certificate and may be obtained by property owners, by bondholders' committees, and by attorneys for the purpose of avoiding or of completing foreclosures," said President Schmitz. "Funds to be used for taxes, foreclosure costs, receiver's dismissal, payments to bondholders, and for repairs necessary to restoration of income."

Reorganizations Lack Funds.

Mr. Schmitz points out the large number of apartment buildings in Chicago involved in foreclosures which neither can be withdrawn nor completed because of lack of funds.

"This state of affairs," he said, "is occasioning excessive loss to equity owner and bondholder alike, and it's the aim of the company to furnish capital at fair rates in relief of this situation."

This, it is pointed out, will in a measure follow in the footsteps of the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company, which was organized by the First National bank, the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, and the Chicago Title and Trust company to supply Reconstruction Finance corporation funds for completion of bond reorganizations.

Organized in 1922.

The announcement of this company is of particular interest as that of a concern which has survived in the second mortgage business during the most severe real estate deflation in Chicago's experience, and which is now ready for a program of constructive new business in the first mortgage field.

The Republic Realty Mortgage corporation was organized in 1922 by a group of Chicago business men for the purpose of standardizing the second mortgage business at minimum expense to the borrower.

During the years from 1923 to 1929 the company loaned more than 15 million dollars on second mortgages, primarily on small homes and apartments, making five substantial rate reductions during those six years. Second mortgages which used to cost 20 per cent were cut to 11 per cent, including 1 per cent brokerage.

WHEAT REACTS AFTER BULGE, BUT CLOSES HIGHER

Export Demand for Canadian Grain Aids Market.

WHEAT PRICES IN GOLD

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Scattered buying of wheat futures based on strength in stocks and reports of a large foreign demand for Canadian cash grain lifted prices in the local market 1⅝ cents over Tuesday's finish with May touching 48¼ cents on the bulge. The latter brought in selling here against purchases in other markets.

Aggregate trade was not large and the market rather easily influenced. A reaction followed the advance, but at no time were prices as low as the finish of the previous day and the close was at net gains of ⅛ to ⅝ cents.

Europe After Wheat.

There was a keen foreign demand for Canadian cash wheat, and this was reflected in active buying of futures at Winnipeg. The latter gained ⅛ to ⅝ cents for the day. Export sales in all positions were estimated at 1,000,000 bushels.

Southeastern mills were after cash wheat in Chicago Thursday, and took 105,000 bushels.

Trade sentiment during the day was somewhat mixed, and with selling which the trade attribute either to hedging against Red Cross grain turned over to mills or to the farm board appearing on all the upturns there is little disposition to take an aggressive stand on the buying side.

Country Sells Cash Corn.

Despite the fact May corn continues to sell within a fraction of the lowest level of the season the country shows more disposition to part with its holding of cash grain and sold 215,000 bushels to Chicago handlers yesterday, making around 500,000 bushels bought so far this week. Hedging sales against this grain tended to offset the effect of the strength in wheat and held the market within narrow limits. The close was ¼ cent higher.

Damage to the winter oats crop in the southwest was confirmed by the government weekly weather summary yesterday. Futures were firmer with other grains and closed ⅛ to ¼ cent higher. May barley was unchanged.

Strength in wheat was largely responsible for an upturn of 1 cent in rye, but the best prices were not maintained owing to profit taking. The close was ⅝ cents higher.

Continental Assurance Company.

Will you please give me some information on Continental Assurance Company of Chicago?—S. R. C.

It has had a good growth. Insurance in force increased each year since 1927, reaching a record total of $161,784,000 on Dec. 31, 1932. Insurance in force on Dec. 31, 1931, was $151,930,000, against $145,885,000 the year before. During 1932 the company wrote more business than in any previous year in its history. The total was $46,304,000.

Policyholders' surplus is ample and reserve basis is strong. Expenses are low and mortality rate is favorable.

Total assets at the close of 1932 were $17,840,000. These included cash of $506,000; United States government obligations of $1,055,000; other public bonds of $1,450,000; railroad, public utility, and other bonds of $2,625,000; policy loans of $3,021,000; mortgage loans of $5,250,000, and real estate of $1,228,000. The only bonds on which interest was not being paid were a small block of Cook county forest preserve district obligations, on which the company expected no final loss.

The company has not had occasion to borrow funds from any source. It is licensed to do business in 35 states and the District of Columbia.

Inflation?

It looks pretty clearly as if the 4th of March will bring in a cheaper dollar. I have lost a lot of property and have only a few hundred dollars left me in the bank. Would it not be wise to place them now in $20 gold pieces in the safety box? I don't see why I should have my money replaced by cheaper dollars by the government. —P. E.

If a devaluation of the dollar were imminent the conversion of your funds into gold would be a logical move. Although there has been considerable discussion both in and out of congress concerning inflation, no definite action toward tinkering with the value of the dollar has yet been started.

"We believe that there will be plenty of warning should such a movement gain headway.

We therefore believe that the action you contemplate would be ill-timed at present.

New York, Feb. 15.—Bond prices rallied moderately today from yesterday's turn down. The narrowness of price changes and a small trading volume indicated the market was still under the influence of the Michigan banking situation.

The market feature was a recession in foreign bonds ranging from 1 to 3 points, with German and Japanese issues the sharpest losers.

Declines in foreign bonds were touched off partly by the unsettlement in other domestic financial markets and partly by special developments affecting the various countries. Thus, German issues were shaken by the report of January trade, showing the smallest favorable balance in two and one-half years, while Japanese issues fell on the closing of the Tokio Stock exchange.

Trading Is Light.

The banking situation continued to dampen speculative sentiment, though the effect today was a severe restriction of trading volume rather than acute weakness in prices.

Report of the national transportation committee was largely negative as a market influence, though observers in Wall street found ground for optimism in some of the committee's utterances.

United States government securities gave the best account of themselves, as prices rallied after a soft opening. Buying was not heavy, but quotations were sustained by knowledge that the reserve system was a buyer of certificate and note issues yesterday.

Cite Cheer for Rails.

A basis for optimism toward carrier issues was seen in the committee's statement that "less than a 20 per cent increase in traffic would place most of the roads on an earning basis," and that "in view of the very great savings possible in railroad operation we regard their outlook as far from hopeless."

Minor recoveries were the rule in both speculative and investment carrier issues. Traders in the over the counter market emphasized that the price decline in investment issues has resulted from withdrawing of bids rather than from substantial offerings.

BLIZZARD PUSHES OUTPUT OF POWER TO PEAK FOR YEAR

Electrical power production in the Chicago district ran only 3 per cent below the output in the corresponding week last year. The decline was the smallest in comparison with the preceding year. The figures since August, 1931, showing is due almost entirely to the increased consumption by the electrical traction lines during the blizzard here.

The 3 per cent spread contrasts with 8 per cent in the preceding week. Production amounted to 98,676,000 kilowatt hours, against 95,020,000 in the preceding week, and 96,946,000 in the comparable week last year.

The report on national power production, usually issued Wednesday, was delayed until today because of Lincoln's birthday.

BILL TO EXTEND U. S. FARM LOANS URGED IN SENATE

Committee Reports Steagall Measure Favorably.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—Partial relief of the farm debt situation at this session of congress became a possibility today as the house banking and currency committee reported favorably a bill providing for a ten year extension of farm loans held by the federal land banks.

Representative Henry B. Steagall [Dem., Ala.], committee chairman and author of the measure, stated that he had tried to eliminate all controversial matters from the bill in an effort to facilitate its passage at this session.

Expects Hoover to Approve.

"While mortgage indebtedness to the federal land banks forms only a small portion of the farm indebtedness of the country," he said, "I am anxious to accomplish at least this much relief during the present session. The bill is so noncontroversial that I expect President Hoover to sign it."

As reported to the house the measure provides for the extension of delinquent payments on farm mortgages held by the federal land banks and requires that they be spread over a period of ten years, payable annually. Likewise, it provides that the remainder of the 125 million dollars appropriated for loan extensions by the land banks at the last session be used for further extensions and for new loans.

Other Provisions of Bill.

Besides proffering some measure of relief to the farmer, however, the bill authorizes the land banks to carry real estate as an asset for a period of five years at an amount equal to the bank's investment at the time it acquired the property.

It permits the banks to use purchase money mortgages and contracts to sell real estate as collateral for their bonds, and grants the banks authority to reamortize over forty year periods any outstanding loans and to use such mortgages as collateral for bonds.

STOCKS PERK UP AS WALL STREET REGAINS NERVE

Small Gains Are Made as Bank Scare Wanes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—Overnight reassurances on the Michigan bank crisis served to steady Wall street's nerves somewhat today and enable the share market to regain its equilibrium.

Except in the utilities group, where heavy liquidation in Consolidated Gas exerted a strong downward pull, such selling as appeared was well absorbed and most of the victims of yesterday's reaction finished showing small gains. The turnover fell off sharply, amounting to only around 750,000 shares.

The general impression among speculators seemed to be that while the so-called Michigan situation was under control, it was still far from settled and the majority seemed unwilling to do much either way for the time being.

For that reason the American Telephone dividend declaration, which ordinarily would have been hailed as a bullish factor of the first order, was practicaly ignored. The overnight report of the national transportation committee likewise fell flat on the market, as did the midweek report of improving conditions in the steel industry.

Good News Anticipated.

Probably the American Telephone rate announcement, as well as the railroad survey report, had already been sufficiently discounted, the tenor of both pronouncements having been pretty well known in advance. Certainly, it has been no secret for the last week or so, or ever since President Gifford's reassuring "statement of dividend policy" in the phone company's earnings report the other day, that the shareholders of this premier communications corporation would receive their quarterly dividend payments at the old $9 annual rate as usual.

As for the transportation report, spokesmen for brokerage houses said that prevailing sentiment seemed to be that most of the conclusions were sound, and insisted that they had been held in the financial district for a long time. However, so far as the price movements in the rail group were concerned, the report was not a factor one way or the other. The carrier shares opened slightly lower, but rallied modestly with the rest of the list and closed showing little change from yesterday's final figures.

Gold Mining Shares Strong.

Buying continued to boost some of the gold mining shares to higher levels. Homestake ran ahead to a new all time high, but was unable to hold its newly won ground and finished where it had started.

Some of the motors which were so hard hit by yesterday's selling on the score of the Michigan bank troubles, showed signs of support slightly above their previous levels. General Motors and Chrysler were the chief beneficiaries of buying of this nature.

Fresh strength in the wheat market found a sympathetic reflection in the farm implement group. J. I. Case and International Harvester registering fractional recoveries.

NEW GERMAN TARIFF MAY CUT OUR EXPORTS

Packers and provision interests say that the new German import duty which puts a heavy tax on lard imported into that country will cut off export business from the United States until present stocks which have been piling up of late are depleted. When that period arrives they look for a renewal of German buying in American markets.

Demand for cash lard, which has been good, has fallen off sharply, and the regular lard market was easier at $3.82½, with loose and leaf at $3.25. Trade in lard futures was light, with prices 2½ cents lower. Liverpool lard was 6 to 9 pence lower; there were export clearances of 1,932,000 pounds of lard and 37,500 pounds of meats.

May bellies were 5 cents lower and July unchanged, with trade small. Cash bellies were taken fairly at $4.12½. Green ham market was said to be easier, and fresh pork loins were in fair request at 7 to 9½ cents. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw continued quiet today. Sales reported were 9,000 bags of Philippines, March-April shipment, at 2.76c and 9,000 bags for April-May at 2.76c. After declining 2 to 3 points futures recovered and closed 7 points lower to 2 points net higher. The market opened 1 to 3 points lower under liquidation and selling by producing interests, promoted by the disappointing action of London and inactivity in the spot market. Later March contracts sold from .75c to .79c and December from .90c to .93c, with final prices at or within a point of the best. Approximate sales, 31,300 tons. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
March	.76	.79	.75	.79	.77
May	.79	.72	.79	.82	.80

December	.91	.93	.90	.92	.93
January	.91	.95	.91	.95	.94

Refined was unchanged at 3.90c for fine granulated, with demand only moderate. According to the Sugar institute, both the melt and deliveries by leading refiners were below a year ago, the former by 14 leading United States refiners being placed at 260,000 long tons from Jan. 1 to Feb. 14, this year, against 320,000 last year and the latter at 250,000, against 285,000 last year.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable was less active and price changes irregular today, with the near months relatively steady on covering. The distant positions were a little easier under liquidation. Final prices were 1 point higher to 3 lower, with sales of only 4 contracts, or 600 barrels. Crude oil was steady and the firmness of cotton and grains was a supporting factor. The increase of approximately 5,000,000 lbs in contract lard stocks for the first part of February was ignored. Bleachable spot closed at 3.55c; March, 3.73c; May, 3.83c; July, 3.95c; September, 4.05c.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Gray cloth markets were softer today, with sales light. Fine lawns sold freely for printing. Burlaps were quiet, a few points above the low of the year. Raw silk was quiet and barely steady. Silk goods were in light demand. Wool goods sold in moderate volume. Rayon goods were in fair demand for dress purposes chiefly.

BUTTER AND EGGS LOWER

Moderate selling sent butter futures lower on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange yesterday, closing prices showing net declines of ¼ to ⅝ cent. Eggs were off ⅛ to ⅛ cent. While the monthly cold storage estimate proved slightly more bullish than expected, buying of butter was moderate. Selling gained headway toward the close and sent the deliveries to the day's lows. Movement of butter out of storage continued heavier than last year and production reports showed a decrease of 11 per cent from last year. However, the moderating weather proved bearish and more important in the trading. Egg receipts again were slightly under last year, but expectations of increased production dominated the trading. Liquidation started in February and new selling developed in the later months. Sales: Butter, 114 cars; eggs, 41 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 7 cars; eggs, 4 cars. Prices follow:

REPORT TO I. C. C. MAY CUT CHICAGO SHIPPERS' COSTS

Approval of State Rate on Switching Urged.

Chicago shippers yesterday saw victory for their efforts to block the imposition of higher railroad rates in the Chicago switching district as a result of a recommendation by Examiners Howard C. Faul and W. B. Wilbur that the interstate commerce commission approve switching rates which have been declared to be equitable by the Illinois and Indiana commerce commissions.

G. H. Shafer, chief rate expert for the Illinois commerce commission, in pointing out the significance of the recommendations made in Washington, said the saving to Chicago shippers will amount to at least $2,000,000 annually. The Illinois commerce commission has been the leader in the effort to block the railroads from increasing their rates on shipments within the state and within the Chicago switching area.

Expect Interstate Cut.

The recommendation made yesterday does not affect rates for shipments across the state line—between Illinois and Indiana—in the Chicago switching area. However, Chicago carriers say that it would seem that the only course now open to the carriers is to reduce the interstate rates in the Chicago switching area to a parity with the rates held to be lawful by the Illinois and Indiana commissions. With two sets of rates applying, shippers assert, a chaotic situation would exist.

Mr. Shafer said that the case originally arose in 1927 when the railroads sought higher rates. On Aug. 29, 1931, the Illinois commerce commission entered an order finding that the carriers had not justified their demand for rate increases.

"At the same time," Mr. Shafer said, "the interstate commerce commission entered an order in Washington finding that the rate increases were justified on interstate switching traffic.

"The Illinois commerce commission has contended that from 60 to 70 per cent of the traffic in the Chicago switching area was strictly intrastate traffic.

Charge Evidence in Error.

"The Illinois commerce commission's order stated that the evidence relied on by the carriers to get their rate increases was based on improper cost studies, which contained numerous estimates and approximations, and therefore did not correctly show the cost of handling the traffic.

"The Illinois commerce commission's order also took into consideration the long standing rate adjustments which over a long period had been found to be satisfactory. It asserted that proposed increase would disrupt Chicago industry and drive a large volume of business to waterways and to highways which were already overcrowded by trucks.

"Following the Illinois order, the carriers appealed to the interstate commerce commission to overthrow it under section 13 of the Interstate Commerce Commission act, claiming that the Illinois rates, being lower than the interstate rates, constituted a burden on interstate traffic and gave Illinois shippers unlawful preference.

"The report by the examiners in Washington recommends that the entire proceedings be discontinued and the Illinois state rates be found to be lawful."

The rates requested by the roads were: 2½ to 3 cents 100 pounds on one line hauls, from 2½ to 3½ for two line hauls and from 3 to 4 cents for three line or more hauls on interstate shipments.

Rails Aid Chicago Packers.

In another action under way before Examiner William A. Disque of the Interstate Commerce Commission on live stock rates, Chicago packers in the hearing at the Hotel Sherman found something of an ally in the railroads in their efforts to prevent extension of sale in transit freight rates to all parts of the district west of the Missouri river.

Packers here contend that extension of these rates would result in giving eastern packers an advantage that might eventually lead to Chicago losing a good part of its packing industry.

L. F. Wettling, head of the statistical bureau of the western lines, and A. F. Cleveland, vice president of the Chicago and North Western, both gave testimony in which they asserted that extension of sale in transit rates would seriously reduce the revenue of the railroads, which already is far below their requirements. Mr. Cleveland said that if sale in transit privileges were given to producers in all points west of the Missouri they would in justice have to be extended to all.

LARGER SUPPLY CAUSES DECLINE IN HOG MARKET

Prices at Lowest Point in Nine Days.

Hog prices sank 5 to 15 cents under the pressure of yesterday's larger movement of supplies. The close was at the lowest point in nine days and 30 to 45 cents below the high spot in the middle of last week. Two days prior to last week's storm hogs were selling 30 to 35 cents lower and at the low time of the winter, the extreme top being down to $3 and the daily average price to $2.80.

Yesterday's peak price declined 15 cents to $3.70, with the general average for the day at $3.55, showing 10 cents loss. Owing to a misunderstanding, the top price was misquoted at $3.75 during the early rounds of the trade. Buying by outsiders was again at low ebb. Shippers took less than 1,000 hogs. Yet the movement over all scales held a steady pace and at the close only a comparatively small supply of picked over stock remained unsold.

Wholesale pork markets were reported slow and weak to lower, although fresh loins still are 1 to 1½ cents above the low spot two weeks ago.

Cattle Prices Decline.

With the exception of a few light steers and yearlings that maintained a steady price basis the cattle market kept breaking all day. Some classes closed only 25 cents above the winter's low point. Medium and heavy steers, and also yearlings carrying a thick layer of flesh, were discounted the sharpest. In many instances these showed losses of 25 cents and more.

All sections of the yards were loaded down with long fed heavy cattle that had been on a grain ration for a year and longer. A load of very fat 1,610 pound steers sold at $4.15, and a few rough 1,200 to 1,400 pound cattle were bought as low as $3.75.

The few yearlings of choice to fancy quality that filled special orders at $6.25 and above cut little figure in the general cattle market.

Lamb Trade Erratic.

An erratic market developed in the sheep house when smaller interests competed for the few loads of fancy light lambs on the market at strong to 10 cents higher prices on opening rounds. Big packers refused to follow the higher trend, and later obtained the bulk of medium and heavy lambs at 10 to 15 cents decline, compared with the average of the preceding session. Shippers and city butchers bought early at $6.10 to $6.25. The majority of the $5.75 lambs to packers later were comparable to the $5.90 lambs at the close on Tuesday. Several car loads of fed western mutton ewes sold at $2.85, with a few tops up to $3.

Apparently a Misunderstanding.

TO THE EDITOR: I'm the owner of a five room bungalow with a $4,500 mortgage which matured Nov. 30, 1932. The holder of the mortgage is the —— company. The taxes and interest are paid in full. At first we could come to no agreement. Finally we did agree on a five year extension with $500 paid up in three years at the rate of $100 every six months, and six per cent interest on the loan. But there is one thing we can't agree on and that is the commission and attorney's fees. I don't want to pay both of them.

I offered them 3 per cent commission, but they want 3½ plus attorney's fees. They sent me a letter saying that if I didn't settle with them by Dec. 28 they were going to foreclose; since then I've heard nothing from them. Can you find out for me what they are trying to do?

Would the court consent to foreclosure when everything is paid to date? Could they possibly foreclose because I don't want to pay 3½ per cent commission and attorney's fees? I'll either pay 3 per cent commission or attorney's fees, but they want both. —J. F.

ANSWER: There seems to be some misunderstanding between you and the company which holds your mortgage. They have a letter from your attorneys which states definitely that you will pay the attorney's fee, amounting to $25, but will not pay a commission of any sort.

A commission for renewal is customary, unless the deal is made direct between mortgagor and mortgagee, in which case there seldom is one. In this case you'll apparently have to pay a commission if you want to get a renewal. If you don't renew you face foreclosure unless you can take up the mortgage.

The question of the reasonableness of the commission is hard to answer. Many firms charge 3 per cent; on the other hand some charge higher. During boom times rates were much higher. There is no set schedule, so if this firm offers to renew your mortgage and puts its commission rate at 3½ per cent, there's nothing much you can do except pay it or go elsewhere. The company states it doesn't intend to foreclose if you will accept its terms. This seems reasonable in times like these.

Notice Declaring Plan of Reorganization Operative

Deposits of bonds under the Plan of Reorganization announced November 19, 1932, amounted to $5,528,000 par value as at February 11, 1933, representing over 70% of the $7,791,500 principal amount of the First Lien Collateral 6% Convertible Bonds, Series A, outstanding. This gives the Committee a sufficient amount of bonds to carry out the Plan of Reorganization. The Committee has therefore declared the plan to be operative and effective and has fixed March 13, 1933, as the date prior to which additional deposits of bonds may be made.

In order to share in the benefits of the plan, holders should immediately deposit their bonds with Manufacturers Trust Company, Depositary, 149 Broadway, New York City, or Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company, Sub-depositary, 231 South La Salle Street, Chicago, Illinois.

To Holders of:

Associated Telephone Utilities Company

6% Secured Gold Notes, Due April 1, 1933

PLAN OF EXTENSION

The Board of Directors of the Associated Telephone Utilities Company has prepared a plan, under the terms of which it urgently requests holders of the $3,858,000, in principal amount, of the Company's 6% Secured Gold Notes, due April 1, 1933, to join in the extension of the due date of these obligations for two years—that is until April 1, 1935. The plan of extension was outlined in a letter, dated February 4, 1933 and mailed to all known Note holders. The principal points of this letter are abstracted herewith.

The Company has no bank loans; and the total bank indebtedness of its subsidiaries is $250,000.

The Company is entirely solvent and is meeting its obligations currently as they fall due; it has funds with which to meet the interest payment on these notes but it sees no possibility at present of acquiring the funds with which to meet the payment on account of principal of the Notes on April 1, 1933.

These Notes are, and will continue to be, secured by collateral consisting of 38,650 shares of subsidiary operating companies' preferred stocks.

Upon deposit of their Notes, together with the coupon due April 1, 1933 attached, with the Bankers Trust Company, 16 Wall Street, New York, N. Y., as Depositary, Note holders will receive the registered receipt of the Depositary, which said receipt, will be transferable at the office of the Depositary. Note holders will be notified if and when this plan of extension is declared operative by the Company, at which time the Depositary will deliver, upon surrender of the deposit receipts, duly endorsed:

(a) The Notes, with April, 1, 1933 coupons detached as called for by such deposit receipts, stamped to indicate the extension of the maturity date thereof

(b) Four new coupons, attached to each Note returned, evidencing the obligation of the Company to pay interest semi-annually at the rate of 6% per annum through the extended period, and

(c) Check in payment of the surrendered interest coupons due April 1, 1933.

If the plan is not declared operative by the close of business on February 28, 1933, the Company may—at its discretion—extend the period of deposit for four successive monthly periods, by a letter to that effect addressed to the Depositary. If the plan has not been declared operative prior to such date, or such extended date, or earlier if the Company so directs, the Depositary will return the Notes so deposited, with the April 1, 1933 coupons attached, without expense to the Note holders.

Copies of the complete letter mailed to Note holders on February 4, 1933, together with the consolidated earnings statement of the Company and its subsidiaries for the year ended December 31, 1932, the consolidated balance sheet of the Company and its subsidiaries as of December 31, 1932 and the balance sheet of the parent company as of January 31, 1933, will be furnished by the Depositary or the Associated Telephone Utilities Company, upon application.

By Order of the Board of Directors,
WM. J. WARDALL, President.

UNITED FRUIT CO. NET $1.95 SHARE; CUTS BOOK VALUE

Depreciation Charges Are Slashed 4 Millions.

By slashing the book value of its fixed assets by 50 million dollars the farflung United Fruit company was able to save more than 4 million dollars in depreciation charges last year, the company's annual report issued yesterday shows.

Largely because of this revaluation of properties the company showed a profit of $5,707,000, equivalent to $1.95 a share on the capital stock. Considering the decline in total operating revenues this showing compares favorably with the profit of $6,779,000 or $2.31 a share shown in 1931. Operating revenue fell $19,001,000 in 1931 to $14,667,000 last year.

Earnings Have Declined.

In revising its property values and carrying out important economy measures the company met the challenge of declining earnings which it has faced for four years. From a peak figure of $31,782,000 reached in 1928 the gross income of the company has declined steadily.

The revaluation and economies are credited in financial quarters to Samuel Zemurray, the Polish-Jewish emigrant who organized the Cuyamel Fruit company acquired by United in 1929.

Zemurray was made managing director in charge of operations last June. He is now reputed to be the largest single stockholder.

Slash Properties $50,945,000.

Under Zemurray's direction the company retained an independent firm of auditors to go over the books. Fixed properties were cut $50,945,000. Properties, many of which were purchased at inflated prices during the war period, were brought into line with prevailing values.

Depreciation charges against the properties last year were $9,132,000 as compared with $13,256,000 in the preceding year, a reduction of $4,666,000.

United Fruit's operations are extensive. Its principal business is the production, transportation, and distribution of bananas, sugar, cacao and other tropical products.

It carries on a general freight business from Central and South America and the West Indies to the United States. It operates a large fleet of steamships, 1,772 miles of railroad, 3,500 miles of telegraph and telephone lines, plantations, hotels, and other properties.

What Marinello Training Means

We regard our graduates as personal representatives of the Marinello System. Therefore every girl is trained to the highest degree of efficiency before receiving her certificate. Each girl is graduated with the equivalent of at least a year's practical experience and ready to earn big money at once.

The most money is made in shops where particular women gladly pay good prices for the kind of service that Marinello Beauticians render. Why not train for positions that pay the most? That's good economy, good sense.

Day or evening classes now forming. Easy tuition payments. Free international Employment Service—or we will help you establish your own business.

SOLUTION TO THE MYSTERY AT GUNPOWDER CREEK

Fordney warned you how baffling the OBVIOUS can be! The fact that Hawk's boots, secured from the bunkhouse, fitted the prints at the ford proved conclusively that he was NOT murdered there. How could a dead man return to the bunkhouse and change his shoes?

IF YOU WILL NOT HEAR REASON, SHE WILL SURELY RAP YOUR KNUCKLES.
